48 LOST IN R-101 CRASH BURIED IN ONE GRAVE

Women Faint and Many Persons Kneel in Prayer While Coffins Are Lowered in Flower-Lined Cavern at Cardington.

CATHEDRAL AND VILLAGE SERVICES

Thousands Watch Funeral Procession Go Across London and Other Multitudes Line Route of the Train.

By the Associated Press.

CARDINGTON, England, Oct. 11.—The 48 victims of the R-101 disaster were buried here today in one grave.

One by one their flag-draped coffins were carried down the broad slope of the grave late this afternoon and left within the flower-lined cavern, almost in the shadows of the tall mooring mast whence the airship sailed a week ago tonight.

Many women overcome by grief fainted and were carried away. While the coffins were being lowered, many persons wept and many knelt in prayer.

In four rows of 12 caskets each the scant remains of the airmen who perished on a hillside in France were laid in their final resting place.

Simple Rites at Village Church.

After the stately services at St. Paul's Cathedral and the magnificence of the lying in state at Westminster Hall, there was renewed heart appeal in the simplicity of the burial rites at the little village church, standing near the cottages of the men who perished.

Multitudes watched the long funeral procession go across London, as did thousands of others at every station as the funeral train rolled toward Bedford.

Other thousands lined the way from Bedford to Cardington and the common grave. After the caskets were placed in automobiles by pallbearers, the procession started through the leafy lanes of this little village. In front was a band playing Chopin's Funeral March, while behind it marched ranks of the Royal Air Force with rifles reversed.

Three Volleys Fired Over Grave.

At the close of the brief services, conducted by the Rev. W. Seccombe, Vicar of Cardington, and other clergymen, three volleys were fired over the grave and the trumpeters sounded "Last Post," the British equivalent of the American "Taps." As the last notes died out, the bugles shrilled the notes of "Reveille," as is customary in a British military funeral.

A Bishop sprinkled a handful of brown earth in the large grave, while a squadron of airplanes soared above, and the men who died on the largest lighter-than-air craft in the world were at rest.

The funeral train had crept from Euston station in London to the strains of "Rock of Ages," played by the Royal Air Force Band. A great crowd of diplomats and officials stood with bared heads. Among them was Prime Minister MacDonald. His dearest friend, Lord Thomson, was among the dead.

Promptly at 10 a. m. the funeral procession, headed by the band, began the march from Westminster Hall in London through streets lined with thousands of people who were unable to pass the coffins yesterday when they lay in state.

Dr. Eckener in Cortege.

One figure in the cortege was a man in dark blue uniform with long cloak, golden epaulettes and a peaked cap. He was Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin. He was bidding farewell to his fellow workers in the airship field. His grief was the greater because Maj. G. H. Scott, of the British airship development staff, who perished in the R-101, was a close friend.

Comrades of the dead men marched in the procession. Men of the third watch of the R-101, and the crew of the sister-ship, the R-100, were there with high officials of the Air Council, Army Council and the Admiralty, Dominion Premiers, representatives

15,000 at National Dairy Show On Opening Day; 1400 Prize Animals on Display at Arena

Women's Exposition, Horse and Poultry Exhibits Held in Conjunction With Cattle Judging Events

The National Dairy Show, the largest exposition of pure bred dairy cattle in the world, opened at The Arena yesterday attended by 15,048 persons from Missouri and nearby states who thronged the exhibition buildings, where more than 1400 cattle are quartered, and viewed the various exhibits, ranging from bantams to bulls, fancy work to milking stools.

Besides the dairy show, the attractions include the St. Louis National Horse Show, the National Poultry Show and the Women's Home Exposition. Displays include equipment for the largest dairies down to exhibits of feed and charts denoting proper rationing schedules fo rvarious breeds of dairy cattle.

Vocational agriculture students from 30 states participated in the opening contest, a cattle judging competition, the winners of which will not be decided until next week, since there are many technical factors to be graded. Vocational students also had a judging exhibition at the poultry show. Exhibits there include virtually every strain of chicken, besides turkeys, ducks, geese and show fowl. Rabbits, Guinea pigs and other pets also are displayed.

Exhibition of Calves.

Pure bred calve sowned by 4-H club members are housed in a big tent adjoining one of the exhibition buildings, which flank the main Arena, containing the show ring, on either side. Clad in overalls, the boys were busy bedding their cattle down for the night as yesterday's show drew to a close.

Illinois and Missouri editors were opening day guests. The first day was designated as Press Day, All-States Day and Vocational Students Day. After viewing the exhibits, the editors were tendered a dinner at the Hotel Chase, returning to The Arena in time to see the events at the evening horse show program.

Some of the finest horses in the country are entered in the horse show in addition to numerous St. Louis entries which have won prizes at previous shows. The horse show will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon and at 2 and 8 p. m. tomorrow. There will be no horse show tonight, but the Polish and Croatian Sokol Grunwald No. 45 will present folk dancing, drills and gymnastics.

Cattle on Exhibition.

The cattle will be on exhibition today, but will not parade in the main ring. They were led about the ring last night to the music of the band, seated high up near the roof and some of the dairy cattle entries were transported in trucks through the downtown streets at noon, heralding the opening of the show, the supreme court of dairy cattle.

Most of the cattle are veterans of the show ring, having exhibited at numerous State fairs during the past summer. Wrapped in khaki blankets and guarded by their attendants, they were inspected by thousands of persons last night who filed through the aisles of the exhibition buildings.

Cattle entered in the competition, including Jerseys, Holsteins, Guernseys, Brown Swiss, and Ayrshires, will be judged beginning Tuesday. Cash awards total $25,000 while the crowning event of the show, which closes next Sunday midnight, will be the selection of the purple ribbon winner, the champion of champions.

4-H Clubs' Contests.

College students and 4-H Club members will participate in separate cattle and poultry judging contests tomorrow and the 4-H Club representatives will give dairy and poultry demonstrations. The vocational students will hold a poultry judging contest in the morning.

The team of 4-H Clubs winning the cattle judging event tomorrow will win a trip to Europe and the honor of competing there in a cattle judging contest against English future farmers. Twenty-five teams have entered tomorrow's event. About 600 4-H Club members and approximately 900 vocational students are participating in the exhibition.

The milkmaids' marathon, with 14 contestants, opened yesterday and will be held each day at 10 a. m. and 9 p. m. in a tent in front of one of the exhibition buildings. The winner, who will be decided on the basis of a week's milking average, will receive $200 and a silver cup.

The contestants, one of whom wore overalls and high heeled shoes, proved themselves to be no novices and there was little to choose between them at the finish

HOOVER'S VISIT TO CAMP RECALLS MACDONALD PARLEY

President Hears Ill Son Report a Gain in Weight in Last Few Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, Va., Oct. 11.—President Hoover today paid an anniversary visit to his mountain lodge near here. Early in October a year ago, the chief executive and Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain sat upon a log in the mountains near the camp and began a series of conferences upon naval arms limitation which led to the London naval treaty.

Arriving there, he went to the cottage where Herbert Hoover Jr. is taking treatment for tuberculosis. He found his son in an encouraging frame of mind and reporting he had gained weight in the last few weeks. It was the first time the President had seen him since his illness was diagnosed several weeks ago.

Mrs. Hoover, who is suffering from a cold, remained in Washington. Mr. Hoover was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Agnew of London, old friends of Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, and Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, also were members of the party.

WOMAN ANNOUNCES SHORTAGE IN LOUISIANA STATE OFFICE

Newly Appointed Secretary of State Reports on Audit of Predecessor's Accounts.

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 11.—Miss Alice Lee Grossjean, recently appointed Secretary of State for Louisiana, announced today that a preliminary audit of the Secretary of State's office under the late James J. Bailey, had disclosed a "shortage which may be well above $20,000." Miss Grossjean took the oath of office as Bailey's successor last Wednesday, a few hours after his death.

She said she had received a letter from E. A. Conway, State Supervisor of Public Accounts, detailing the nature of the shortage. Further auditing is being done, the Secretary added.

John Albach Jr. of University City Wounded Accidentally With Rifle in Left Breast.

John Albach Jr., 13 years old, was wounded late yesterday with a .22-caliber target rifle fired by Marcus Donahue Jr., a neighbor's boy. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where it was found the bullet had passed through his left breast, lodging in the left arm.

John was playing in the yard behind his home, 531 Donne avenue, University City. Young Donahue, 16 years old, was target shooting in the yard behind his home, 546 Worder avenue.

UNPUBLISHED VERSE LONGFELLOW WROTE WHEN A BOY, FOUND

Four Lines He Left on Potter's Wheel Presented to Museum With Relic.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A poem written by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in his boyhood and hitherto unpublished has come to light through the gift of an eighteenth century potter's wheel to the Museums of the Peaceful Arts, Dr. F. C. Brown, director, announces today.

The wheel was in a pottery, in Portland, Me., which Longfellow often visited during his youthful years, and the poem probably was written in 1823, when the poet was 16. On one of his visits Longfellow wrote these four lines on a slip of paper:

No handicraftman's art
Can to our art compare;
We potters make our pots
Of what we potters are.

Longfellow placed the slip of paper on the potter's wheel and left, the donor of the wheel wrote in a letter accompanying the gift to the museum. The potter found it there and was so struck with the fragment that he inscribed it in clay, which he then fired. The plaque bearing the verses was sold later and disappeared.

The wheel and the verses were given to the museum by Frederick P. Swasey of Portland, Me., and his brother, Ambrose.

HARVARD PAPER TERMS LEGION MEETING 'WHOLESALE BRAWL'

Boston Convention "Worse Than a Subway Riot" the Crimson Charges.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11.—The Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily newspaper today termed the Legion Convention in Boston this week a "wholesale brawl" which "was worse than a subway riot or a drunken football crowd."

The editorial brought immediate replies from Mayor Richard M. Russell of Cambridge and Ralph W. Robart, past commander of the Cambridge Post of the American Legion. The latter demanded the immediate resignation of those students responsible for the editorial and said Harvard students had failed to be sufficiently patriotic on several occasions in the past.

No other country in the world, the Crimson said, "would countenance the spectacle of the recent American Legion Convention in Boston." The paper continued that Boston had seen fit "to allow a total relaxation of law and order during the stay in the Hub of the 'Buddies' who fought to make the world safe for democracy and come back to raise hell annually so no one can forget it."

Mayor Russell said he saw many persons intoxicated, but most of them were too young to be Legionnaires.

$120,000,000 GERMAN CREDIT AGREEMENT REPORTED MADE

Proposal With Foreign Nations Subject to Approval by Reichstag.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—The Vossische Zeitung tonight reported that agreements extending foreign credits of 500,000,000 marks (about $120,000,000) to Germany had been signed this evening. The agreements are said to be subject to approval by the Reichstag.

The paper said interest would be 6.30 per cent. This will be divided as follows: Nominal interest of 4¾ per cent, plus 1¼ per cent for banks and additional charges of 0.30 per cent. The interest is to be paid semiannually, the paper asserts, and the credit is to run for two years.

Inquiries in official quarters regarding reports published in the United States that Germany had asked for a suspension of the transfer of certain reparations payments was denied here today.

It was pointed out that such a course would be most unlikely in view of the pending German negotiations for new American credits.

U. S. SEEKS AFFIRMATION OF FALL JAIL SENTENCE

Brief Filed in Federal Appeals Court on Conviction of Former Cabinet Member.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The Government today filed a lengthy brief with the U. S. District Court of Appeals asking that the conviction of Albert B. Fall, Secretary of the Interior in the Harding Administration, be affirmed.

Fall was found guilty and sentenced last year to one year in jail and a $100,000 fine for accepting as a bribe a similar amount from Edward L. Doheny, California oil magnate. He has entered an appeal and will be given a hearing by the Court on the first Monday in January.

DRY AGENTS RAID MISSISSIPPI BOAT, SEIZE CREW OF 10

Cargo of 140 Cans of Alcohol Found on Cruiser Moored Near Ste. Genevieve—One Man Escapes

TWO OTHER CRAFT ALSO DISCOVERED

Deputy Administrator Estimates Equipment at $20,000—To Use Vessels to Patrol River.

Federal prohibition agents, led by Deputy Administrator Dillon, seized a 75-foot cruiser, equipped with two 80-horsepower gasoline motors and carrying a cargo of 140 five-gallon cans of moonshine alcohol and 11 men at its mooring a mile and a half north of Ste. Genevieve in the Mississippi River at dawn yesterday.

The arrest of all of the men aboard the cruiser was made without resistance, although a small arsenal of pistols, shotguns and rifles was found in the cruiser's cabin. One man escaped by diving into the river as the prohibition agents started their rush for the boat.

Acting on information that the boat was operating on the Mississippi near Ste. Genevieve, Dillon and his men went there to investigate early Friday night. After tramping up and down the bank of the river for several hours the agents finally located the boat, which, when sighted, was moored to a 70-foot barge only a mile north of the town.

Later it was moved up stream a half mile from the barge and shortly after its seizure two large trucks were seen to approach the spot where it had tied up. The trucks were driven rapidly away again when the drivers saw the agents destroying the cans of alcohol.

Cargo of Corn Sugar.

Attached to the cruiser was a small fast motor boat, which was also seized. On the barge to which the boat had been moored when sighted was found a cargo of 1500 sacks of corn sugar. This also was seized.

There were five white men and five Negroes aboard when the agents boarded the vessel. The white men gave their names and addresses as Jack Bates, Elmer Hass and Charles Jones, all of Chicago; William Weber, La Salle, Ill., and Lester Wilson of 5532 Milentz street, St. Louis.

The Negroes said they were Clarence Porter, cook, Clarence White, Ernest White, William Hadley and George Montgomery, all of St. Louis. All were taken to St. Louis and locked up. Warrants will be applied for Monday charging them with possession of alcohol.

All of the men told Dillon either that they had just gone to work on the boat and did not know what its cargo of tin cans contained, or that they were visitors to the boat seeking a game of craps. The boats and barge, he said, will be brought to St. Louis and he will ask for a court order turning them over to his department for use in cruising the rivers in search of liquor law violators.

A $20,000 Seizure.

Dillon estimated the value of the boats and material seized at $20,000. He said the deck of the cruiser was equipped for sleeping quarters for a number of men and that the cabin, more luxuriously fitted, also contained sleeping quarters.

Dillon searched the cruiser outside and inside but could find no name on it or any papers showing registration with the marine clerk of the Customs office. He said life preservers aboard the cruiser were marked both with the names "Marion" and "Illinois."

The steamer Illinois was taken from its moorings at Alton, Ill., into midstream and destroyed by fire three weeks ago after prohibition agents had obtained a search warrant for the vessel and two barges. An investigation had disclosed one of the barges attached to the craft was a floating mash vat. While the agents were waiting for the return of the boat to the barges, after they had obtained the search warrant, the barge containing the mash was scuttled and sank above Alton.

40 HURT IN EXPLOSION AT FILMING OF MOVIE

Unexpected Presence of Hard Rock Lends Blast Unexpected Violence on Pathe Location in Arizona.

By the Associated Press.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Oct. 11.—Fifteen persons were injured seriously, two perhaps fatally, and 25 others suffered minor hurts in a miscalculated explosion of black powder and dynamite on a motion picture location in Dinosaur Canyon, 15 miles from Cameron, Ariz., and 70 miles northwest of here, today.

All but two of the more seriously injured either were in the Flagstaff Hospital or on their way to this city in ambulances tonight. Two were taken to Tuba City. Of the 25 suffering minor injuries, 15 required medical attention at the scene. Physicians went to the location from Flagstaff, the nearest settlement of any size.

The accident occurred during the filming of one of the last scenes of a desert picture by Pathe Studios, Inc.

The more seriously hurt: William F. Wallace, Flagstaff, chauffeur, fractured skull, may die; Gailand, powder man and electrician, Hollywood, fractured skull, may die; Howard Higgin, film director, Hollywood, broken ankle; Bert Gilroy, studio business manager, Hollywood, sprained leg; Walter Hoffman, powder man, Hollywood, broken leg; Hubert Morgan, helper, Flagstaff, broken collarbone; William Garrett, Hollywood, broken ankle; Jim Cunningham, Hollywood, back, head and legs hurt; Marvin Peterson, Hollywood, ribs broken.

Officers of the film company said two tons of explosives had been placed in the face of a 400-foot cliff and in an old mine tunnel, the explosion being expected to crumble the cliff.

Unexpected presence of hard rock lent the blast violence that had not been anticipated and showered rock and stone over an area of nearly half a mile.

Higgin, the director, was in the lead of several men near the mouth of the tunnel. He and his companions were struck down by hurtling rock.

William Boyd, leading man in the picture, and Clark Gable, the film villain, were 200 feet from the point of the blast, but escaped injury.

Helen Twelvetrees, leading lady, had left the location and was on her way to Los Angeles.

Cameramen had been spotted on platforms near the face of the cliffs to photograph the expected landslide which was to wipe out a mining settlement. Four were knocked to the ground. Three of five cameras in use were shattered.

The first five of the seriously injured brought here were unconscious after their tedious ride over mountain roads to reach the hospital but regained consciousness tonight.

ZUTA LEFT $53,000, 9 PIECES OF REALTY

Chicago Public Administrator May Object to Slain Gangster's Will.

By the Associated Press.

PINEVILLE, Ky., Oct. 11.—The will of Jack Zuta, Chicago gangster, was filed for probate here today, leaving $52,000 in cash and nine pieces of real estate in Chicago to be divided among relatives.

No mention of the value of the entire estate is made. Zuta, who was shot to death at Delafield, Wis., last August, was buried at Middlesboro, this county, where a cousin, Ike Ginsberg, a merchant, resides and where Zuta formerly lived. Ginsberg, who brought the body here, is named executor in the will.

No bond is required of Ginsberg and the will provides that if he died before Zuta that Elly Zoota and H. Schoolman were to be executors. Distribution of the estate is to be made after it has been converted into cash and all just claims including funeral expenses paid.

The cash bequests are: Harry Zoota, resident of Poland, and Ike Ginsberg, Middlesboro, and Thelma and Francis Zoota, New York, $15,000 each; the five Shifman sisters, New Castle, Pa., $10,000; divided among them; Mrs. R. Zoota, address not given, and H. Schoolman, Chicago, $3000 each; Herbert and Samuel Zoota, New York $1000 each.

A bequest to Elly Zoota is the hotel and lease at 919 Madison street, Chicago, but the other property is left to be sold for cash.

While Zuta spelled his own name with a "U" he spelled the name of relatives "Zoota."

The will contains a notation that there is a box in the Masonic temple in the name of Jack Laelte; a box in the West End Bank under the name of Jack Suta, and one with the American Bond Mortgage Co. in the name of Ike Ginsberg.

Chicago real estate Zuta held is listed as follows: In Chicago, 2368-70 West Ogden avenue, 2340 West Fullerton avenue, 2501 West Lake street, 326 North Ashland avenue, hotel and lease at 1857-59 Madison street, hotel and lease at 2345-47 Madison street, hotel and lease at 919 Madison street, and two lots on Archer avenue.

Objection to Will Suggested by Public Administrator.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Public Administrator Halbert O. Grews said today he would object to the will of Jack Zuta filed for probate in Pineville, Ky., by Ike Ginsberg, a cousin, "if it is the same will Ginsberg showed to me in Chicago."

Amos 'n' Andy Broke Up Home.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Elliott lived together 42 years. Mrs. Elliott testified in an alimony hearing today that her husband flew into a rage and deserted her a year ago when she tuned in on Amos 'n' Andy and that he has refused to return.

HOLDUP MAN TAKES BOTH AUTO AND BABY

Child Sleeps Through Robbery and Rescue but Parents Have Frantic 20 Minutes.

A 4-months-old baby boy slept in the rear seat of a stolen automobile for 20 minutes last night while police led two frantic parents in a search for the machine, taken in a holdup.

Arthur W. Hammel, 3134A Miami street, drove his wife and child to the Sears-Roebuck store at 3708 South Grand boulevard, and parked around the corner on Winnebago street at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Hammel laid the sleeping child on the rear seat and Hammel waited at the wheel, while his wife went to shop.

Then a young man opened the car door, pointed a pistol at Hammel and ordered him to move over. He slipped into the driver's seat, took $5 from Hammel and stepped on the starter. "Be careful," Hammel pleaded. "My baby is on the bak seat."

The robber apparently thought it a ruse to distract him. "Don't worry about that," he said, "I'll take care of your kid."

He drove three blocks east, then stopped and ordered Hammel out. The father ran back to Grand boulevard, found his wife and told his story to a policeman. After 20 minutes the stolen machine was found in an alley near Winnebago and Louisiana streets. The lights were burning, the engine running and the baby was still sleeping.

RUSSIAN AND COMPANION, 19, KILLED IN CRASH IN U. S.

Victor Utgoff Was Said by Friends to Have Led Air Raid on Germany.

By the Associated Press.

REVERE, Mass., Oct. 11.—Victor Utgoff, known as "The Count" and said by friends to have led the first Russian night air invasion of Germany in 1914, was killed in an airplane crash here today in which John F. O'Toole, 19 years old, of Winthrop, also died.

The plane fell near Muller Field and immediately caught fire. The plane was flying at an altitude of about 500 feet when it was seen to go into a tail spin and crash on a marsh near the flying field. Flames prevented any possibility of rescue.

Utgoff, who was attached to the Coast Guard station at Gloucester, took an examination for a pilot's license earlier in the day at the East Boston Airport, but was turned down. Friends at the airport here, near which the accident occurred, said Utgoff had told them he was a Lieutenant Commander in the Czar's air forces at the outbreak of he war and had served with distinction. He had flown approximately 1000 hours as a student flyer.

The plane in which the men fell to their death was of dual control and flyers who viewed the wreck express the belief that Utgoff was operating it. The plane fell into a tail spin while making a vertical bank.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY INTO TESTIMONY IN NORRIS CASE

U. S. Prosecutor in Nebraska to Submit Conflicting Stories Given at Hearing Regarding Senate Candidacy of Grocer.

INDICTMENTS FOR PERJURY EXPECTED

Story of Victor Seymour, Retired G. O. P. Campaign Head in West Before Nye Committee Likely to Be Introduced.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 11.—Perjury indictments are expected to result from the conflicting testimony given before the Nye Senate Committee in its investigation of the brief and mysterious candidacy of George W. Norris, former Broken Bow grocer, against Senator George W. Norris, for the Republican senatorial nomination.

United States District Attorney Charles Sandall announced today that he and his assistant, Robert Van Pelt, in charge of the Lincoln office, have completed scrutiny of the testimony, and are prepared to submit it to the Federal grand jury as soon as it convenes. The grand jury will be summoned by Federal Judge Thomas C. Munger, at Lincoln, probably the first week in November.

Among the witnesses whose testimony the Federal prosecutors are expected to submit, are Victor Seymour, who recently resigned as vice chairman in charge of Western headquarters of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee; Miss Esther Alton, formerly his secretary; Grocer Norris, the erstwhile candidate, and Paul Johnson, Broken Bow lawyer, who acted as the grocer's personal adviser.

Seymour's Emphatic Denials.

Seymour appeared before the Nye Committee in July, and testified emphatically that he had no connection with the grocer's candidacy, did not know who instigated it, and never heard of it until he saw the announcement in the newspapers. At the same hearing Johnson testified that, although he assisted young Norris in preparing his filing papers, he knew of no inducement being offered him to enter the race, and was unaware of the motives that prompted him to file.

When the committee resumed hearings here two weeks ago, Grocer Norris appeared on the witness stand, testified he had entered the race on his own motion, without any suggestion or inducement from anyone, had prepared his own announcement, paid all expenses incidental to his candidacy, and had received no remuneration from outside sources. Johnson also returned to the stand and reiterated his former statement.

At this juncture Miss Alton was produced as a surprise witness. She told the committee of working in Seymour's office here from January to July, and of seeing him in constant consultation with Senator Norris' political enemies. She said Seymour conducted and paid for a State-wide straw vote in an effort to "find a man who could beat Senator Norris" in the Republican primary, and she told of typing Grocer Norris' announcement from a memorandum written in Seymour's hand. The office, she said, appeared to be maintained by checks which arrived at regular intervals "from the East."

Deposited $500 Checks.

Subsequently the committee subpenaed Seymour's bank records and ascertained that while conducting the Lincoln office he had deposited a succession of $500 checks drawn on Chicago and New York banks, and also a $1000 check drawn on an Omaha bank.

As a result of Miss Alton's testimony, Johnson and Grocer Norris asked to be heard again. They promptly confessed they had testified falsely on previous appearances. Johnson related that Seymour had urged him to get Grocer Norris into the race, and had given him $50, which he gave Norris, to pay the grocer's filing fee. Subsequently, he said, in accordance

BRAZILIAN REBELS REPORT VICTORIES IN ALL QUARTERS

Federal Garrison at Santa Cruz Said to Have Mutinied and Insurrection Spread to Rio de Janeiro.

RICH MINAS GERAES CENTER OF ATTACK

Government Troop Train Wrecked According to Dispatches — Number of Casualties in Doubt.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12.—Unconfirmed reports reaching here this morning were that a Federal troop train with 1000 men aboard was derailed between Sao Paulo and Santos, crashing into a ravine. The number of casualties was unknown.

By the Associated Press.

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Oct. 11. — Brazilian revolutionary sources today reported victories in all quarters against loyal troops and predicted the regime of President Washington Luis soon would be overthrown.

Rebel headquarters today stated a wireless message had been intercepted, in which President Luis was advised by Hector Penteado, former president of Sao Paulo state, to resign in order to avoid bloodshed.

Information obtained by the local correspondent of La Nacion, Buenos Aires, asserted the Federal garrison at Santa Cruz, in the State of Rio de Janeiro, had mutinied. This was interpreted as meaning insurrection had spread to the federal capital, since Santa Cruz is in the Rio de Janeiro district and is virually a suburb of the city.

At the same time the La Nacion correspondent received word from Bello Horizonte, the capital of Minas Geraes now under rebel control, that the tenth battalion of the federal army at Ouro Preto had disbanded, with its members going over to the revolutionary side.

In the meantime, the Minas Geraes rebels prepared to mass against the federals advancing from Rio de Janeiro and the southward, planning to use ten bombing planes in their operations.

Insurgents stated that a revolutionary army 50,000 strong had been concentrated in the State of Sao Paulo, near the Parana border and that a battle was imminent with Federal troops.

An official communique told today of a rebel victory last night at Sobituba, on the Santa Catharina coast. The destroyer Maranhao attempted to land federal troops at this city, but the troops were driven off by heavy insurgent fire after they had landed. With their return the destroyer exchanged fire with the rebels, then withdrew.

The insurgents immediately occupied Imbituba, the small port of which Sobituba is a part. The cities lie 100 miles south of Florianopolis, the only point now held by the federals along the southern coast.

Federals Heartened by Barbacena Capture; Start New Move.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 11.—The Brazilian Federal Government, heartened after its capture of Barbacena from a rebel army yesterday, started the victors on a new movement today toward Lafayette, in the same State, Minas Geraes.

Lafayette, which is several days' march from the scene of yesterday's battle, is the site of a manganese plant owned by the United States Steel Corporation.

While part of the Government forces are massing to the southward in expectation of a conflict in the State of Parana, below Sao Paulo, others are rapidly attempting to regain the large and rich Minas Geraes. This State, lying directly north of the capital, supplies much of Rio de Janeiro's food and is important for its railway connections, which have been interrupted by the revolt.

Federal troops at Juiz de Fora yesterday repulsed an attack by rebel State police and thus held the southern division of a railroad running northward from Rio de Janeiro. The capture of Barbacena, directly north, gave control of another section, while a victory at Lafayette, still almost due north, would open the way to another attack northward on Bello Horizonte. The latter, which is the State capital, now is under attack by the rebels. Government airplanes have bombed them frequently, meanwhile awaiting opening of the railroad line to conduct a ground attack.

The fact that another Minas Geraes railroad has been interrupted was indicated in the announcement today at Sao Paulo that the Leopoldina Railway no longer would sell tickets or accept consignments of freight on its extensions in Minas Geraes.

Meanwhile, the severing of communications in the state is said to have exhausted the gasoline supply. Private cars and trucks are unable to run in Bello Horizonte, it is understood.

Government spokesmen said today the Federal administration was prepared to spend several months, if necessary, to suppress the rebellion, and added that the revolutionists need expect no compromise.

All army and police reserves under the age of 40 have been summoned for duty, adding to the established forces and the reservists up to 30 who were called out several days ago, other additions to the land troops are made with the enlisting of volunteer battalions.

While the navy is declared in official circles to be loyal, the sea forces are being strengthened by the conversion of commercial ships. Already three have been taken over and armed—the Commandante Capella of the Lloyd Brasilerio Line, and the Itaquice and Itagiba of the Costeira company.

An official statement of successes said today that, in addition to the Barbacena victory, Federal troops in the State of Para had defeated the rebels, with other loyal garrisons fighting strongly in the revolutionary strongholds of Rio Grande do Sul and Santa Catharina.

U. S. Cruiser to Be Ready to Remove Americans from Brazil.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. — Following closely an announcement that an American warship had been ordered to stand by to take off Americans in Brazil if necessary, State Department officials said tonight the Brazilian government had assured them every effort would be made to protect American lives and property.

The announcement of the intention of the American government to have a vessel on hand in the event American lives were endangered by the Brazilian revolt was made in a carefully worded statement saying the action was taken "in view of the uncertainty as to the future situation in Brazil." The cruiser Pensacola has been ordered to Guantanamo to be near the Brazilian coast in the event it became necessary to go to one of the affected areas.

The statement emphasized that the sole object of any visit by the Pensacola to Brazil would be to take off Americans. This was interpreted as indicating the American government has no intention of interfering in any way in the Brazilian civil strife.

Assurances that the Brazilian government would make every effort to protect American lives and property were communicated by the Brazilian foreign office to the Amercan embassy in Rio de Janeiro.

There was considerable discussion of reports from Brazil that the government would seek to purchase airplanes in the United States but no official word had come of such an intention late today.

In the postoffice department, however, cognizance was taken of the revolution in a decision to defer the opening of service on the air mail route from Paramaribo, Dutch Guina, to Santos, Brazil.

Incomplete reports of the State Department gave 2763 as the number of Americans now resident in Brazil. This was an increase of 610 as compared with reports for all Brazil in 1929.

The largest centers of American residents were in Rio de Janeiro with 1255 and Sao Paulo with 1213 this year.

Federal Government Plans to Establish Foreign Legion.

MONTEVIDEO, Oct. 11.—Reliable sources tonight said that the Brazilian Federal Government had decided to form a foreign legion to strengthen the garrisons in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

Brazilian consulates abroad have been ordered to accept enlistments of volunteers for the legion.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY INTO TESTIMONY IN THE NORRIS CASE

with a telephone conversation with Seymour, he received through the mail a $500 Government bond, which he gave Norris. This also was corroborated by Norris.

As has been told, the purpose of getting the grocer into the race was to force the veteran Senator Norris to withdraw from the ticket and run as an independent. Under Nebraska law, with both Norisses running for the Republican nomination, the voters would have been unable to tell one from the other, and election officials would have been helpless to apportion the votes correctly. The scheme fell through when the grocer failed to file his nominating papers within the time fixed by law, although it required a decision by the State Supreme Court to establish that fact.

Covered by Federal Statute.

District Attorney Sandall pointed out today that there is a Federal statute which vests committees of Congress with authority to subpena witnesses and administer oaths, and establishes the crime of perjury for testifying falsely. This is the statute under which he expects to present the matter to the grand jury. Chairman Nye of the committee has furnished him a certified copy of the testimony.

It is not likely that any indictments will be returned before the Senatorial election, which will take place Nov. 4. Senator Norris is opposed by the Democratic nominee, former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock. Delay in submitting the matter is explained on the ground that the grand jury does not ordinarily meet until November.

CAPT. BOYD TELLS OF HAZARDS MET IN OCEAN FLIGHT

Pilot of the Columbia, Landing in England, Says Ship Ducked Clouds All Way From Harbor Grace.

By the Associated Press.

CROYDON, England, Oct. 11.—A rotund, grinning Canadian and a sober-faced lean Yankee set their trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia down on Croydon Field at 3:55 o'clock this afternoon (9:55 a. m. St. Louis time), completing a voyage from Harbor Grace, N. F., to London, via the Scilly Isles, in 27 hours, 3 minutes flying time.

Capt. J. Errol Boyd, formerly of the Royal Air Force, and Lieut. Harry P. Connor of the United States Naval Reserve flew their ship swiftly from Tresco, Scilly Isles, where they spent last night after a gasoline line became clogged and forced them to land.

This misfortune prevented them from drawing on a reserve 100-gallon tank in the fuselage. When they finally spotted a landing place on the small island off the southwest tip of England, they dumped this tank as a precaution against explosion in setting down.

Unable to Draw on Reserve.

Capt. Boyd said all went well with the Columbia after its takeoff from Harbor Grace until about noon yesterday, when the flyers found that they were unable to draw on a reserve tank.

"We tried the pumps," Boyd said, "but couldn't get a drop of gasoline. From then on it was a race with a dwindling fuel supply, for we realized that our main tanks were getting drier every time it turned over."

At this point Lieut. Connor cut in: "But you brought her through Errol."

Reminded of War Adventure.

Boyd said that, in view of the dwindling gasoline, he tried to line up with an ocean vessel "just in case." As he made this statement he caught sight of A. E. Priese, who was a mechanic in the Royal Air Force while Boyd was flying night bombers to Zeebrugge. They shook hands and Priese reminded Boyd of the night the latter was shot down over Zeebrugge, but glided to Dutch territory and was interned. The aviator later escaped and returned to England for more war-time flying.

Returning to his recital, the Canadian flyer said the Columbia ducked clouds virtually all the way over, flying near the water at times and at others going as high as 12,000 feet to escape fog and rain. At the same time the higher altitudes permitted Connor to reckon their position. Because of terrific cross winds, which Boyd said reached 60 miles an hour, the plane was blown south of its chartered course.

After seeing the plane was stowed away they went to a hotel with Levine, who lent them the Columbia. Tomorrow they plan to visit the grave of the R-101 victims, buried today at Cardington.

Boyd's first act after completing formalities was to call his home in Montreal for a talk with his mother, wife and four daughters.

This was the second trans-Atlantic voyage of the ship in which Clarence Chamberlain and Charles A. Levine crossed the sea three years ago. The ship has the same engine and same propeller as on the previous flight.

Levine, passenger on the Columbia's first voyage, now a pilot himself, was first to greet the two men who followed his path across the Atlantic. There were thousands of persons on the field as the Columbia hove in sight, among them many Americans.

May Continue Flight to Australia, Capt. Boyd Says.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—"We may go on to Australia, but we don't know for sure until tomorrow," Capt. Erroll Boyd said today over the long-distance telephone from Croydon, England.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 11.

THIS is the month when many localities are replenishing their community chests. In some respects this will not be so easy this year as at other times because some people will feel it is more difficult to make contributions. But from another angle it will be easier because everyone will realize that the needs for the coming winter will be greater. The calls on all kinds of charitable institutions will be increased and more money must be furnished to meet them.

While there has been depreciation in many classes of property, the fixed income from investments has been little impaired. This country has resources that must be used to give the necessary charitable relief to those in need. Contributions to the various community chests in the coming canvass should be measured, not so much by the present prosperity of the giver, as by the requirements of the situation.

Accumulated wealth will be of very little value to society unless it voluntarily comes to the rescue in time to prevent public suffering. It must be demonstrated again that the surpassing generosity of the people of the United States will not fail.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

CONVERSION OF BANK FUNDS ALLEGED; TWO ARE ARRESTED

State Representative C. I. Murry and T. L. Freed Indicted in Macon County.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Mo., Oct. 11.—Clyde I. Murry, Representative in the Legislature from Macon County, living at Elmer, today was served with a warrant based on a grand jury indictment charging him with conversion of $5198.17 of funds of the Elmer Exchange Bank. Murry was caishier of the bank at the time of the alleged conversion.

A similar indictment also was issued against T. L. Freed, former vice president of the bank, and he also was served with a warrant.

Each of the men pleaded not guilty and gave a bond for $1000 for appearance at the December term of court here.

Murry was a candidate for renomination as Representative on the Democratic ticket at the recent primary, but was defeated by Elmer O. Jones of La Plata. Freed is a prominent farmer and stock raiser.

Shot to Death by Brother.

Witness Says Fire, Not Explosion, Caused Deaths.

By the Associated Press.

BEAUVAIS, France, Oct. 11.—Georges Rabouille, who says he is the only person who saw the crash of the British airship R-101 near here Sunday, asserted today the victims were not killed by an explosion when the airship struck the ground but were burned to death.

Rabouille said he was only 100 yards away when the disaster occurred and declared that when the dirigible burst into flames he heard people in the wreckage crying for help. He added that he became frightened and ran away.

297 State Road Bids Received.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11.—The State Highway Commission today received 297 bids from contractors on constuction of 89 miles of state highways. Cost of the construction was estimated by highway department engineers to be $1,500,000. Contracts will be awarded at the next meeting of the commission Tuesday. The bids covered 33 projects in 19 counties, comprising 76 miles of gravel surfacing, and 13 miles of graded earth roads, which will be hard surfaced later.

COSTE AND BELLONTE TO TAKE $75,000 HOME

In Addition to Easterwood Check, Flyers Will Get Remainder of Good-Will Fund.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. — When Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Maurice Bellonte sail for France Oct. 17 they will take with them almost $75,000, a striking contrast to Coste's first flight to America two years ago when he and Joseph Lebrix, companion of his four continent flight, were found to be practically penniless.

The French flyers will get $25,000 from William E. Easterwood of Dallas, Tex., for making the first flight from Paris to Dallas, by way of New York. And they will get almost $50,000 for the good-will tour about the country which they completed yesterday.

When the good-will tour was arranged at the instigation of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and others, a flight committee was formed, which put up $50,000, the unexpended part of which was to be turned over to the flyers after completion of the tour.

It was learned today that expenses of the 25-day tour over 30 states were very slight because in almost every instance the expenses were taken care of locally. Audit of the costs had not been completed today but it was though total expenses to be deducted from the $50,000 would be less than $3000.

No statement has been made as to division of the money between Coste and Bellonte. The Easterwood check is made out to the flyers jointly and must be indorsed by both. The good-will money will be turned over to Coste as leader of the expedition and what portion goes to Bellonte will be decided by him.

Mechanics today took apart and packed the Question Mark, preparatory to shipping it on the same liner that will carry the French flyers home.

ADMITS HE STRANGLED BOY TO DEATH NEAR DUBUQUE, IA.

Joseph Ollinger, 22, Confesses Killing Lad on Way to Play Football.

By the Associated Press.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Oct. 11.—Joseph Ollinger, 22 years old, confessed tonight, police said, that he strangled to death Earl Fuller, 12, whose body was found Sunday morning in the flats near the Mississippi River. Ollinger, under a heavy guard, is held in the city jail, in front of which a crowd formed.

The Fuller boy went with several companions last Saturday night to play football near his home. His body was found in a clump of willows. A wire drawn about the neck had caused his death. Clothing had been torn from the upper part of his body and the face disfigured.

URGES HOOVER LEAD SPENDING CAMPAIGN

Economist Suggests "Anti-Hoarders" Society as Means of Ending Depression.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—All would be well in the business world and unemployment soon would be relieved if a plan sponsored by Indexograph of Chicago were adopted and promoted by President Hoover, according to George C. Bulloch, economist for the publication.

The plan briefly, as described in a telegram sent today to President Hoover by Bulloch, is for the Government to use "subtle force" to compel normal spending by the people and discourage hoarding. The author cites the pressure used by the Government during the war to bring about the purchase of Liberty bonds, contributions to the Red Cross, abstinence from certain foods, and compliance with other measures necessary for the successful conduct of the war.

Under the plan there would be created a national society of "anti-hoarders," sponsored by the President. Bona-fide members doing their part in the liberal spending deemed necessary for a business revival would be given a pin or emblem to wear, and social and business ostracism would be built up against those without the emblem.

Five steps are set forth in Bulloch's Indexograph plan:

First, the President should issue a proclamation declaring the unemployment situation to be a national crisis, urging normal spending by every employed person, condemning hoarding of money, and calling for funds to be used for relief of the destitute.

Second, promotion of a national "anti-hoarding society" through the American Legion, the membership to be $1 or more and the proceeds to be used by the Legion and the President for the unemployed most urgently in need of relief.

Third, the "anti-hoarders" memberschip to be evidenced by a pin which would be a badge of honor just as was the Red Cross membership emblem during the war.

Fourth, a nation-wide campaign through the press to bring opprobrium upon those not members of the "anti-hoarders" society.

Fifth, a broad appeal to the whole country to end the prevailing "buyers' strike" upon the grounds of loyalty and patriotism.

"If based on a question of patriotism, this constructive phychological force will gain momentum more rapidly than has the force of fear, greed and cowardice," says Bulloch's telegram. "The mob will be forced to act. The buying wave resulting from forced action would quickly end the economic depression."

After which the patient would be cured and prosperity would return, according to the Indexograph economist.

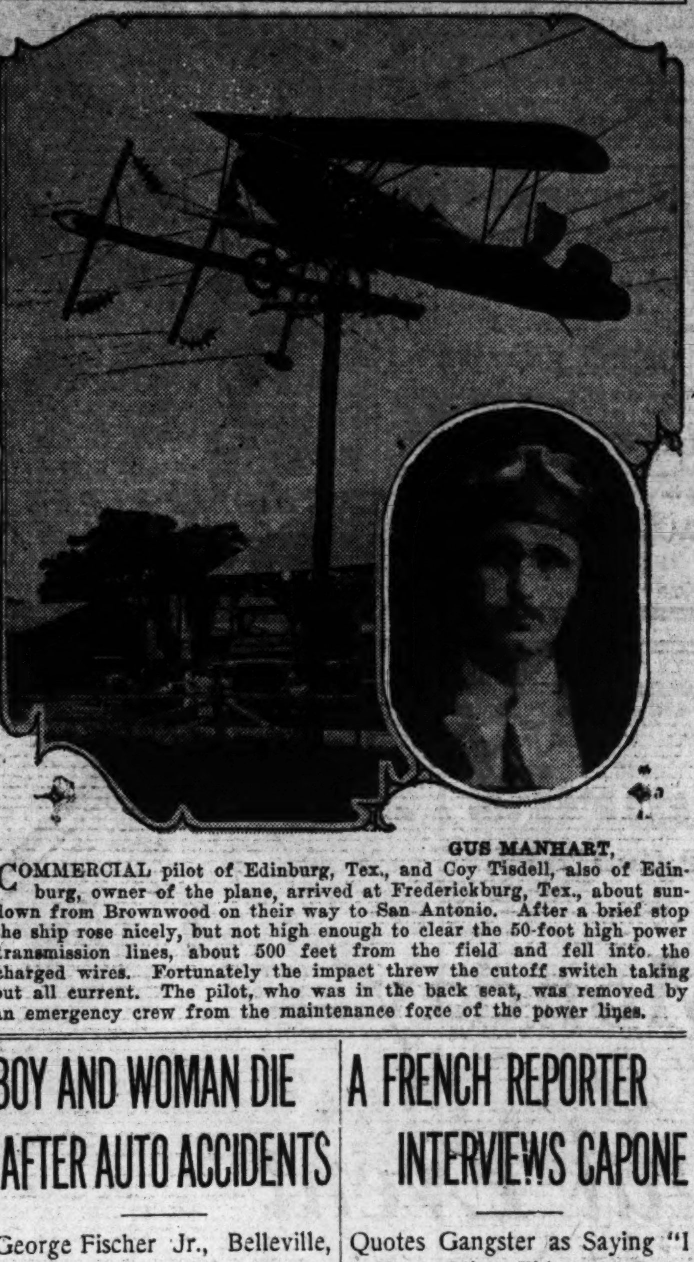
Plane Hits Power Line; Pilot Unhurt



GUS MANHART.

COMMERCIAL pilot of Edinburg, Tex., and Coy Tisdell, also of Edinburg, owner of the plane, arrived at Fredericksburg, Tex., about sundown from Brownwood on their way to San Antonio. After a brief stop the ship rose nicely, but not high enough to clear the 50-foot high power transmission lines, about 500 feet from the field and fell into the charged wires. Fortunately the impact threw the cutoff switch taking out all current. The pilot, who was in the back seat, was removed by an emergency crew from the maintenance force of the power lines.

GAMIST SOUGHT AS WIFE-SLAYER SEEN IN ARKANSAS

George W. E. Perry, Hunted for Wisconsin Killing, Reported in Hot Springs Friday.

WED FIVE TIMES IN NINE MONTHS

He Had One Story for All, That He Was Heir to Wealth but Needed Cash for Immediate Needs.

The trail of George W. E. Perry, accused in Wisconsin of the murder of one of his five wives, led to the Southwest last night, when it was reported from Hot Springs, Ark., that he had been seen there Friday evening by two men who knew him personally.

Police have questioned a garage man, 20 miles south of Hot Springs, who identified a newspaper photograph of the fugitive as that of a man who stopped late Friday for repairs, saying that he was a casket salesman bound for Dallas, Tex. The man drove back to Hot Springs for parts at about the time Perry is said to have been seen there.

Since he disappeared from St. Louis Wednesday, after marrying one woman while he courted another, Perry has been sought in Southern Illinois on a report that he had been put off a train at Anna, Ill., after asserting he had a pass which he could not produce, and at Blytheville, Ark., where he courted two women before coming to St. Louis in September.

Perry is said to have an aunt in Hot Springs, where he was seen several times during the past summer. In courting various women, he has described previous wives as his "aunts."

Tried to Get Her to Sell Home.

The latest Mrs. Perry to appear is Mrs. Lida Davidson Downey, 47 years old, of Eldorado, Ill., who said yesterday that she married him Aug. 16 at Carmi and started on a honeymoon. Returning to her home a few days ago she said she had not seen Perry for seven weeks but declined to say where she had been in the meantime.

Mrs. Downey denied she had given Perry any money, although she said he tried to persuade her to sell her home to raise money to maintain them until he received $879,000 which he said had been bequeathed him by his father on condition that he marry.

After abandoning Mrs. Downey, Perry appeared at Blytheville, where he had been known for two years, driving the tan-colored sedan, which had belonged to his murdered third wife, Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett of Chicago. Apparently without funds, he parked in the street and slept in the car until Sept. 9 when he borrowed $150 leaving the car as security, and left the town.

Fast Work in St. Louis.

Sept. 17 he registered at the Warwick Hotel here, advertised for a traveling companion for a mythical aunt, and courted at least two of the women who answered. Last Monday he married a Mrs. Harriet Milligan at Belleville, Tuesday he pledged himself to Mrs. Dorothy E. Hagerty and Wednesday he disappeared when photographs of himself and Mrs. Hackett were published in the Post-Dispatch.

He had married Mrs. Hackett in Chicago June 16 and accompanied her to Eagle River, Wis., for a honeymoon. Mrs. Hackett disappeared and Perry left Eagle River on July 6. Later her body, with a bullet through the head and indications of strangulation, was found near the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation.

Accounts of his activities indicate that he has roamed through Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas, seeking brides, telling of his expected wealth and soliciting temporary financial aid, since June, 1929, when he abandoned his legal wife in Milwaukee shortly after their third child was born. A former railroad brakeman, he is said to have lost an eye and suffered other injuries in an accident. His first bigamous marriage was to Mrs. Kathryn Gebhardt of Cleveland, last January. She saw him last in July when he moved south from Wisconsin.

In Blytheville, where he spent considerable time after the murder of Mrs. Hackett, Perry courted Miss Dorothy Davis, 22-year-old daughter of Mrs. Clyde Davis, reputed to be a well-to-do widow, and Mrs. Myrtle Goff, a former rooming house proprietor.

"Elderly but Attractive."

Miss Davis, formerly a stenographer in the office of Mayor Neill Reed of Blytheville, told a Post-Dispatch reporter there yesterday that she met Perry in the spring of 1929, but that he did not propose marriage to her until last summer. She exhibited several letters from Perry, couched in affectionate terms. The last, sent by special delivery from St. Louis, bore the return address of the Warwick Hotel, and the postmark was dated 3:30 p. m., last Tuesday, less than 24 hours before Perry dropped out of sight in St. Louis.

"Of course, he was elderly," Miss Davis said in discussing the suit of Perry, "but he was wonderfully attractive. He was awfully well read, seemed to be able to talk intelligently about anything. And how he had traveled! Why, he seemed as familiar with Buenos Aires as he was with Blytheville."

To Miss Davis Perry made the same representations he has made to other women he courted. He told her he had only to marry and settle down to get his inheritance, and exhibited letters, later found in his effects in St. Louis to back up his assertion. He spoke of an ancestral home in Virginia, although Miss Davis conceded that he was a bit hazy as to its exact whereabouts and told her that his mother spent most of her time in Europe.

"I just couldn't make up my mind to marry him, though," Miss Davis said. "Just about a week ago he wrote me a letter asking me to come to St. Louis, but I didn't like the idea and I wouldn't go. Before that he wanted me to meet him in Memphis, but something told me I had better not go that time, either."

One Story for All.

Mrs. Goff told the reporter she paid little attention to Davis' suit because she had not obtained a divorce from her husband from whom she has been separated.

"But he had a great line," she said. "He used to tell me he was going to take me to California and vowed and declared he was going to fall heir to lots of money when he got married and settled down. He said it so convincingly I believed him, but I didn't have any intention of marrying him."

The automobile which Perry left in Blytheville Sept. 9 was seized by police yesterday and identified by its engine and license numbers as the property of Mrs. Hackett. In it were found a Chicago Motor Association card issued to Mrs. Hackett, a silk nightgown, a skirt, a woman's coat and two pairs of woman's overshoes.

During his earlier visits to Blytheville, Perry associated with gamblers, played a good game of poker and seemed to have plenty of money, except on his last visit. One night he complained to the police because a street flusher sprayed water on him as he slept in the automobile. In all of his known activities he has used his full name, George W. E. Perry.

Says Perry Borrowed Rifle Before Mrs. Hackett Was Killed.

By the Associated Press.

EAGLE RIVER, Wis., Oct. 11.—District Attorney George O'Connor of Vilas County tonight said he owned a .22-caliber repeating rifle which he thought was used in the killing of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, want ad bride of George W. E. Perry, sought for the killing.

O'Connor said Perry borrowed the gun, along with shells, from a cottage proprietor, H. W. Parker.

BOY AND WOMAN DIE AFTER AUTO ACCIDENTS

George Fischer Jr., Belleville, Hurt in Crash; Mrs. Mary Watson Hit by Car.

George Fischer Jr., 9-year-old son of a Belleville ice and coal dealer, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital yesterday of a fractured skull suffered several hours earlier in an automobile collision.

The boy was a passenger in his father's truck which collided at Jackson and McKinley streets with a car driven by H. C. Eads, civilian instructor at Scott Field. Both cars turned over. Eads and Fischer suffered cuts and bruises.

Eads gave a $1000 bond for his appearance at the Coroner's inquest.

Mrs. Mary Watson, 67 years old, 509 North Thirtieth street, East St. Louis, died at St. Mary's Hospital at 11:20 o'clock last night of a fractured skull and internal injuries, suffered several hours earlier when struck by an automobile at State and Thirty-ninth streets.

Hubert Trolard, 8310 State street, driver of the car, was held for the Coroner.

A FRENCH REPORTER INTERVIEWS CAPONE

Quotes Gangster as Saying "I Have Other Things to Do Than Kill People."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Georges London of Le Journal, Paris, recently came to Chicago to look into the crime situation and have a talk with "Scarface Al" Capone. Through Capone's attorney, Thomas D. Nash, he interviewed the gang leader in Cicero.

"Is it very indiscreet to ask you what sort of business you are in?" was one of the questions. "Oh, you cute fellow, you know it well," was the reply, as reported by the Frenchman. "America is thirsty and it is not the Volstead act which will ever quench this thirst."

London says Capone lifted his shoulders and exclaimed: "Hypocrites! Hypocrites! This country has really too many of them, I am sick of the game. There are people who vote dry and who are wet. And then there are the politicians who wear a mask of respectability and who are only crooks. They say they despise those they call gangsters, but they are glad to take their money to fatten their campaign funds. How can you expect me not to despise these persons?"

Asked about the killing of Jack Zuta, Capone declared: "I had nothing to do in the Zuta death," he answered. He burst into big laughter. "It is very simple: when the police do not find the author of a crime they say it was Al Capone. But I have other things to do than kill people. I have my business. Only people imagine that I kill. Sometimes people even write me to ask me to do crimes in their interest. A big English lady wrote me one day to offer me £20,000—how many dollars does that make?—if I would come and spend the week-end at her home and take the occasion to get rid of a bothersome neighbor.

"What do you think of the death of Jake Lingle?" the French reporter persisted. "He was a good friend. I am sorry for him. It is said he lost much money in Wall street. I do not play the stock market. I invest my money in my business, and I help the poor people."

CHICAGO BANKER SOUGHT IN INQUIRY INTO TWO STOCKS

C. V. Bob to Be Questioned in New York About Luminous Products and Metal & Mining, Inc.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The whereabouts of Charles V. Bob, capitalist and patron of aerial explorations, was the subject of official conjecture today.

Concern was first caused when Bob, who had been scheduled to fly here from Chicago, failed to arrive. Later his plane was found in a Chicago hangar, but it was discovered he had checked out of his hotel on Wednesday.

He was flown to Chicago by his regular pilot, Col. Dean Lamb. Business associates here said he had intended to return last night with Lamb and Frederick C. Russell, whom they described as his right hand man.

After articles concerning Bob were printed in the newspapers, Assistant Attorney-General Watson Washburn announced his office had been seeking Bob for several days for information concerning two companies it had under investigation, the Rainbow Luminous Products Co. and Metal & Mining, Inc.

Hunt for Bob Fruitless.

Washburn sent investigators to Bob's Broadway office today to see if they could discover anything about his whereabouts. In the office, which they said is also the office of Metal & Mining, Inc., they found Ferdinand Pecora, former first assistant District Attorney, who is Bob's lawyer, and George L. Johnson of River Grove, Ill., president of Metal & Mining Inc.

Johnson was unable to tell them anything about the company, its books and records, the whereabouts of the stocks in which it dealt or the banks in which it made deposits. He said Bob was chairman of the company and its affairs were completely in his hands. He said Russell, who went to Chicago with Bob, was the only other man who knew anything about the company.

Last Monday, Washburn said, an effort was made to subpena Bob, but at his offices it was said he had gone to Chicago. On Wednesday Pecora called on him to explain that Bob was detained in Chicago on business. On Thursday, Washburn said, Pecora told him Bob was leaving that afternoon for New York and yesterday told him Bob's plane had broken down at some unnamed place 200 miles from New York.

Investigating Stocks.

Washburn said he was interested particularly in Metal & Mining and not so much in Luminous Products, which has an office in the same building, but separate from the Bob offices. He said he had been informed investors had put $6,000,000 into the company, the stock of which once rose as high as 16⅝, once dropped as low as 3⅞, but rallied after a dividend and closed last night at 6¼.

Trading in the stock of Luminous Products on the Curb Exchange was suspended a week ago after Piperno & Co., specialists in this stock, had failed.

Washburn said every agency of the Attorney-General's office, including the State police, would be utilized in a search for Bob and Russell. When they were found, he said, they would be served with subpenas calling for their presence forthwith.

FATAL FALL HELD ACCIDENT

Inquest Conducted in Plunge of Doctor's Wife From Window.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the death of Mrs. Emma B. Holdenried, 57 years old, wife of Dr. William E. Holdenried, who fell Friday from a second-story window at her home, 616 Kingshighway Park. Death resulted from a fractured skull.

Miss Laura Holdenried, a daughter, testified she was assisting her mother in house cleaning, when Mrs. Holdenried knelt on a window seat to remove a screen. In pushing the screen Mrs. Holdenried lost her balance and fell to a concrete walk 15 feet below, the daughter testified. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the residence.

NURSE KEPT ALIVE BY "LUNG MACHINE" GIVES INTERVIEW

Miss Frances McGann Promises "to Stick Around Awhile"; Condition Improved.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Miss Francess McGan, 25 years old, the St. Luke's Hospital nurse who has breathed with the aid of a "lung machine" for 30 days, today gave her first interview. She said: "I think I'll stick around a while."

She lay with only her head outside the Drinker respirator, which is shaped like the fuselage of a small airplane. Extending from the machine and around her neck was a rubber bib, resembling an oversized football bladder, which rose and fell with the suction and expulsion of air.

Her black eyes were bright, her skin had a healthy glow and her face dimpled in smiles as she chatted with reporters, her voice rising above the gentle whir of the throbbing machine motor.

"She is healthy-looking — she doesn't look like an invalid," one camera man whispered.

The machine has dropped to two centimeters of pressure. When her lungs were weakest, after the first sudden attack of infantile paralysis, the pressure was 18 centimeters. The Drinker motor will stop automatically when she recovers the full use of her lungs.

CAR STOP PETITION DENIED

Service Board Rejected Beach Avenue Residents' Plea.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11. — The Public Service Commission today denied a petition of persons residing on Beach avenue, St. Louis, for reinstatement of a street car stop on the Hodiamont line at Beach avenue.

The petitioners asserted they were inconvenienced by having to walk through an alley to the nearest stop at Hamilton avenue and said several persons had been held up at night in the alley, which was inadequately lighted. The commission said the greater number of persons would be benefited by omission of the stop, but ordered the Public Service Co. to properly light the alley.

15,000 ATTEND DAIRY SHOW ON DAY OF OPENING

last night. One girl said she entered because she would have to be in the wheat field if she remained at her Indiana home.

The Women's Home Exposition, which occupies the mezzanine floor of the main building, includes exhibits of everything from fancy work to dishpans. Political organizations are represented by booths and the booths of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which advocates the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, are not far apart.

Largest Family Contest.

Competitive events at the women's exposition include a baby show and a "largest family contest."

One of the principal exhibits in the cattle exhibition buildings consists of a herd of 10 Ayrshires, with a herd annual average of 12,800 pounds of milk and 521 pounds of butter fat.

Numerous signs describe the various entries, including such legends as "Behold the Queen." But the cows chew their cuds placidly, ignoring the passing throng.

The pet show is signalized from afar by a cackle, quack and gobble as hundreds of fowl greet passersby. One big rooster, drowsy after a day of inspection, awoke under the glaring arc lights last night and began to crow, heralding the dawn.

Tomorrow has been designated officially as All State day, College Students' day and Illinois-Missouri Mayors' day. The cattle judging contests will begin at 7:30 a. m. and there will be something on the program until 10 p. m.

Don't let a Cold Settle in your System!

KEEP your bowels open during a cold. Only a doctor knows the importance of this. Trust a doctor to know best how it can be done.

That's why Syrup Pepsin is such a marvelous help during colds. It is the prescription of a family doctor who specialized in bowel troubles. The discomfort of colds is always lessened when it is used; your system is kept free from the poisons and acid wastes. The cold is "broken up" easily.

Whenever the bowels need opening, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sure to do the work. It does not gripe or sicken; but its action is thorough. It carries off all the waste and poisons; helps your bowels to help themselves.

Take a spoonful as soon as a cold starts, or the next time coated tongue, unpleasant breath, or a bilious, headachy, upset condition warns of constipation. Give it to the children during colds or whenever they're feverish, cross or upset. It is harmless, contains only laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other helpful ingredients.

The way it tastes and the way it acts have made Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the largest selling laxative in all drug stores!

FORMER ST. LOUIS CITY COLLECTOR DIES

JAMES HAGERMAN JR.

JAMES HAGERMAN JR. DIES IN WASHINGTON

Former St. Louis City Collector and Circuit Clerk Suffers Stroke of Apoplexy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—James Hagerman Jr., 56 years old, former City Collector and Circuit Clerk of St. Louis, died today in his law office in this city of a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Hagerman was Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue under Commissioner Daniel C. Roper in the Wilson administration. He was in charge of estate and capital stock taxes. Eight years ago, leaving the Government service, he entered law practice with Roper and others.

The funeral will be held here Monday morning. Mr. Hagerman, who was a widower, is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Frederick P. H. Siddons, Mrs. Charles E. Conner and Miss Jamie Hagerman, and by a brother, Lee Hagerman of St. Louis. His father, who was general counsel for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, died in 1913.

Mr. Hagerman, born in Keokuk, Ia., came to St. Louis a young man and took his law course here, then went into the Missouri-Kansas-Texas legal department, where he remained until he was elected, in 1905, to the office of City Collector. Elected as a Democrat, he served through Mayor Wells' second term. His record showed an unusually large increase in collections, accompanied by a large reduction in the cost of collection.

In 1916, Gov. Major appointed Mr. Hagerman Circuit Clerk to fill a vacancy. He endeavored to hold the office past the fall election, but the courts seated Nat Goldstein, who was elected on the Republican ticket, and whom Mr. Hagerman had removed from the position of chief deputy.

Mr. Hagerman was one of the owners of the Park (now the Pershing) and Shenandoah Theaters when those houses were the homes of a dramatic and a musical stock company which alternated at the two theaters.

CATALOGUE OF BALLARD RUGS TO BE PUBLISHED

Elaborate Book of Oriental Collection to Cost About $15,000.

An elaborate catalogue of the collection of Oriental rugs donated to City Art Museum by James F. Ballard, noted collector of New York and St. Louis, is in preparation. Plans call for a book which will be an example of the art of printing as distinguished as the collection of rugs is in the art of weaving.

The edition is limited to 1000 copies, which will be printed by the Yale University Press on handmade rough paper of antique finish. Arthur Jaffe of Vienna, Austria, recognized as one of the outstanding color engravers of modern times, is in St. Louis for the preliminary engraving work. The catalogue will be finished in his shops in Vienna.

The cost of publishing the book, about $15,000, will be met by Ballard. He will write the preface and foreword. About 300 copies will be distributed to museums and schools and the remainder will be offered for sale. The book will contains about 200 pages, 9 by 12 inches in size.

Each of the 72 rugs in the collection will be reproduced on a full page of the book and 12 are to be shown in full colors.

The engraving process to be used, both in monochrome and full color illustrations, is the most accurate possible, as no screen is used. The impressions will be made from gelatine plates, from five to six impressions being required for each color print. The Medici prints of paintings of old masters, which are distributed throughout the world, are made by the same process.

It is expected the book will not be available for distribution until next fall.

MISSOURI CITIES REFUSE 'HURRY-UP' GAS FRANCHISES

Instead Group Is Acting in Unison to Study Contracts to Find Most Advantageous System.

D. C. ROGERS LEADS IN PLAN FOR SURVEY

Fayette City Attorney Discusses Facts Which Have Been Brought Out Already by Inquiry.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FAYETTE, Mo., Oct. 11.—The refusal of a number of Central Missouri cities to be hurried into granting natural gas franchises has resulted in a co-operative movement for a study of the situation with the view of obtaining gas on the most advantageous terms.

Daniel C. Rogers, city attorney of Fayette, is the central figure in the movement, having been selected by a tenative group organization to do the work of collecting and disseminating information, because of his early interest and initiative in making investigations in behalf of his own city.

Cities represented in the tentative organization besides Fayette are Louisiana, Columbia, Fulton, Centralia, Slater, Vandalia, Sturgeon, Mexico, Moberly, Richmond, Higginsville, Jefferson City, California, Boonville and Marceline.

Rogers related to this writer how most of the cities have resisted the pleas of franchise applicants, sometimes made with great urgency, and are deliberately considering the question of future policy.

Information on Contracts.

By authority of the tentative organization Rogers has published and distributed a bulletin containing drafts of two forms of contracts for natural gas, one for a municipal distribution system, and the other for a franchise to a private company. The municipal ownership contract provides for construction of a distribution system by a contractor to be paid for by the city in a reasonable time, probably 10 years, out of earnings. Some large construction companies have expressed willingness to build plants on these terms, Rogers said.

"When the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. first proposed to run its pipe line through this section," Rogers said, "several franchise applicants soon appeared. Some were plainly promoters hoping to grab up franchises and later sell them. In Fayette and some other cities the Missouri Power and Light Co. applied, and at first represented that natural gas could be had only from it because it had an exclusive contract to buy gas from the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line.

"Under the urging that quick action was necessary to get gas for Fayette our Council submitted a franchise to popular vote on June 30. Before the election, investigations made by Mayor George Todd and myself convinced us there was no hurry and we published an appeal, in which several Councilmen and citizens joined, for defeat of the franchise. The voters followed our advice and we are still free to negotiate."

Seeking Nearer Markets.

The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line, referred to by Rogers, is under construction from Amarillo, Tex., to Indianapolis: It will have a capacity of 180,000,000 cubic feet a day. It will cross Missouri by way of Warrensburg, Boonville, Mexico and Louisiana. Its projected route across Illinois is by way of Springfield, its first large market. The next large market available to it would be Indianapolis, a city much closed the gas fields of Kentucky than those in Texas tapped by the Missouri-Kansas line. As the cost of transmission is considerable, the Missouri-Kansas company is known to be seeking markets nearer its source of supply and is thought to have an eye on the St. Louis area.

"After we defeated the franchise," Rogers continued, "we were approached by Thomas F. Bowdern of St. Louis, who said he was organizing a company to distribute gas and could buy it from the Missouri-Kansas line. We learned that Bowdern did in fact represent the pipe line people, but we were not in a hurry to deal with him, and since then the pipe line company has stated its willingness to sell gas to the city if we decide to build our own distribution system.

"Mayor R. P. Price of Centralia suggested a meeting of representatives of interested cities and a meeting was held Aug. 20 at Columbia. It was attended by Bowdern and representatives of the Missouri Power and Light Co., and E. J. McGrew and associates, all in quest of franchises. We understood that E. J. McGrew and associates were acting for the Gas Service Co. of Kansas City, a subsidiary of Cities Service Co., the Doherty organization furnishing natural gas to Kansas City.

"This meeting authorized the compilation and distribution of the bulletin I have issued containing the drafts of proposed contracts. A second meeting was held at Jefferson City Sept. 11 at which the text of the bulletin was presented, and approved.

No Exclusive Contracts.

"Since that time there have been some favorable developments. The Missouri-Kansas company has denied having any exclusive contracts limiting sale of its gas to any one party in this territory and has informed us it will sell to municipalities wishing to do their own distributing.

"Then the Gas Service Co. has told us its plans contemplate a pipe line through Central Missouri and that the Missouri-Kansas project is competitive with its own. Some of us believe it advisable to learn more about the plans of this company before tieing ourselves up."

The Cities Service interests, represented by the Gas Service Co., have recently completed a natural gas pipe line into Sedalia. Cities Service is known to have under consideration extension of this line to Marshall, Glasgow, Fayette, Columbia and Fulton. If this extension should be built the line would approach within striking distance of the big market of metropolitan St. Louis.

Cities Service is interested in the projected line from Amarillo, Tex., to Chicago. That main line, to be about 1000 miles long, will not pass

C. & A. HEAD SAYS IT DOES ALL BUYING ON RECIPROCAL BASIS

W. G. Bierd Testifies at Chicago at I. C. C. Inquiry Into Railroad Rebating.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—William G. Bierd, President and Receiver of the Chicago & Alton Railroad, testified today at an Interstate Commerce Commission inquiry into rebating that his line did all purchasing on a reciprocal basis. The Commission is endeavoring to learn whether the railroads use discriminatory methods in buying from manufacturers in return for shipping freight.

"We do all purchasing on a reciprocal basis," Bierd said. "We believe it is the proper thing to do. It is the basis of the business world and we can't see how we can do anything else."

He said the railroads, in paying more for coal than necessary in some instances, for example, had put many coal operators on a self-sustaining basis and augmented the tonnage business of the coal shippers.

DRY VIOLATOR SENT TO PRISON

Admits Liquor Offense for Fourth Time in a Year.

Frank McLaughlin, arrested a year ago at 4827 Delmar boulevard, pleaded guilty of liquor possession, for the fourth time since then, before Federal Judge Davis yesterday.

He was sentenced to imprisonment for a year and a day at Leavenworth and fined $1000.

EAST ST. LOUIS GIRL WEDS ITALIAN COUNT

Mary Kelley, Former Advertising Writer, Informs Friends of Marriage Last April.

Miss Mary Kelley, East St. Louisan, formerly an advertising writer for a St. Louis furniture store, is now the wife of Count Carletto de Franzoni, son of a titled Italian who owns five hotels in Southern Europe and Northern Africa, it has been learned through her letters and cablegrams to friends.

Her refusal to accept the conventional, rather humdrum existence that seemed to be in store for her, was indirectly responsible for the young woman's meeting with the Count.

One of a large family of girls, she obtained employment, first as an advertising writer and then in a women's specialty store, believing she could rise to the position of buyer, with possible trips to New York and Paris.

When progress was slow she resigned and with only $50 went to New York, where she found work writing advertising copy for a department store. A few investments in the rising Wall street market of 1928 netted her some returns and after preparing a booklet on Europern travel for a steamship agency, she sailed for Europe that fall.

In Paris she met Jack Conley, a former East St. Louisan, and his wife. Conley, employed by a newsreel company, was looking for someone to send to Northern Africa to direct the making of a few reels on some Arab leaders. Mary Kelley got the job.

At Biskra, a winter resort for Europeans, she stayed at the hotel owned by the elder Count de Franzoni. There she met the Count's eldest son, Carletto, 30 years old, and a romance sprang up between them. No engagement was announced, but they decided to marry.

Miss Kelley came home for a short period and then went back to Europe, explaining to her friends she was going just for the ride." In Cherbourg she met Count Varletto, and they were married a short time later, on Easter Saturday, 1930. The Count wanted to come to the United States for the honeymoon, particularly so he could see Niagara Falls. Miss Kelley, however, wanted to tour Europe. They are touring Europe, but expect to come to this country about Thanksgiving.

Count Carletto's home is in Locarno, Switzerland.

MISSOURI CITIES REFUSE "HURRY-UP" GAS FRANCHISES

through Missouri, but a connection from it to St. Louis would reach a market considerably nearer than Chicago.

As to the form of franchise contained in the bulletin issued by Rogers, the latter said:

"The franchises we have been asked to vote on have been written by the utilities. We have drafted this form for consideration of cities not wishing to undertake municipal distribution of gas. One of the main features is a recapture clause which provides that at any time after five years the city may purchase the gas system at a price to be fixed by the Circuit Court."

State Would Approve Sale.

In this connection, however, it should be pointed out that any sale price would be subject to approval by the State Public Service Commission and it is doubtful if the company holding the franchise could be compelled to sell, if it resisted the court's determination of price, except at the valuation fixed by the State Commission for ratemaking. In line with past decisions of the Commission, this valuation might be considerably in excess of the actual value, as, for instance, a valuation of $63,500,000 on the St. Louis street railway property, for which the owners paid $49,100,000.

The proposed contract for a municipal system to be built by a private contractor and paid for out of earnings is based on a decision of the Missouri Supreme Court in the case of light plant engine sold to the city of Fayette on such terms, holding that such a contract does not create a municipal debt payable out of taxes and may be entered itno legally without a vote of the people. For the city of Fayette, Rogers thinks, a gas system would cost not more than $50,000 and could be paid for in 10 years out of the revenue from the sale of gas.

Question of Rates.

Rogers recommends that a natural gas franchise should not cover artificial gas. He says that in case natural gas service, once started, should be discontinued, the city should be free to negotiate a new contract for other service.

The matter of rates also stands in the way of franchises. Contracts of franchise applicants with the pipe line provide for payment of 40 cents a thousand cubic feet at the city gates. The cities would like to be in a position to benefit from any reduction in the wholesale cost of gas which might result from discovery of new fields nearer the point of consumption, but they see no way to protect themselves in this respect under franchises, Rogers said.

This subject is to be further discussed at the meeting of the Missouri Association of Municipal Utilities, Oct. 22, at Marshall, and Rogers is to be one of the speakers.

Senator Shipstead Operated on.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—United States Senator Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota, was operated upon at St. Vincent's Hospital today for sinus trouble. His physician said the Senator would be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

How Often Should Eyes Be Examined?

Carefully compiled statistics show that the average period of usefulness of a pair of glasses for adults is two years. Using the same lenses longer than that may mean a serious strain on the eyes!

Therefore . . . if you've been wearing the same glasses for longer than that, stop in and have our State Registered Optometrists examine your eyes, without charge or obligation, of course! They design lenses specially for individual requirements . . . that makes THE big difference in satisfaction!

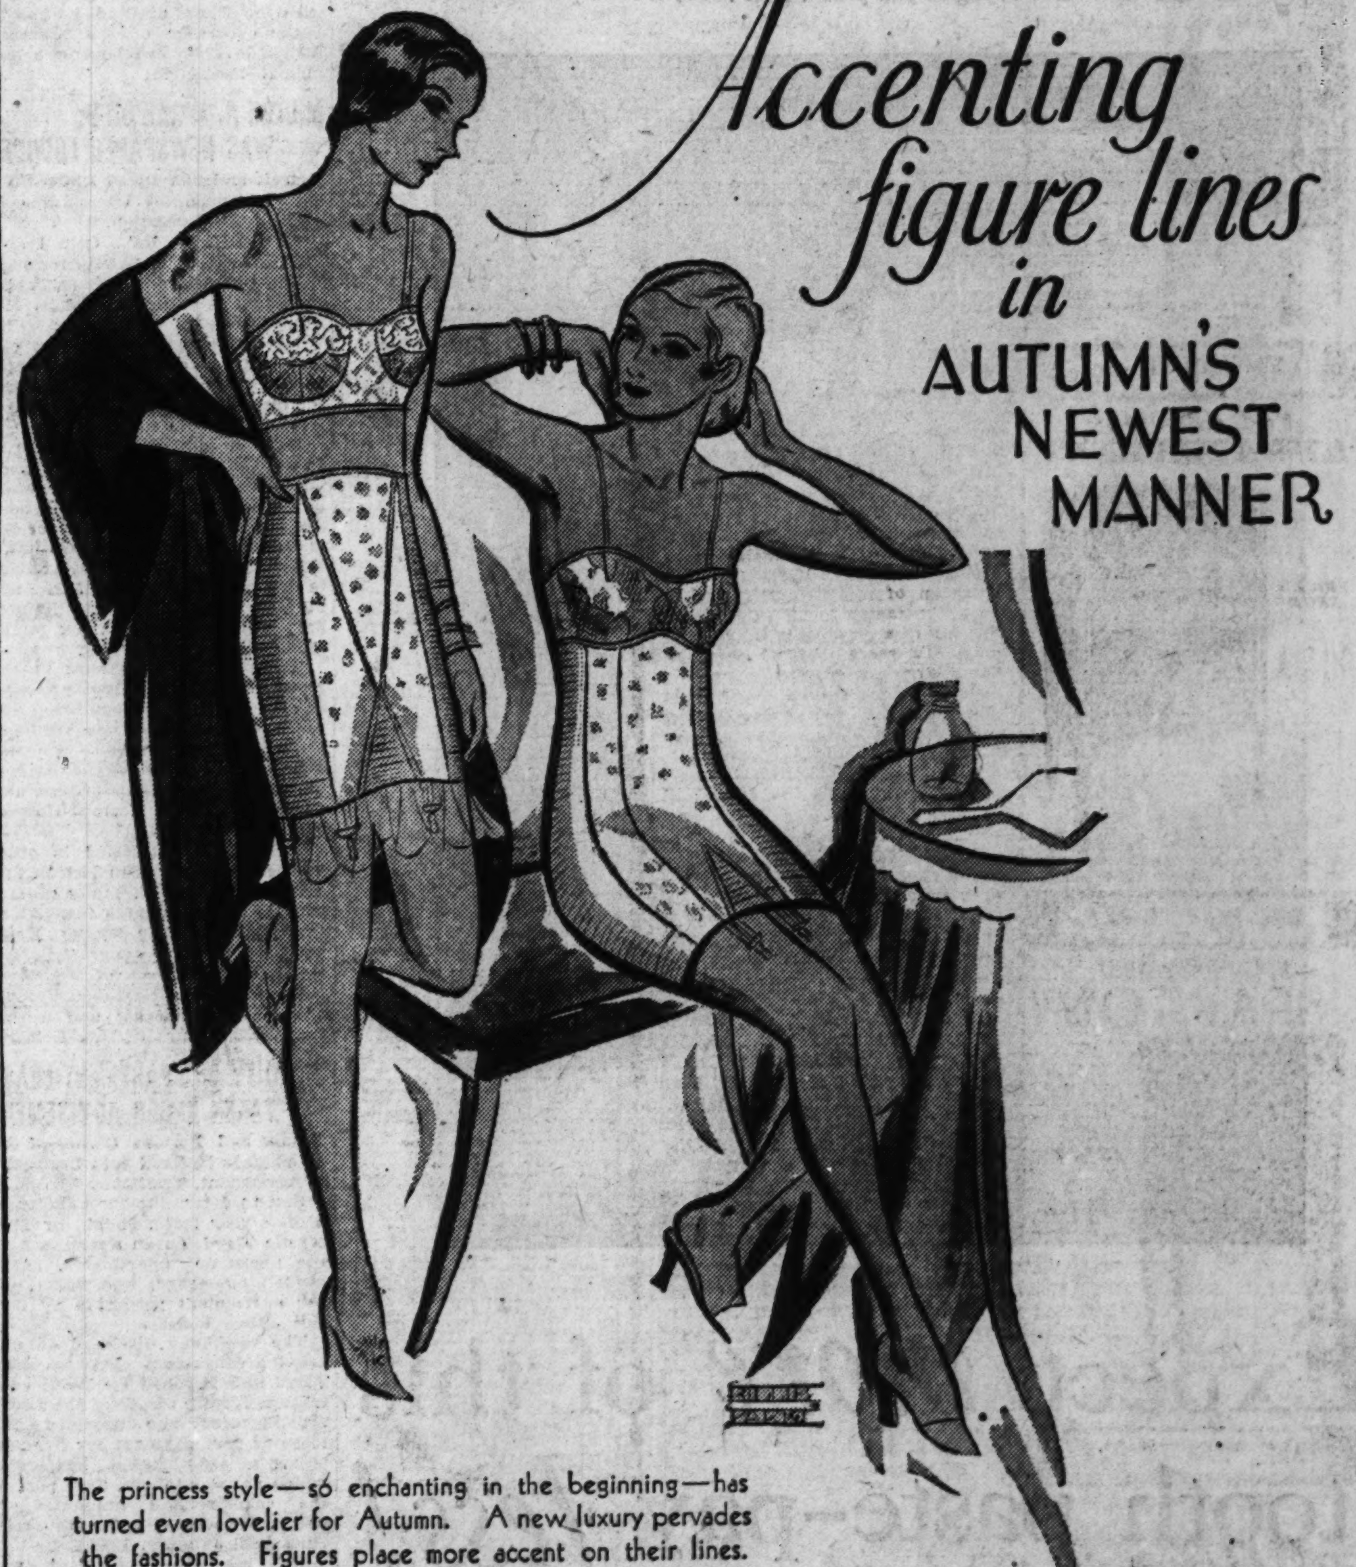
Accenting figure lines in AUTUMN'S NEWEST MANNER



The princess style—so enchanting in the beginning—has turned even lovelier for Autumn. A new luxury pervades the fashions. Figures place more accent on their lines.

Aware of this increasing elegance, Nature's Rival has provided its new Fall foundations with an unusual amount of grace. They give the effect of stateliness and long, slender lines when worn. Yet, due to their clever designing, these garments are never uncomfortable. They mould the body firmly—shape it to stylish contours—at the same time permitting a woman freedom to move as actively as she likes.

All figures, whether average or otherwise, may be fitted in these new Fall models. Two kinds are pictured above—the one-piece Girdle-Brassiere, much in fashionable favor at present, and a Circle Sash, shaped high for a slender waist and worn with a dainty lace and figured silk bandette. Similar garments in various materials and styles are available in generous number, as are also elastic Step-ins, Garter-Brassieres and Garter Belts. Ask to see them at leading stores and shops.

Military brushes for you:

You save approximately $3 a year by using Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ instead of dentifrices in the 50¢ class. Spend that saving as you please. The above is merely a suggestion.

Expect more of this tooth paste-pay less!

Now millions of critical people are paying less for tooth paste and are getting better results.

They have found that Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ is the most remarkable value in the tooth paste field. Their own teeth have told them so.

We urge you to try this dentifrice for a month. Compare its quality with that of any tooth paste costing twice as much. Note its fine satin-like texture. Note the absence of harsh soap, and gritty abrasives.

Check its results with those accomplished by the dentifrice you are now using. See how much more swiftly Listerine Tooth Paste erases stubborn discolorations and tartar from teeth. How lustrous white and gleaming it leaves them. How thoroughly but how gently it cleanses. And how it cleans, refreshes and invigorates the mouth—the feeling you associate with Listerine itself.

More than 2,000,000 people have discarded old—and costly—favorites for this quality tooth paste at 25¢. That you can purchase it at this price is a tribute to our mass buying and quantity production. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Missouri, U. S. A.

CHARLES PERCY DAVIS QUITS ART MUSEUM

Has Been Member of Staff 35 Years; Served as Acting Director for Year.

Charles Percy Davis, for 35 years a member of the staff of City Art Museum and its predecessor, the St. Louis Museum and School of Fine Arts, has resigned, it was learned last night. Davis had been curator of the museum for 16 years and served as acting director for a year following the death of Samuel L. Sherer, until October, 1929, when Meyric R. Rogers was appointed to the post.

Davis resigned, he said, to devote himself to his books and his garden. He lives at 7722 Maryland avenue, Clayton, with an older brother who is also retired. He is more than 60 years old.

His successor at the museum has not been chosen. His assistant, Barclay M. Hudson, has taken over his duties.

Davis came to St. Louis in 1895 at the instance of Edmund H. Wuerpel, now director of the School of Fine Arts of Washington University, with whom he had lived while both were students in Paris. Previously he had been an illustrator in the East.

At the School of Fine Arts he taught antique drawing. Following the World's Fair in St. Louis in 1904 the museum of the school was installed in the building in Forest Park which it now occupies, and its classes were held in a building on the campus of Washington University with which it was connected. Davis remained with the school until 1914 when he became curator of the museum, which, in 1909, had become a municipal institution.

MILTON A. M'RAE DIES; WAS NEWSPAPER FOUNDER

Detroit and San Diego Philanthropist Succumbs After Major Operation.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Milton A. McRae, newspaper publisher, financier and philanthropist, died this morning at Scripps Memorial Hospital in La Jolla.

McRae, who was 72 years old, had been in a hospital for three weeks and had undergone a major operation. He had been in failing health for some time.

Funeral services will be held in San iDego and Detroit. San Diego services will be at his home Monday morning. Tuesday afternoon the funeral party will leave for Detroit, where Col. McRae also had a home and wide interests. Arriving in Detroit Friday, funeral and burial services will be held the next day, with interment in the family lot at Elmwood Cemetery.

The publisher was born in Detroit June 13, 1858, and after receiving an academic education was married to Miss Virginia Wallis of Toronto, Ont., in 1880. He was one of the founders of the Scripps-McRae League of newspapers, now managed by the Scripps-Howard syndicate.

McRae was interested in other business enterprises in Detroit and was connected with many philanthropic and charitable institutions in Detroit and San Diego. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Helen M. Henderson of Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. Richmond Temple of London, England; and a son, Lindsay S. McRae of New Orleans.

VALIDITY OF APARTMENT LEASE TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

Tenant and Former Owner of the Leonardo Entered Into Unusual Agreement, Testimony Shows.

Suit to determine the validity of a five-year lease, held by Mrs. Myrtle Floyd on an apartment in the Leonardo apartments, 4166 Lindell boulevard, was taken under advisement yesterday by Circuit Judge Pearcy.

The testimony disclosed an unusual arrangement between Mrs. Floyd and Leonard De Bord, contractor, former owner of the Leonardo, whereby she accepted the lease as part payment for her residence at 4390 Lindell boulevard, which she sold to him. This part of the consideration amounted to $6000. The lease, under its terms, runs until January, 1932.

Last year the apartment was sold on foreclosure of $38,000 of second mortgage bonds owned by the late Marion S. Fuqua, realty dealer. He purchased the bonds from E. M. Worthington, who acquired a tract near the East St. Louis Airport in the deal. Worthington testified he did not inform Fuqua of Mrs. Floyd's least, as he himself had no knowledge of it.

PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday by creditors against Julius Lippman & Sons, clothing manufacturers, of 1315 Washington avenue.

Three New York creditors—Schneider-Hoffenber, L. & H. Mfg. Co. and Greenstone-Stern Co.—listed debts aggregating $1647, and alleged that an act of bankruptcy was committed through assignment of assets to creditors of the Lippman concern last week. Harry Gleick, attorney for the concern, declined to comment on its financial condition.

POISONS HIMSELF IN PARK

Frank Breinke Dies on Way to City Hospital.

Frank Brienke, 56 years old, a plumber, 3723 North Taylor avenue, died on the way to City Hospital last night after taking poison in Fairground Park. He was found behind a clump of bushes by Ben Meinz, 2815 Prairie avenue.

Breinke's wife, Mary, told police he had been in ill health.

SUIT TO REDEEM PROPERTY SOLD UNDER FORECLOSURE

A suit to redeem realty at 609-15 Clara avenue which they lost at a foreclosure sale was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Anton B. and Lizzie A. Griesedieck.

The sale took place last Monday, but because of business reasons the petitioners were unable to be present and protect their interests, they say. However, previously, it is alleged, they had made an offer to clear what was due on interest notes, but the offer was rejected.

At the foreclosure the property was sold for $5000 to Edward Jacob, who, it is alleged, represented the Title Guaranty Trust Co., which ordered the sale. The Griesediecks say they have a $50,000 equity and are now in a position to reclaim it.

UNI-SELECTOR on your new Radio

REMEMBER the days when starting an automobile was more trouble than harnessing Old Dobbin to the one hoss shay? Retard the spark, advance the gas, prime the motor, wiggle the gear shift to make sure it's in neutral. Then crawl out and tear your innards out turning over that dumb brute of an engine, only to have it cough and die out on you just as you had it started.

Well, you know what the self-starter did for motoring . . .

In radio, the Uni-Selector marks a similar advance towards ease of operation. No more frantically trying to manipulate several dials at once—every operation of the set is now centered under the fingers of one hand in one control.

Of course you'll want this new device. It's exclusive with Brunswick, and the new Brunswick, with Tone Control, the All-Armored Chassis, and the Rigid Tuning Scale, is the radio you'll want now and be glad to own for years to come.

BROKER, ACCUSED IN $500,000 FRAUD, HELD

W. E. Willard, New York, Arrested With Woman in Seattle on Bad Check Charge.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 11.—W. E. Willard, 45 years old, and Miss Edith M. Harrison, 30, of New York, are under arrest here charged with check fraud. Willard confessed having been sought, police said, since the firm bearing his name, W. E. Willard & Co., Inc., New York, failed in August for $500,000.

Miss Harrison went to a printing office yesterday to call for 500 checks printed on Willard's order and met Willard on a corner. Detectives followed her and arrested them. Miss Harrison was said to have been a stenographer in Willard's office. Willard is held as a principal and the girl as a witness. Police said Willard promised to waive extradition.

Accused of Defrauding Investors of $500,000.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—W. E. Willard, held in Seattle for check frauds, was trailed across the continent by a series of worthless checks, it is announced at the Attorney General's office today.

Transferring to his wife the $40,000 home where he lived in Bronxville with her and their three children, Willard vanished Aug. 4 and on the following day raiders closed the office of W. E. Willard & Co., 25 West Forty-third street. Under a shower of complaints, the company, which did a business of $1,282,855 last year, collapsed. In its 12 bank accounts was found just $45.

Willard, who started operations here in 1924, had offices in Albany, Newburgh, Middletown, Kingston, White Plains, Nyack and Ossining, N. Y., Stamford and Danbury, Conn., Aurora, Ill., Washington and San Francisco, and had large numbers of salesmen selling to small investors on the installment plan, shares in the First Illinois Co. and the First Participating Corporation, "investment trusts." He was accused of persuading investors to trade good stocks for worthless ones.

Willard's office employes had been unpaid for several weeks and Deputy Attorney-General Farrell, who conducted the investigation, could find no assets except the office furniture and a $12,000 equity in the Bronxville house, which Mrs. Willard turned over to the receiver. She and her children are liing with relatives in White Plains.

A detective left for Seattle today with an extradition warrant.

DORAN DISPUTES WOODCOCK'S ALCOHOL DIVERSION FIGURES

Asserts Statement 4,000,000 Gallons Went From Perfumery Trade Is Excessive.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The first rift between the Department of Justice and Treasury officials over prohibition enforcement since the former took over administration of the Volstead act last July took place today with a statement by Dr. James M. Doran, Industrial Alcohol Commissioner, questioning illicit diversion firgures issued by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

The Woodcock statement said 4,000,000 gallons of liquor was made in the fiscal year 1930 from alcohol diverted from the perfumery and toilet water trade. Doran said this figure was many times excessive.

He added that about 5,000,000 gallons of alcohol are produced for the toilet water and perfume trade and to manufacture 4,000,000 gallons of liquor would have required 2,000,000 gallons of alcohol, or 40 per cent of the total. He said statistics in his bureau show diversion of alcohol in 1930 from the perfume trade was small and nothing like the amount Woodcock's statement indicated.

Doran thinks Woodcock has cast reflections upon the manufacturers of perfume and toilet waters, who, he said, have co-operated with the Treasury and the Industrial Alcohol Division to prevent misuse of alcohol intended for that trade.

Woodcock declined to comment on Doran's criticism.

HAMILTON-BROWN RECEIVER PLANS PAYMENT TO CREDITORS

Amount Not Announced But He Says He Has $1,400,000 on Hand for Purpose.

Plans of William R. Gentry, receiver of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., to pay a large installment on the claims of creditors against the company, next Wednesday, were announced in Federal Judge Davis' Court today. Gentry did not say how much would be paid, but he said the company had $1,400,000 on hand to meet claims, about $1,000,000 of this on deposit in St. Louis and the rest in Boston. When the receivership was instituted last May, creditors' claims and notes amounted to more than $3,000,000.

Two companies applied for an extension of the time fixed by the receiver for filing claims, which was to end Wednesday. Gentry opposed this request, but the court granted it, saying this need not interfere with the payment planned for this week, which will be made to those who have perfected their claims. He gave a 90-days extension to the two applicants, who will have until about Jan. 15 to complete their claims.

INVESTMENT BANKERS ATTEND CONVENTION

16 St. Louisans Go to New Orleans — Henry T. Ferriss Next President.

A group of 15 St. Louis investment bankers left yesterday afternoon with several from Kansas City, St. Joseph, Mo., and Omaha, Neb., to attend the three-day convention of the Investment Bankers' Association at New Orleans, beginning Monday.

A special train carried the delegates to Carbondale, Ill., where they were joined by another group from Chicago and other Illinois cities. The entire party was scheduled to arrive in New Orleans this morning.

The election of Henry T. Ferriss, executive vice president of the First National Co., as president of the association on Wednesday is expected, in view of his selection by the Nominating Committee to head its slate. He left earlier than the rest of the party to confer with the board of governors of the association in advance of the convention.

Among those attending the convention: Walter W. Ainsworth of the Mercantile-Commerce Co.; Oliver J. Anderson of Oliver J. Anderson & Co.; William H. Burg of Smith, Moore & Co.; Lee L. Daly of Daly & Co.; Herman Duhme of D'Oench, Duhme & Co.; Thomas N. Dysart of Knight, Dysart & Gamble; Benjamin F. Frick Jr. of the Mississippi Valley Co.; Russell E. Gardner Jr. of Lose, Reinhold & Gardner; Roy D. Kercheval of the Boatmen's National Co.; John R. Longmire of I. M. Simon & Co.; Louis J. Nicolaus of Stifel, Nicolaus & Co.; H. K. Richmond of the Calvin Bullock Co.; Harry E. Stix of Stix & Co.; Kelton G. White of G. H. Walker & Co.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NEWS ISSUES AGRICULTURAL EDITION

Special Publication, Containing Articles by Authorities, Distributed Over St. Louis Trade Area.

Designed to bring before St. Louis' trade territory the advantages this city holds as an agricultural market, a special agricultural number of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce News, official publication of the Chamber, has been issued and widely distributed in four nearby states.

Articles were contributed by authorities on various phases of agricultural industries, including former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Wood Netherland, president of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis and Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis; James E. Taussig, president of the Wabash Railway Co.; B. N. Lide, president St. Louis Dairy Co.; E. F. Bisbee, vice president St. Louis National Stock Yards; John F. Case, editor Missouri Ruralist; Charles L. Hill, president National Dairy Association; T. M. Scott, president Corneli Seed Co.; C. B. Rader, secretary Merchants' Exchange; Horace W. Pote, market analyst; Arch S. Merrifield, editor Farm Machinery and Equipment; A. F. Seay, vice president Ralston Purina Mills, and H. A. Powell, secretary St. Louis Live Stock Exchange.

Articles in the publication include: "Our Most Important Industry—Agriculture," "Financing the Farmer," "City and Farm—Partners," "St. Louis and the Dairy Industry," "Marketing the Mississippi Valley's Livestock," "The City Meets the Country," "The Growing Dairy Industry on Parade," "The Seed Center of the Mississippi Valley," "The Merchants' Exchange and Agriculture," "One of the Largest Industries—Meat Packing," "You've Got to Have a Plow," "St. Louis—Center for Mixed Feed" and "The St. Louis Livestock Exchange."

Several thousand copies of the publication are being distributed to bankers, newspaper publishers, county agents and other persons of influence in virtually every important agricultural community in Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois and Oklahoma.

NEWCOMB CARLTON AGAINST WAGE CUTS DURING DEPRESSION

Head of Western Union Says Slump "Makes Us Regain Our Senses."

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The worst method business can employ in a time of depression, says Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Co., in an interview published by the Syracuse Herald, is to lower wages of employes.

The Herald further quotes Carlton, now on a business tour, as saying: "A too long continued prosperity is the worst thing in the world for American business and is the quickest and surest factor that will lead to the destruction of the business and of the present form of national government.

"It is a good thing to be set back occasionally, so that we can regain our senses and take a comprehensive view of what we are doing. Such a time as now acts as a purge to clean out the waste parts of our economic structure and give us a new and firmer foothold."

Cardinal Celebration Cost $800.

The parade and celebration for the St. Louis Cardinals after they won the National League pennant cost $800, City Register Grosse, who was in charge, reported to the Cardinal' Celebration Committee Friday. Sixty persons contributed a total of $1000 for the celebration and the $200 remaining after expenses were paid will be distributed pro rata

TO SEEK TO DEPORT ALIEN COMMUNISTS

U. S. Authorities to Act Against Two Held for Interfering With Eviction.

Warrants for the deportation as undesirable aliens of two Communist organizers and speakers, arrested by police Thursday after Deputy Constables reported that they were interfering with the eviction of a Negro at 2317 Walnut street, will be sought by immigration authorities. A third Communist, who says he has been naturalized, also is held.

The two against whom deportation proceedings will be instituted say they are Nels Kjar, a Dane, who was pardoned 10 days after his commitment to the Joliet penitentionary to serve a one to five year sentence as a result of his Communistic activities in Chicago, and Herman Schwartz, a Russian, who related that he joined the movement after coming here from Moscow in 1925.

The third man, booked as Boris Stoychkoff, a native of Bulgaria, said he was naturalized in Chicago in 1928. His record is being investigated. Five others, some of whom were carrying banners protesting against eviction of the unemployed, were released.

NEW AIR SERVICE BEGUN ST. LOUIS TO AMARILLO

Replaces Safeway Airlines Which Discontinued Operations Here Last Friday.

Air passenger service between St. Louis and Amarillo, Tex., was begun yesterday by Trans-Continental & Western Air, Inc., which will operate the new transcontinental air mail line through St. Louis.

The service replaces that conducted for the last 18 months by Safeway Airlines, which discontinued operations here yesterday. The line will be supplemental to the air mail line, which will begin operation at the end of the month. Two planes will be operated daily over the route, the westbound ship departing from Lambert-St. Louis Field at noon, and the eastbound plane arriving here at 2:05 p. m. Stops are made at Springfield, Mo., and Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Ok.

POLICEMEN SMELL ALCOHOL AND SEIZE STILL IN HOUSE

Plant With Daily Capacity of 150 Gallons Taken at 5635 Columbia Avenue.

A still of 150-gallon daily capacity, 45 gallons of alcohol in cans and three concrete mash vats were found by police in a house at 5635 Columbia avenue early yesterday.

The raid was made after Police Sergt. Harry Smith and a squad of officers of the Mounted District had detected an odor of alcohol on the street. They were admitted by a man who said he was Jack Lonnigro and who took them to the plant in the basement. Lonnigro and the alleged caretaker of the still, who said he was Samuel Labarbera, were arrested.

SEEKS MISSING DAUGHTER, 15

Woman Tells Police Girl Disappeared Last Sunday.

Mrs. Nora Wallace has asked police to assist in a search for her daughter, Catherine, 15 years old, who disappeared last Sunday when Mrs. Wallace moved from 7022 Emma avenue, St. Louis County, to her present address, 2331 Olive street.

The girl had said she was boarding near her place of employment, a laundry. Mrs. Wallace went Monday to the laundry to inform Catherine of her removal to the Olive street address, and was told the girl was not employed there. Mrs. Wallace said her daughter was about five feet seven inches tall, and weighed 119 pounds, with an olive complexion, brown eyes and straight black hair which has been bobbed but is being allowed to grow. She wore a blue serge suit, a green sweater and a small black felt hat.

Trinity Evangelical Ceremonies at 3 P. M. Today.

Cornerstone laying ceremonies for the new Trinity Evangelical Church, Grand boulevard and Itaska street, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon, with the Rev. H. T. Bahnsen, pastor, presiding.

Principal addresses will be made by the Rev. J. N. Schuck, pastor of St. Luke's Evangelical Churhc, and the Rev. Paul Press, pastor of Friedens Evangelical Church and President of the Missouri District of the Evangelical Church. The Trinity congregation, which was organized in 1893, now has a membership of more than 500.

BURGLARY IN DEPUTY'S OFFICE

Four Weapons Taken in East St. Louis Robbery.

Two sawed-off shotguns and two rifles were stolen by a burglar who entered the office of Chief Deputy Sheriff Arthur Kraessig in East St. Louis Friday night.

Two hardware stores in East St. Louis have lost firearms by burglaries in the last month, 17 shotguns being taken at one place and 5000 shotgun shells from another.

Tremor Recorded at St. Louis U.

An earthquake, described as moderately severe, was recorded on the seismograph at St. Louis University Friday night. The shocks continued for about two hours, beginning at 9:15 o'clock. The center of the disturbance was computed as approximately 3200 miles distant from St. Louis, but the direction could not be determined.

HINTS BODY FOUND IN DITCH IS THAT OF BANK ROBBER

Prosecutor at Chester, Ill., Suggests Victim Was Put to Death by Companions in Holdup at Ava Sept. 23

That one of three, who robbed the First National Bank at Ava, Ill., of $5000 on Sept. 23, was slain by his companions, was suggested by Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Schuwerk of Chester, Ill., following the finding of the body of a man, who apparently had been shot to death, in a roadside ditch near Welge, Ill.

The condition of the body made careful examination impossible. Coroner's physician, however, declared there was a severe fracture of the skull on the right side of the head, and a bullet hole in the man's cap indicates that the fracture had been caused by a bullet, according to Shuwerk. The cap, of tan material, and a short overcoat, answer the description of the clothing worn by one of the robbers. All manufacturers' labels and tailors' marks had been cut from the clothing, a practice followed by criminals, Schuwerk points out.

The clothing contained $13 in currency and a St. Louis Public Service Co. commutation ticket, issued Sept. 21 and punched several times. The man had upper and lower false teeth. His clothing was of good quality and included, in addition to the overcoat and cap, blue serge trousers, a blue coat with pin stripe, and low black shoes. A description of the clothing and of the body was sent to St. Louis police in hope of establishing identity. As near as could be judged, the man was about 40 years old, and was 5 feet, 8 inches tall. Fingerprint identification was impossible.

Investigation by Schuwerk disclosed the body was not in the ditch on Sept. 20, when workmen of a brige crew passed along the ditch. The road is one the robbers would have followed in making their way from Ava to Illinois Highway No. 3, leading to St. Louis. The point at which the body was found is in Randolph County, 14 miles from Ava, which is in Jackson County.

The body was discovered by a farmer, who investigated on noting an odor while driving along the road. Due to its condition, the body was buried in the county cemetery immediately following examination.

Prosecutor Schuwerk thinks the man was one of the robbers and was slain probably during a dispute over a division of loot. A dark stain at the edge of the road, about 15 feet from where the body was found, is thought to have been caused by blood, indicating that the killing occurred there.

SAYS G. O. P. WILL MAINTAIN WORKABLE MAJORITY IN HOUSE

R. H. Lucas, Executive Group Head, Confers With Party Workers at Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Optimism over the Republican outlook in the November elections was expressed today by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, after a conference with the party workers.

Lucas insisted the Republicans would maintain a workable majority in the House. He thought there would be little change in the make-up of the Senate, where the Republicans have a nominal majority.

"The outlook is most encouraging and the campaign is progressing very satisfactorily," Lucas said.

The conference of party leaders was described as a routine affair, but its purpose was not clearly disclosed. Among those who attended were Congressman Tilson of Connecticut, in charge of Eastern headquarters; Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the National Committee; Senator Moses, chairman of the Senatorial Committee; Earl Venable, representing the Congressional Campaign Committee, with headquarters in Chicago and Lucas. Hubert Work, the former chairman of the National Committee, also dropped in.

Hoover Message to China.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—President Hoover cabled a message of greeting today to President Chiang Kai-shek of China on the anniversary of the founding of the Chinese republic. "My fellow citizens join me," he said, "in extending to Your Excellency cordial greetings on this auspicious anniversary. We earnestly desire for your country the blessings of peace and prosperity."

Ten Thousand Wrongs—Don't Make a Right

$4.95 Each

One out of five, is the average in good singers—we mean it, we know the truth—if 20 good singers can be picked from each hundred, we consider ourselves fortunate.

We have an outlet for the culls few firms have. Of every one hundred singers sent us, at least 80 fail to pass the test. We select our birds for the retail trade—a singer from here, is a singer, a real singer—you can buy with your eyes closed—we have no excuses to offer. Our counter clerks are trained, well paid—they want to please you—they can't plead ignorance.

There is a difference between a singer that sings and the cheap Hartz Mountain singers that sing like a whistle on a peanut wagon or a funeral dirge. If you are stung with a cull and anyone refuses to take it back, we will allow you one dollar on your bird towards a real singer. If you got it here, read our written guarantee, it's bona fide, it's human, it means we want your business—from a fair standpoint, not merely your hard earned dollars—but your good will. We don't plead ignorance, we don't rush you, we don't crowd you—we want you satisfied and happy with a real song bird. Over 75% of all canaries shipped into St. Louis, yes mam—nightingales, parokeets, finches, thrushes, larks, serenaders and the many wonderful song birds, including large English canaries, are shipped to us. No truthful firm will tell you differently. We had to be good to grow so big.

CAGES—listen—common sense will tell you right from wrong—we boast because we have something to boast about. One look at our cages, one look at the prices—and lady you will trade here—not special days—but every day.

WE USE NO LOSS LEADERS TO FOOL YOU IN

Our help is not haggard, drawn and starved—they are cheerful, well paid people—who are treated as humans—and St. Louis will grow, will be happy when starvation wages are abolished. Women, it's up to you. Less foreign missionaries, more here at home in St. Louis. Gates Halfin speaking, thank you.

America's finest washer—
The No-Wringer
EASY WASHER

The new EASY Washer with its centrifugal Damp-Dryer offers these matchless advantages over old-fashioned wringing.

It takes out more water than wringing does—leaves clothes evenly damp and free from deep hard-to-iron creases. It puts no strain on fabrics—no torn clothes—no stretched woolens or cracked silks—no broken buttons. It washes, rinses and damp-dries at the same time. It is safe—no exposed rolls. A free trial in your own home will show you why this modern washer is safer, faster, easier, gentler than any other washer.

EASY offers the widest range of washer models at lowest prices. In the EASY line you'll find exactly the washer you want—and it will be a matchless value at the reasonable price asked.

Surpassing all others as a labor-saver is the famous no-wringer EASY Washer (illustrated at the left). This marvelous new-type washer presents time and labor-saving features found in no other washer in the world. Yet it costs only a little more than wringer-type washers.

But EASY also makes a wringer-type washer selling as low as $79.50—a price which anybody can afford.

And—mark what every EASY owner knows—the name "EASY" on your washer is a guarantee of long life and lasting washing efficiency—regardless of its cost. For EASY permits no skimping of quality to meet price.

Step into the store of any EASY dealer listed below and see these remarkable values.

Stokowski Directs Concert Over KSD Today

Famous Conductor to Lead Philadelphia Orchestra in Philco Broadcast at 4 P. M.—New York Philharmonic on KMOX From 2 to 4 O'Clock.

Richard Bonelli, Baritone of the Chicago Opera, Will Sing in Atwater Kent Hour at 8:15—Other Notable Network Programs Scheduled Over St. Louis Stations

Five hours of symphonic music, from 1 p. m. until 5 o'clock, and the singing of Richard Bonelli, baritone of the Chicago Opera, at 8:15 tonight over KSD, should be the great feature of today's network broadcasting.

From 1 to 2 o'clock the Roxy Symphony Orchestra will broadcast, presumably for the full hour over WLW and KYW, and for half an hour over KWK. The orchestra will play the entire Second Symphony of Tschaikowski and three pieces by Abrom Chassins.

From 2 to 4 o'clock, Erich Kleiber will lead the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in a concert over the Columbia chain. KMOX has scheduled this concert in full.

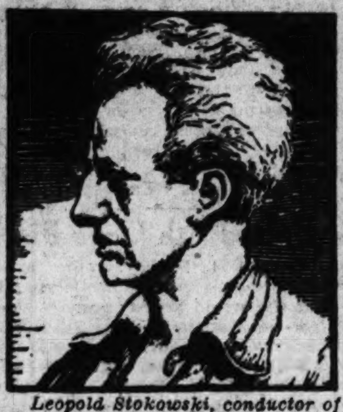
Then, from 4 to 5 o'clock, Leopold Stokowski will lead the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in a concert over KSD and other stations in the NBC-WEAF network. In a way, it may be said that Stokowski is staking his broadcasting career on the concert this afternoon. He has programmed highly impressionistic and vari-colored music by Albinez, Debussy, De Falla and Ravel, which will require conducting and broadcasting of an unusual degree of technical excellence if reception is not to be distorted.

The program includes Albinez's musical description of a holiday in Seville. The De Falla work is his "El Amor Brujo," a vivid adaptation of an old Andalusian gypsy story. Incidentally, there are vocal passages in this music which will be sung this afternoon by Rose Bampton, a contralto. The Debussy music is his "Sunken Cathedral," a weirdly beautiful setting of a legend of the Bretin city that sank beneath the sea because of the treachery of a jealous woman. The Ravel music is his Bolero, which is a gorgeous and unique essay in rhythmic effects.

Stokowski is depending for the success of this concert largely on a device invented by himself and NBC engineers, which he hopes will make it possible to avoid certain tonal deficiencies that have been noticed in broadcasting by symphonic orchestras. The device, details of which have been kept secret, will place the conductor, it is said, in a position to direct the orchestra and at the same time hear the broadcast as it sounds in the home of a listener. He believes that through its use he can adjust his interpretation of the music and the playing of the orchestra to give the finest possible effects for the listener and make unnecessary the regulation of tone and quality and volume by chain control-room engineers. It is asserted that this regulation by engineers has hitherto held symphonic orchestra broadcasting to a rather dead evenness and has prevented listeners from getting the gorgeous effects of tone coloring and crescendo and diminuendo with which conductors achieve their most eloquent interpretations.

A notable program is announced for the broadcast by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra this afternoon, including Goldmark's "Springtime Overture," Dvorak's "Scherzo Capriccioso," the full Eighth Symphony of Beethoven, and Richard Strauss' great "Till Eulenspiegel."

A new Canadian Pacific program, to be called the Musical Crusaders, will be broadcast at 3:15 over KWK. Mme. Schumann-Heink will sing in an Enna Jettick concert at 7 o'clock on KWK. Another Golden Hour from the Shrine of the Little Flower is scheduled at 6 o'clock over KMOX. Other features include Floyd Gibbon's adventure story at 8:30, a Kellogg Slumber Music Concert at 10 p. m., and the usual religious broadcasts.



Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, which, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, will broadcast the first of four concerts over KSD.

Big Tourist Business in The Ozarks

Total of $5,000,000 Being Spent in Region on Improvements, Auto Club Reports.

In the face of a sharp decline in transcontinental and long-distance motor travel during the 1930 touring season just closed, Missouri and the Ozarks resorts region this year enjoyed a substantial increase in tourist and vacation business, according to a survey of conditions in that area just completed by the Automobile Club of Missouri.

The cabin camps and outdoors character of the Ozarks, modified here and there by modern accommodations for those who take their "roughing it" in de luxe fashion, were the principal attractions of the Ozarks.

Much of the Ozark tourist business was made up of motorists from other parts of Missouri vacationing close to home in their own state as well as vacationists from states immediately contiguous to Missouri, such as Illinois, Iowa Kansas and Oklahoma.

It is doubtful if as many tourists entered the state from the outside in 1930 as in 1929, according to the club's survey, but the aggregate amount of money spent by motorists is believed to be greater by reason of the fact that more money was spent in Missouri by Missourians staying in their own state who in other years drove North, East and West for their vacations.

Last year it was estimated, according to traffic counts by the State Highway Department and all other available sources of travel information, that 6,500,000 motorists entered Missouri and brought into the state some $143,000,000.

Investigation by the club shows that all resort sections of the Ozark area handled many more guests this year than ever before, but that spending was not done on a lavish scale by any individual parties. What lacked in lavish spending was more than made up by greater numbers of motorists spending on a conservative scale.

The club's survey includes the accumlated data gathered throughout the summer by Keith McCanse, former State Fish and Game Commissioner, now editor and publisher of the Auto Club's Special Edition of "Where to Go in the Ozarks." McCanse, in connection with the preparation of his 1931 Ozark book, fished and camped from one end of the Ozarks to the other and probably talked to more campers, tourists and resort proprietors than anyone else in the State in the past five months.

"I read in the papers and talk to my guests, and it all makes me think that my business should be undergoing a depression," remarked one resort proprietor on Lake Taneycomo to McCanse. "But when I look at my books, I find I have just had about a third more business than I ever had in my entire experience."

"This was typical of resort proprietors, according to McCanse.

"Last year we drove to California," remarked the owner of an expensive car as he and his family drove into a cabin camp near Rockaway Beach. They were from Tulsa, Okla. "But, believe me, we are sepnding this year's vacation in the Ozarks. This is my second 10-day stay in this camp this summer, and we're just going to loaf around for two or three weeks longer.

That, too, was typical of scores of families found this summer in the Ozarks.

According to McCanse, virtually every dollar of profit that was made in the Ozarks this year has already been reinvested in the improvement of facilities for taking care of next year's tourists and vacationists.

"Every hot dog stand, every roadside cabin, every filling station, every rooming and boarding house, every hotel has been improved," McCanse said. "Many of the larger hotels have been expensively remodeled and expanded.. I think $5,000,000 would be a conservative total to cover the cost of improvements in resorts, hotels and other facilities being developed for taking care of the motor vacationists. In addition, approximately $15,000,000 has been spent in the last year in hydro-electric projects in the Ozarks that will contribute immeasureably toward upbuilding recreational features.

Billboards Not Scenery.

As the result of a decision of the Supreme Court of Indiana, all cities in the State have the power to prohibit by ordinance erection and maintenance of advertising billboards within 500 feet of parks or boulevards.

"One-Eye" Cars in Jersey.

The Motor Vehicle Commissioner of New Jersey is considering a plan to prescribe spare headlight bulbs as part of an automobile's equipment to overcome the dangerous situation of having "one-eyed" cars on the highway.

Dark Colors at Paris Salon

Black or Very Heavy Other Shades Used on Majority of Models Exhibited.

The Paris automobile salon shows that somber colors prevail as the most popular finish. The majority of the cars are in black or very dark shades. Other colors, in the order of their use, are brown, blue, green, gray and maroon. Red and yellow are used on a small number of cars, yellow appearing chiefly on the larger type of automobiles and red on the smaller. There is a marked absence of freak shades, according to a cablegram from P. H. Chase of the Duco Information Service.

The salon shows that French manufacturers and color experts have copied American designs in the use of what might be called composite colors.

In a minority of cars which are finished in brighter colors, very light shades are employed, as a rule. This is especially noticeable in the blues, grays and maroons.

A survey of the salon confirms the popularity of duco as a finish.

Schemes of decoration differ little from those of last year and keep to sober lines, but there is great refinement of detail. Rare woods are used widely. Chromium metal is much in vogue. Colored fenders remain popular, especially

GRAHAM SIXES AND EIGHTS • ALWAYS FAR IN ADVANCE

GRAHAM Offers this Undeniable Evidence of Leadership in Value

Graham asks everyone interested in quality in a motor car to look at this diagram—to see for themselves how much more Graham offers in value. Here, in the Graham Standard Six Town Sedan at $845, is an abundance of quality-and-value features not found elsewhere at anything like the Graham price. Make for yourself the comparisons which prove undeniably that Graham does give the greatest value in the world at the price.

The Graham Standard Six Chassis and Body

1—Rubber mounting of front springs to eliminate wheel fight.
2—Radiator grid to protect core from injury.
3—Hydraulic shock absorbers front and rear.
4—Big 12-inch hydraulic brakes, larger size than generally used in this price class.
5—Self-adjusting spring shackles.
6—High-grade lacquer finish.
7—Cam-and-lever steering gear.
8—Adjustable clutch and brake pedals.
9—Rubber-cushioned rear engine support.
10—Additional frame cross member at the transmission box.
11—Independent parking brake.
12—Shatter-proof Safety Plate Glass throughout.
13—Narrow body pillars for unobstructed vision.
14—Interior adjustable sun visor.
15—Rubber-covered, steel-reinforced steering wheel.
17—Coincidental lock, locks ignition and steering.
18—Wide door openings.
19—Adjustable front and rear seats.
20—High-grade hardware of individual design.
21—Strong, slatted roof construction.
22—Heavily-framed body construction.
23—115-inch wheelbase.

Four New Nash Lines Now Being Shown in St. Louis

Six Priced at $795 to $895, and Three Straight Eight Groups, Introduced.

Four new groups of automobiles, the lowest prices ever established by the Nash organization, are being shown in the St. Louis district by the Southwest Nash Co. and its associate dealers.

Ranging in price from $795—the lowest price yet set for a typical Nash quality car—to $2025, the new models represent distinct advancement in motor car engineering and performance.

Three distinctive Nash straight eight series and a new six-cylinder group compise, in all, 20 new models.

Each of the new Nash groups was treated as a specialized development. Engineering fitted to one series was not forced upon another. The weight of the car, the number of cylinders, size of the motor and the price field for which each series was intended, all played their part in mechanical character and design.

The New 6-Cylinder Nashes.

The new Nash six models have engines with seven-bearing crankshafts; rifle-bored connecting rods, aluminum alloy Invar strut pistons; fuel feed pump; torsional vibration damper, oil filter and air cleaner. Hydraulic shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes are standard. The engine is suspended in rubber. The roomy Nash-Seaman bodies are styled in fine car designs. Prices range from $795 factory list for two-door sedan and coupe to $845 for the full sedan and $895 for the touring car.

The new Eight-90, twin ignition, straight eight models develop 15 per cent more power than their immediate predecessors, being of 115 horsepower. Perfected twin-type carburetion, accomplished by twin manifolding and duplicate fuel jets, is a feature. Naturally, the cars' entire performance range is materially increased.

Bodies All Insulated.

These eight-90 models are on wheelbases of 133 and 124 inches. Bodies are completely insulated from the frames. Felt sealing of the floor boards and insulation of the dash panel on all sides, together with hydraulic shock absorbers and steel enclosed, lifetime lubricated springs, make further for driving ease.

Bodies on this chassis are of exceptional luxury and completeness of appointments. All body styles are of custom design and finish. Prices range from $1565 for the four-door sedan to $1695 for the coupe and $2025 for the seven-passenger limousine. There are eight body styles.

The Eight-80 line also has a twin ignition straight eight engine, developing 85 horse power. All models in this group are on the 121-inch wheelbase chassis. Bodies are distinctively styled and elaborately equipped. Downdraft carburetion. nine-bearing crankshaft with vibration damper, automatic chassis lubrication, a new easy shift transmission, are only a few of the features. The new steering system has a stabilator to ward road shocks from the wheel. Double action hydraulic shock absorbers and permanently lubricated springs are standard. Prices are listed at $1245 for the coupe and $1295 for the four-door sedan to $1375 for the town sedan.

In the new Eight-70 series, Nash has brought out one of the lowest priced, quality straight eights that has ever entered the market. Built on a 116-inch wheelbase, the new models are big cars in every respect with aristocratic new bodies.

Rich appointments include finest quality mohair upholstery, smoking sets on each side of the rear seat, smartly patterned interiorware, silver finished, moderne instrument panel.

Powered with the high compression, high turbulence motor of Nash L-head design, developing more than 75 horsepower, the new Eight-70 series is a "performer." Its aluminum alloy pistons, improved to the last degree; rifle bored connecting rods; nine-bearing crankshaft with vibration damper; ultra-modern downdraft carburetor to insure instant starting, swift acceleration and perfect motor operation, are combined with regular Nash engineering features, such as Bijur, automatic chassis lubrication, hydraulic shock absorbers and easy steering system.

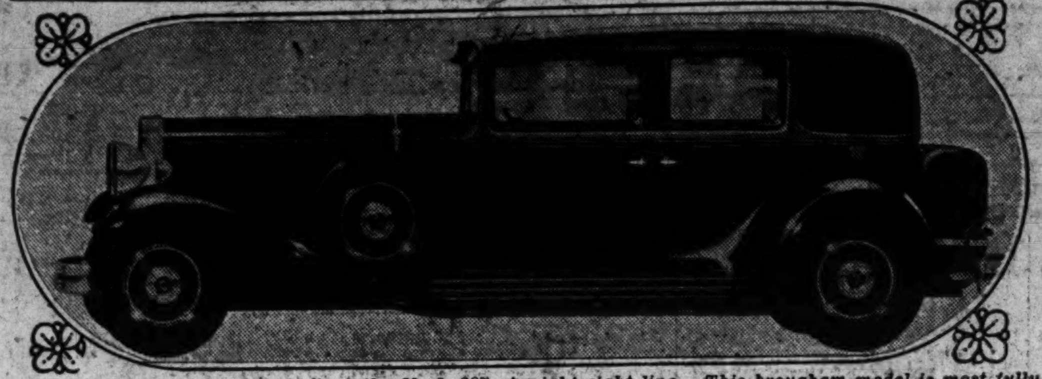
There are four body styles in the Eight-70 group, prices listing from $945 for the coupe and $955 for a special four-door sedan to $975 for the couple with rumble seat and $995 for the four-door sedan.

When using the hand brake on a downgrade, keep it from catching in the notches, otherwise the wheels are likely to slide and releasing the brake will be difficult.

Curves in the mountains are apt to be on a grade as well, and will need watching.

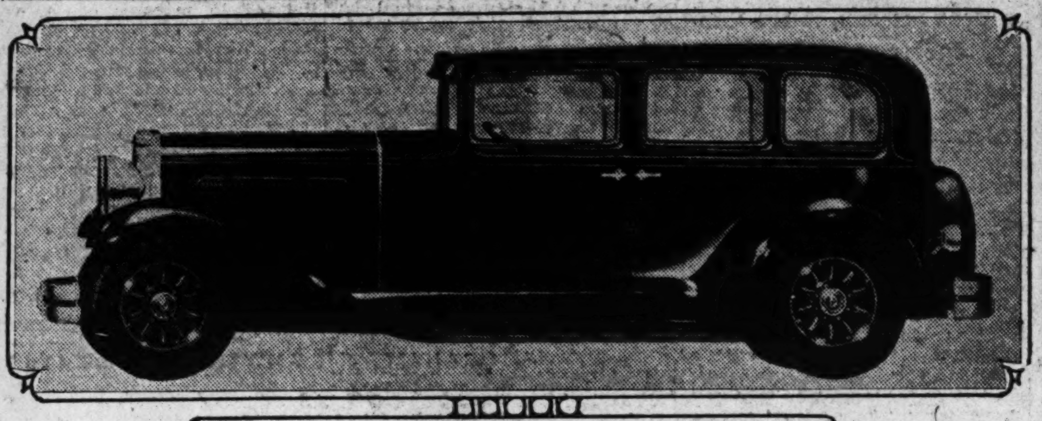
It is bad practice to choke the carburetor in an effort to help the engine pull a car over a steep hill in high, and it never proves successful.

One of the New Nash Eights



Five-passenger "Amabssador" of the Nash 897 straight eight line. This brougham model is most fully equipped.

New Low-Priced Nash Sedan



The five-passenger, four-door sedan in the new Nash 660 line. This is the lowest priced line that Nash has ever produced.

Scherm Declares Distribution Costs Must Be Reduced

J. R. Scherm, general manager of the Southwestern division of the Vacuum Oil Co. of Kansas City, with jurisdiction over Missouri, Kansas, Texas and southern Illinois, was the principal speaker at a meeting of salesmanagers bureau of the Chamber of Commerce at the Crystal Room, Jefferson Hotel Friday noon. The subject was "Transition in Marketing."

"Every form of business is undergoing a transition period in marketing" Scherm said. "This transition did not start last fall with the stock market crash but as a matter of fact, war time production has been continuously geared up with the result it has been necessary for manufacturers in all fields of business to endeavor to stimulate a lagging consumer consumption."

"Mass production implies and requires mass consumption" continued Scherm, "and mass consumption requires more widely distributed wealth. Heretofore most manufacturers have concentrated their marketing appeal on the '400.'

"I am of the opinion that the present situation is due to waste in distribution and what we need is cheaper goods, more widely distributed. The American people have reached the point where they won't be baited any more, and I am firmly convinced 'that the consumer is boss' and must be given the goods he wants to buy at the price he wants to pay. It is fallacious for manufacturers, regardless of their field of endeavor, to maintain prices the consumer won't pay. You must establish your commodity in the minds of the public at a price the public will pay. Production costs have been reduced, but distribution costs have jumped all out of proportion."

USL Battery Sales In September Best in History of Company

USL battery sales to dealers in September eclipsed by a substantial margin the best previous month in USL history, despite the fact that cold weather, which always produces a peak in the battery business, has not arrived, according to C. O. Miniger, chairman of the board. "It can normally be expected that the USL company will break the September record when cold weather arrives," Miniger said. "While buying by the dealers has been extremely cautious, USL sales up to Sept. 1 this year have compared favorably with 1929 sales in the same period. That the peak September business is needed for immediate dealer sales and not for stock is shown by the fact that a big majority of orders received call for rush shipment. USL Battery, Ltd., of Toronto, Canadian division of USL Battery Corporation, also reports substantial sales increase in 1930."

Upgrades are deceiving, especially in unfamiliar territory. Here is where the engine temperature indicator comes in handy. If its pointer continues to climb, the car is likely to be doing climbing, too.

Frequently the sensation of "wandering" with a new car is due to stiffness of the steering assembly, and will vanish when the machine is broken in.

Rodin Now Managing Director of Pioneer Auto Service Co. Here

R. M. Rodin has been appointed managing director of the St. Louis office of Pioneer Auto Service Co., 4917-21 Delmar boulevard, having been transferred from the Kansas City office of the Pioneer organization, where for the past three years he was in charge. Rodin has had seven years' experience in automobile club directing and membership welfare work, having been affiliated with the National Motorists' Association of Chicago as sales manager for four years prior to his connection with Pioneer. Since coming to St. Louis, Rodin has been instrumental in inaugurating free medical, surgical and hospital service for Pioneer members, now totaling over 30,000.

Checking of Tires as Winter Nears Urged

"Accidents due to tires are more serious in winter," says E. E. Dearth, in charge of the Fisk technical staff. "We cannot tell when a tire may skid or blow if the tread has been badly worn. Too often motorists forget to have their tires checked at the approach of winter weather with serious accidents as a result.

"Icy ruts and icy pavements and the use of chains present a very heavy strain. If tires are not sound inside and out, accidents are bound to follow. Our new Fisk Air-Flight tires, which have been built on the new 'air-flight' principle, have a specially designed tread which offers greatest resistance to skidding and strain of winter's rough roads and the long use of chains."

a total of 1090 miles of new roads thus far in 1930. This is an increase of 94½ per cent over the same period last year.

On Oct. 1 the State Highway Department had 346 active projects in various parts of the State. The contractors building these roads had 8082 employes on their payrolls. Within the next week 75 new projects will be started, mostly on farm-to-market roads, which will give employment to more than 1000 men.

In addition to the construction crews, several thousand men are required to produce cement, sand, rock, gravel and other materials essential to the building of roads. Before winter weather prevents highway construction, Missouri will have spent nearly $30,000,000 on its roads this year. Perhaps half or more of this sum is paid direct to labor.

Two Youths Motor Across Country in 1917 Car in 12 Days

In an age in which youthful endurance enthusiasts sit in trees for days, the exploit of two California youths who crossed the continent in a 1917 Overland sports roadster in 12 days' driving time is worthy of note. The boys, both of Santa Rosa, recently drove to New York.

"This car is 13 years old, but believe me it's a dandy," one lad said. "It averaged more than 20 miles on a gallon of gasoline and used very little oil. We made the trip more cheaply and more quickly than any way I know of. Some days we made more than 300 miles."

Increase of Marmon Sales Said to Indicate Definite Business Turn

Increased production and sales of Marmon straight-eights reported by officials of the Marmon factory may be looked upon as marking a definite turn in business, according to R. B. Mann of the Archer Mann Motor Co., local Marmon distributer. Mann's prediction is based on information from George C. Tenney, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car Co., that factory shipments last month were double the total of August and exceeded September of last year.

"It is generally recognized that renewed buying holds the key to business recovery," Mann said, "and the influence of the nation's industrial and financial leaders has been brought to bear on the public in an effort to increase retail purchases to greater volume.

"That efforts along these lines have been successful is borne out by the increase of Marmon registrations in the past month. Our new car sales are holding at a high level and no signs are apparent of reduced volume in the near future. From these encouraging indications, which have their counterparts in the sales reports of Marmon distributers and dealers throughout the country, it is not unreasonable to predict that resumed buying soon will be noted in all lines."

Handwork Necessary Still in Buick Plant

Despite all the marvels of science and invention there are many jobs in the construction of an automobile that still depend on trained senses and handwork. No machine has yet been devised which can satisfactorily handle the finish filing on the cam sleeve used in the new Buick syncro-mesh transmission. Skilled hands and trained eyes are necessary for this delicate task.

After the cam sleeves are turned from a heat treatment process they are turned over to a group of specialists who finish them with the same care and precision that a jeweler expends on the finish of a fine stone. With delicate instruments they measure the sleeves for any possible distortion, then finish the smooth surface with delicate hand files. This job is one of the hundred or more additional operations necessary in building the Buick syncro-mesh transmission.

Body Rebuilding and Finishing Firm Formed

R. J. Kulisch and J. Monte, who have been engaged in automobile refinishing locally for five years, have formed the Progressive Auto Body Co., occupying the entire first floor of 3019 Locust street.

The floor space of 40x130 feet makes it possible to work on 28 cars at one time. In addition to body rebuilding and refinishing, wreck work and trimming, a special department will install aerials for auto radio receivers.

with coach builders. The proportion of black to colored fenders on European cars is about two to one. American cars are showing a proportion of black to colored fenders of about five to four.

In general, it may be said that greater attention than ever is given to perfection of finish and inside decoration. Upholstery materials are beautiful, including broadcloth in plain and brilliant shades, fancy cloth materials, Bedford, pile, leather and lacquered fabrics. More cars are upholstered in rayon, or rayon and other materials, than were displayed last year. They include several German and French cars, two American cars and a famous English car.

Truck Use Survey Of Grocery and Meat Retail Business Made

Lower costs of distribution, with the general public definitely benefiting by major economies in the movement of merchandise to them, are becoming daily more apparent as a result of the series of nationwide, impartial studies by the General Motors Truck Co. of truck costs, problems and methods of individual vocations.

To these surveys thousands of business firms, operating trucks of all makes, have been contributing facts and figures from their cost records and data from their experience in the operation and use of trucks.

This was revealed in a statement by President Paul W. Seiler releasing a report covering his company's latest nationwide analysis of the delivery methods and problems of still another of the great truck-using vocations, retail grocery and meat stores, a group operating more than 170,000 delivery trucks.

The report, entitled "Delivering Groceries and Meats Profitably," is illustrated with charts, maps, diagrams and printed forms. It makes available to such stores, without charge or obligation, the complete results of this fact-finding study in handy reference form. Thus it can be used immediately by the individual store for improving delivery service to consumers, at reduced cost.

Chrysler Six Prices Lowered $50 on Each Body Style in Line

A reduction of $50 on each body style of the Chrysler Six, lowest priced car ever made by Chrysler, is announced by the Chrysler Sales Corporation. The new prices are: Coupe, $745; touring, $785; roadster, $785; royal coupe, $785; royal sedan (three-window, four-door), $795; convertible coupe, $875.

A recent reduction in prices of the "70" brought that model's price range from $1245 to $1345. That line, with the "66" and the Chrysler Six, forms the Chrysler six-cylinder group. Chrysler sixes now range from $745 to $1345; eights and Imperial eights from $1495 to $2995, and Plymouths from $535 to $695.

Babe Ruth Goes Fisk

George H. (Babe) Ruth, baseball's home-run king, while attending the world series games here last week, drove his new Studebaker President 8, into the station of Arthur A. Guenther Co., Olive and Leffingwell, and had it fitted with a set of Fisk de Luxe Air Flight tires with white sidewalls.

Detroit Tunnel Busses Will Use U. S. Tires

The tire department of the United States Rubber Co. has been awarded the tire contract for busses to be used on the Detroit-Windsor tunnel under the Detroit River. When the tunnel opens, 30 twin coaches of 40-passenger capacity will run through it from the center of the business district, Cadillac Square.

The tunnel is to be vehicular and will make the third mode of spanning the Detroit River between the United States and Canada at Detroit, ferries and a bridge being the other two.

At St. Louis A

THE opening of the new transcontinental air mail service through St. Louis, scheduled for next Wednesday, has been postponed until the end of the month, because operating schedules have not yet been arranged.

The first schedule calls for the departure of the mail from Newark Airport at 8 a. m., arriving at Columbus, O., at noon. There the mail will be transferred to a passenger plane bound for St. Louis, and is due at Los Angeles, Cal., at 8 o'clock the next evening, following a night's lay-over at Kansas City, Mo. The present T. A. T.-Maddux morning service from Columbus westward, will be continued as far as St. Louis, where the route shifts through the Southwest, through Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Ok., and Amarillo, Tex. Passengers and mail going over this route are due at Los Angeles at 3:50 o'clock the following afternoon after night's layover at Amarillo.

Eastbound planes will leave Los Angeles at 5 a. m. and 10:40 a. m., the first going to Kansas City, the other to Amarillo, where stops for the night will be made. The service will be reorganized after Jan. 1, when the airway lighting program will be completed to 24-hour schedules from coast-to-coast through St. Louis. The route from St. Louis to Amarillo will probably become permanent, providing the air mail service to the Southwest, and replacing in part the service conducted for the last 18 months by Safeway Airlines, which discontinued operations yesterday.

The new service will be operated by Trans-continental & Western Air, Inc., a subsidiary of T.-A.-T.-Maddux and Western Air Express. J. W. Brennan, in charge of the St. Louis office of T.A.T.-Maddux Airlines, has been appointed traffic manager of the eastern region, for the new organization.

Record Holder Visits City.

William H. Bowlus, of San Diego, Cal., who set a duration flight record of 15 hours, 13 minutes in a sailplane of his own design last summer, was a visitor in St. Louis last week.

Bowlus inspected prospective glider ports in St. Louis County, and was particularly impressed by the terrain near Valley Park, which he declared ideal for gliding. He expects to return to St. Louis this winter as a speaker before the Chamber of Commerce Air Board, which will appoint a committee soon to promote gliding here.

Air Line Discontinued.

After 18 months of operation without injury to a passenger Safeway Airlines discontinued its Dallas-to-St. Louis-Kansas City service yesterday.

The action was taken to make way for the St. Louis to Amarillo supplementary air mail line to be operated by Trans-continental & Western Air, Inc., and to permit the transfer of Safeway planes to the new Atlanta-Dallas-Los Angeles air mail line. Safeway will operate the latter service in conjunction with American Airways.

During its period of operation Safeway Airlines, organized by Erle Halliburton, Texas oil promoter, carried approximately 40,000 revenue passengers. For the last six months two planes daily were operated each way over the line, making connection here with T. A. T.-Maddux.

$7600 Floodlight Ordered.

An order for a Sperry floodlight with generator, to cost $7640, has been placed by the city for Lambert-St. Louis Field. The light will be mounted on an ornamental brick base on the concrete apron on the west side of the field. The present flood lights will be kept for auxiliary use.

Walter Kuhn, Overland, Mo., enrolled at Parks for a special glider course. Carl Silva of Chicago, Edward Leininger, Xenia, O., and L. H. Hollingsworth, Woodbury, N. J., graduated from the mechanics' course. Thomas Burman, Terre Haute, Ind., enrolled for the course.

Four Planes Sold.

Sales by the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Mfg. Co., during the week included four J-6 Robin planes. Two ships were purchased by Wright-Essenwein Co., Buffalo, N. Y., one went to Wadlow Bros., Wichita, Kan., and the fourth to East Coast Airway, Boston.

To Form Flying Club.

A meeting to organize a flying club under N. A. A. rules will be held at Skyway Inn, Curtiss-Steinberg Airport, at 8 p. m. next Tuesday. The club is being organized under the direction of J. Fred Fisher, Naval Reserve flyer. The purpose is to provide instruction and flying time for aviation enthusiasts at a moderate fee.

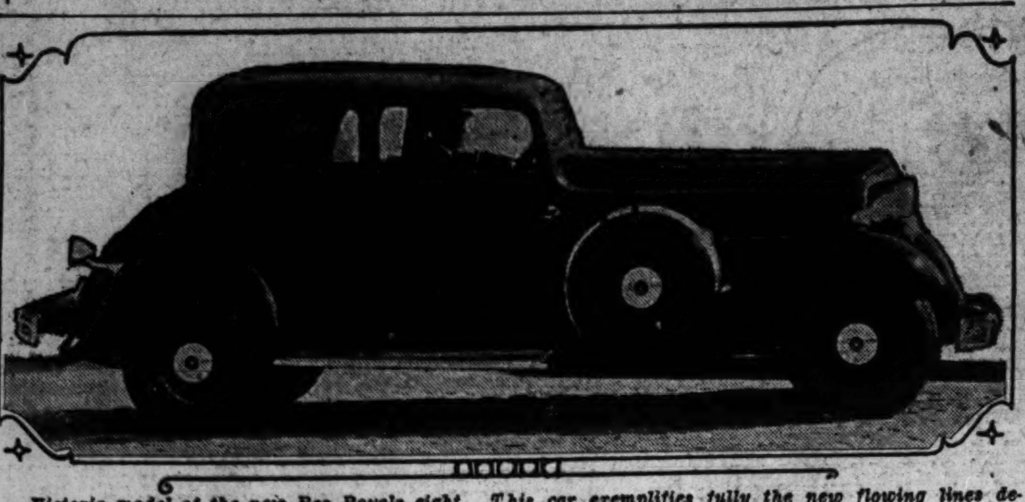
Reo Strikes New Note in Body Design



Victoria model of the new Reo Royale eight. This car exemplifies fully the new flowing lines designed into this powerful Reo line.

Reo Introduces Royale Eight as First of New Lines

Engine of 125 H. P. and Bodies of Aerodynamic Design Features of Powerful Cars.

Aerodynamic principles of design make noteworthy the new line of Reo cars, the first of which, the Reo Royale eight, is now being shown by the Steiner-Fahrenkrog Automobile Co., 3101 Locust boulevard, distributer, and its associate dealers. The Reo Royale line, which is priced at $2485 at the factory, will be followed soon by new Reo Flying Cloud eights and sixes.

The Reo Royale has a straight eight engine designed to deliver 125 horsepower. It has a 10-inch twin plate clutch, to take the great power developed, and the exclusive Reo silent second transmission.

Fifty miles an hour or more in second gear and well over 80 miles in high are said to be attained easily and with equal freedom from gear noise or vibration. All copper, brass or steel tubing for oiling has been eliminated by use of drilled passages. Gears can be shifted back and forth between second and high at speeds of 40 miles per hour easily.

Striking Body Lines.

But it is in body styling that the Reo Royale strikes its most distinctive note. The hood is long and low, with a "V" shaped radiator of the Mercedes type. The hood is flanked with oval head lamps, whose contour resembles that of a gun projectile, and by ample rolled edge fenders of wing-like sweep. This motif of the free flowing line is carried back into the slope of the windshield, then along the sleek sides and the smoothly rounded top to a sweeping rear panel construction.

New type running boards appear to be made of polished hardwood, but are really of metal with wood graining surfaced with bakelite. Rubber strips run lengthwise and mouldings are chromium-plated.

With all the effect of graceful, flowing lines, there is plenty of head room and legroom. Extra width is gotten by an adroit overhanging of the body beyond the wheel housings. Seats are pillows of deep down over full springs, upholstering being in doeskin, broadcloth and French Bedford cord. There are broad invidual hassocks for rear seats and softly padded arm rests in the center and at the sides. These may be folded out of the way.

The wide, oblique windshield is contained within unusually slender front pillars, the butterfly type doors being hinged to the center post on each side and, so, relieving the front pillars and cowl of the strain of their weight. The windshield, being tightly fitted, is not opened for ventilation which is supplied through four adjustable ventilators mounted on the cowl. This does away with drafts and rattles.

Sun visors, invisible from without, are provided for driver and front seat passenger and may be individually adjusted. The front seat in the Reo Royale sedan or victoria may be easily placed and locked in any desired position. There are two windshield wipers, each with a concealed motor, and twin rear-view mirrors.

In the victoria there are 29 inches of leg room for occupants of the wide rear seat, and the front seats in this model are exceptionally high and broad, deeply and softly pillowed and pitched at an easy chair angle.

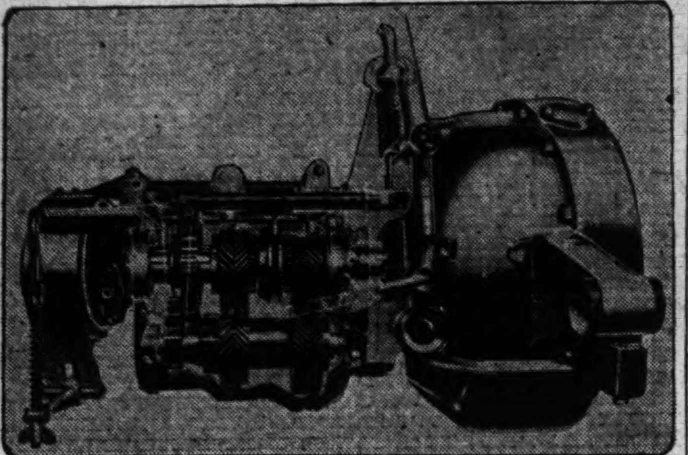
Non-shatterable safety glass is used throughout all models.

There are step lights and rear quarter lights with automatic door control and separate interior switches. Tilt-ray headlights illumine the roadway. Fender lights, front and rear, throw wide beams as an aid to parking. The two rear fender lights provide stop signals as well as illumination for backing and for parking.

The cylinder block and crankcase of the engine are of chrome nickel iron, which has seven times the resistance to wear of ordinary cast iron. Working in the honed cylinders in this extra hard metal are aluminum alloy pistons of special low-expansion design. The piston blanks resist cutting to such an extent that they cannot be machined satisfactorily with the hardest tool steel yet developed. Tools are used that have cutting edges of carboloy, a material second only to the diamond in hardness and costing $400 to $500 a pound.

Reo has recently invested more than $1,000,000 in production tools to make possible building of its new lines according to the advanced engineering specifications.

Reo's Silent Second Gear



Easy-shifting transmission, with silent second gear, used on the new Reo Royale eight. Constant mesh herringbone gears are used for the countershaft drive and second gear sets, while the two higher speeds are engaged by shifting a toothed, positive clutch forward and backward on the splined shaft. The low and reverse sliding gear are of conventional type.

Pierce-Arrow Will Put Common Stock On a Dividend Basis

That there are signs of a brightening business outlook and that the company is expecting to participate in a revival of economic activity, were the expressed opinions of financial leaders Thursday when it became known that the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Corporation soon would return its common stock to a dividend basis.

A. R. Erskine, who is president of Pierce-Arrow, as well as of the Studebaker corporation, announced that directors of the local company planned to put the Class A common stock on a regular $2 annual dividend basis at their quarterly meeting, Oct. 31.

In making this announcement, Erskine estimated the net profits of Pierce-Arrow for the first nine months of 1930 as $1,300,000, and expressed complete confidence in the outlook for a continuation of such earnings during the last quarter of the year.

Traded-In Tires That Show Wear Chopped Up By St. Louis Firm

An innovation in ways of ridding the city of dangerous tires is being practiced by Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., 2843 Washington boulevard, formerly the Standard Tire Co. Tires showing evidence of wear that are traded in on a "safety sale" now being conducted, are immediately chopped up with axes, according to E. R. Kenner, manager of the company.

"We do not intend to let any used tire go back into use that will in any way endanger the lives of drivers or pedestrians," he said. "We are destroying many tires that we, like other tire dealers, have formerly been selling for $2 and up. We believe the cause justifies this drastic action."

Instruction in Fender And Auto Body Repair

Free instruction in modern methods of repairing fenders and auto bodies will be given by Alvin R. Tom of the Fairmont Tool & Forging Co. of Cleveland at 7:30 next Friday night at the Rankin School of Trades, 4420 Cook avenue. All auto mechanics are invited to attend.

The following jobbers are co-operating: Beck & Corbitt Co., Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co., Fleer-Petty Auto Supply Co., Campbell Iron Co., Koochook Co. and the Sligo Iron Store Co.

Engineers to Meet

The St. Louis Section of the Society of Automotive Engineers will hold a dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock next Tuesday evening at the American Annex Hotel. Engineer Jardine of the Wilcox Rich Valve Co., will speak on "Valves." There will be an open discussion.

Buys 14th Reo Car

Sale of his fourteenth Reo car to Dr. P. F. Titterington of the Metropolitan Building, is reported by Harry Steiner, president of the Steiner-Fahrenkrog Co., Reo, distributer.

One way to risk having a windshield cracked is to keep close behind another car that is traveling fast. Small stones and pebbles on the road are likely to be tossed up by the rear tires of the other car so as to strike the windshield with considerable force. The danger is greatest on upgrades where one may be tempted to cling right behind the other car in hope of overtaking it.

Oldsmobile Set Low Maintenance Record In a Rental Service

Tested over a half million miles of driving, a fleet of 102 Oldsmobiles have averaged a parts cost of less than three-one-hundredths of a cent per mile, according to the records of the Hertz Driveurself Stations, Inc., New York City. This extraordinary low parts replacement cost was made with thousands of different drivers at the steering wheels.

This spring the Hertz Driveurself stations purchased 102 Oldsmobiles for its rental business in and about New York City. The Oldsmobiles were placed in service immediately after delivery and in less than six months the total mileage was 550,000 miles, or nearly 5400 miles average per car. The exceptional performance of the Oldsmobile fleet was reported by D. G. Arnstein, president of the Hertz Driveurself Stations, Inc., as follows:

"The maintenance cost on our fleet of Oldsmobiles has been negligible, and an interesting fact in connection with the operation is that to date the 102 Oldsmobiles have been driven a total of 550,000 miles with a total maintenance parts cost of only $160.29."

Ford Motor Co. Will Retail and Service Lincoln Autos Here

The Ford Motor Co. reports that it has bought certain assets of the Brodhead Co., which have been used by the firm in conducting a distributership of Lincoln cars. The Ford Motor Co. is to retail and service Lincoln automobiles in the St. Louis metropolitan area, as has heretofore been done by the Brodhead Co.

Lincoln sales and service will continue to be handled in the building used for that purpose by the Brodhead Co. at 3401 Washington boulevard.

The Brodhead Co. will continue as an authorized Ford dealer at its present Ford location, at 3333 Washington boulevard, it is announced.

Will Distribute New Anti-Freeze

Local and nation-wide distribution of "Blizz," a new anti-freeze liquid for automobile cooling systems, has been secured by H. C. Thornton and associates, 5 North Gore avenue, Webster Groves.

The product, according to Thornton, is basically different from other anti-freeze solutions, as it can be kept in a radiator all year without causing the engine to overheat or clogging the cooling system. State chemist's tests show that Blizz starts to freeze at 43.6 degrees below zero, and to boil at 322 degrees above.

It is guaranteed not to rust, not to clog or evaporate, cause no short circuit, emit no disagreeable odor, no danger of exploding, no damage to metal or rubber, Thornton states.

WIL NOTES

Herr Louie, the Weasel, and the rest of WGN's Hungry Five will be broadcast by WIL tomorrow evening at 6:45 by electrical transcription, and each night during the week, except Saturday, and at 5:45 on Sunday. Another new feature over WIL, starting Monday night at 7:30 will be "The Haunted House," a mystery in eight episodes. This will be a weekly feature at this hour. Henrietta Jordan, new staff organist and pianist, is broadcasting "Keep Smiling" program, an Around the World program at 1:00 p. m., and a Twilight Reveries program at 5 p. m.

Here and There on The Air

The Missouri State finals in the Atwater Kent national radio audition are scheduled over KMOX at 8 o'clock Saturday night, Oct. 18, it is announced by Mrs. Frederic Nussbaum, State chairman.

There will be 14 contestants, seven young women and seven young men, between the ages of 18 and 25 years. One young woman and one young man will be chosen to represent Missouri in the district contest in Chicago next month.

The radio audiences's vote will count 40 per cent and that of the judges 60 per cent.

The young singers who have won over many entrants in their districts are: Hylma Alice Hill and Oliver M. Sovereign of the Carthage district; Mrs. Pearl Henderson and Earl D. Black of the Farmington district; Alpha M. Van Valkenburgh and James Robert Powers of the Kansas City district; Esther Desire Platt and Eugene C. Planck of the Maryville district; Martha Mason Luckie and Fred Hetzler of the Columbia district; Dorothy Case Allen and William Rice Jr. of the Boonville district, and RaJean Roberts and Emerson W. Brown of the St. Louis district.

The Illinois State finals will be broadcast over WGN, Chicago, from 8 to 9 o'clock Saturday night, Oct. 18, and next Sunday night from 7 to 8 o'clock.

A series of 13 weekly Saturday night broadcasts from the Chicago Opera are promised over an NBC chain, beginning Nov. 1, when part of "Tannhauser" will be put on the air. The broadcasts will be from 9 to 10 o'clock, St. Louis time. Wolf-Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna," and Massenet's "Manon" are other operas which will be broadcast. Wallace Butterworth will announce the programs.

Mary Garden, of operatic and concert fame, is to be soloist in the Camel Pleasure Hour on KWK at 8:30 next Wednesday night. She will sing the great soprano air from the opera, "Louise," and "Comin' through the Rye."

• • •

WIL, St. Louis, has asked the Federal Radio Commission to permit it to operate full time on 1200 kilocycles instead of sharing time with KFWF and WMAY. Charles E. McKay, Hannibal, Mo., asks for a permit to build a 15-watt station and operate it on 1210 kilocycles four and a half hours a day.

KFEQ, St. Joseph, Mo., on 680 kilocycles, has been authorized to use 2500 watts from 6 a. m. until sunset.

• • •

A transmitting aerial mast 660 feet high is to be built for the new 50,000-watt WABC station that is being erected in New Jersey for the key of the CBS chain. The mast will be the aerial. Because of its vertical construction, engineers believe, the ground wave will be eliminated and serious interference with receivers in the neighborhood should be prevented. The mast will be 28 inches in diameter at the base, will rest on porcelain insulators, and will taper to a needle point, the last 125 feet of it being a steel tube.

Eight daily Elgin broadcasts, each lasting 15 minutes, will be broadcast over an NBC net, including KSD, beginning Oct. 15. They are set for 11 a. m., except on Sunday when they will come an hour later. The eighth in the series will come at 10 p. m. Friday.

The Armchair Quartet will be featured thrice a week—twice on Friday and one on Sunday. Clyde Doerr's saxophone quartet will give the Monday concerts. Tuesdays will bring Muriel Pollock and Vee Lawnhurst, pianists, and Lew Conrad, novelty singer. Phil Napoleon and the Memphis Five, who do "blues," will be presented Wednesdays. The Countess Olga Albani will be featured Thursdays. May Singhi Breen and Peter de Rose and a novelty orchestra are billed for Saturday.

Interviews with head coaches of notable college football teams will be broadcast during the Coca Cola programs over KSD at 9:30 Wednesday nights. Knute Rockne, coach of the Notre Dame team, will open the series next Wednesday night. He will be interviewed by Grantland Rice.

The following Wednesday night, Mal Stevens, head coach at Yale, will be interviewed. Wednesday night, Oct. 29, a coach of some outstanding team or a notable player will be interviewed. Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, head coach for the West Point Cadets, will be featured Nov. 5. On Nov. 26 Ring W. Lardner, the writer and playwright, will discuss outstanding games and players. On the last night of the series, Dec. 5, Rice will interview the coach of a team that has triumphed the past season.

Leonard Joy and his string orchestra will continue to furnish the music for the Coca Cola broadcasts.

Lowell Thomas, who has replaced Floyd Gibbons in the Literary Digest broadcasts over KWK and KMOX, before he was 25 years old, had led two expeditions far beyond the Arctic Circle, had swung a gold miner's pick, had punched cows and, with two degrees to his credit, had become an instructor at Princeton University. Two years later he was a famous war correspondent. The book in which he tells of his "Experiences With Lawrence in Arabia" has been called one of the outstanding books of the decade. He has explored widely in Asia and has won a solid reputation as one of the more vivid personalities of the day.

• • •

The CBS chain will broadcast 15-minute "football rallies" immediately preceding the broadcasts of college football games. These will be musical programs devoted to songs of the colleges engaged. The object is to give listeners something of the "atmosphere" of the game. The first rally was scheduled for the Notre Dame-Navy game yesterday.

Radio to Tell Story of Escape From Sunken 'Sub'

miniature "submarine compartment," at the bottom of a tank containing a hundred feet of water, and the second at the top of the tank. Lieut. Charles B. Momsen, inventor of the safety device, will be heard speaking from the compartment when he gives instructions to those taking the test as they prepare to quit the space as it floods with water. Either James Wallington or George Hicks will be at Momsen's side during this part of the broadcast.

The other of the two announcers will remain at the top of the tank to tell what happens when the men appear at the surface after making the 100-foot ascent.

Accompanied by Capt. S. N. Ives of the navy, another announcer will descend in a diving bell with a microphone to report the progress of the men as they leave the compartment and begin the journey toward the surface.

The tank in which the program will originate is 130 feet high and 18 feet in diameter. It has been constructed as a practical memorial to the crews of the S-4 and S-51.

THE TRAFFIC COP OF THE AIR . . .
you couldn't get anywhere without him!
Few of the millions who enjoy radio know how to hook up a set—how to keep it working. Most of us are totally dependent on the radio dealer. We'd be sunk and silent, without him. He's the traffic cop who keeps the air lanes open for us.
Remember him tonight when you're listening to your favorite program. Remember that he's in business to serve you. Give him a chance. He certainly deserves your support.
Perryman tubes will deliver the most hours of service at maximum efficiency—and they cost no more. Ask your dealer about them

What's New in Radio Industry

New Radiola Sets That Make Records Coming Oct. 15—Lyric Self Tuning Receivers Described—Trade Notes.

More Radiola Models Coming.

The new Radiola superheterodynes with which one can also made records and play them are expected to be shown in the St. Louis district about Oct. 15, according to Harry B. Levy, manager of the radio division of the Aeolian Co. of Missouri, which is now exclusive Radiola distributer.

The receiver part of this new set is the same as in the other new Radiola superheterodynes. It has a nine-tube screen grid circuit. In addition to receiving programs, one can use it to play records and also can make records of programs being received or of home entertainment and then play these records as with any radio-phonograph combination.

The Radiola 48, which has been designed for the medium-priced market, will appear at the same time. This receiver has a seven-tube tuned radio frequency circuit.

Receives Short and Long Waves.

A feature of a new Kennedy model that is a combination short wave and regular broadcast receiver is that it is AC operated and has no "plug-in" coils.

Trick operation, "body capacity" and other bug-a-boos of short wave receiver operation has been done away with. In fact, while this particular Kennedy model uses eight tubes in receiving regular broadcasts, 11 tubes are employed in short wave reception.

Short wave broadcasts are coming with increasing frequency and regularity from many of the great broadcasting stations of this and other countries. Often when static is bad one can tune in the short wave transmitter of a certain station and get much clearer reception.

Lyric Self Tuning Receiver.

The new Lyric self tuning 24-hour model created a considerable stir at the Raido Worlds Fair in New York. L. C. Shapiro, chief engineer of Wurlitzer, the manufacturer of Lyric, is responsible for this invention.

The new self tuning set can be used as a pre-arranged, regular radio, or remote control. The latter is arranged simply by plugging an attachment into the back.

To the eye there are two unusual pieces of mechanism in the new radio. On the back is a disc corresponding to the dial on the front. In this disc is a "track" and in the track a number of "pegs." These pegs are moveable. Each has a number. To arrange for the key stations the operator will wish to listen to that day, these pegs are placed so as to catch the wave length of the various stations desired.

Inside the top of the set is another disc holding a number of levers and a small electric clock. Each lever is opposite a 15-minute period on the clock. Each lever has a number of notches and each of these notches corresponds to a peg on the back of the machine. To pre-arrange for the programs the operator pulls out the lever opposite the time he wishes the programs to begin to the notch numbered corresponding to the peg which will catch that station. If he wishes the program to change later, he pulls out the lever opposite the time he wishes the change to its full length. He then duplicates the previous operation, being careful to set the lever at the right notch.

Radio Man a Candidate.

Jack Capps, a widely known radio man in the St. Louis territory, is a Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives in the Fifth District.

Philco Plant in High Gear.

The Philco factory reports that it is breaking production records daily, and has more than 150,000 back orders for receivers.

Fada Studying Acoustics.

A new acoustical research division has been added by Fada as a department of the Fada Radio Research Laboratories. It will be in charge of Harold J. Heindel, who is notable for his work on acoustics and the sound characteristics of sound reproducers.

CeCo Operates Own Station.

The engineering department of the CeCo Manufacturing Co., is operating nightly, from 7 to 11:30 p. m., its own short wave station, WICLN, on 20, 40 and 80 meters. Results of value in the making of tubes already have been secured.

KMOX Notes

Hiram and Henry, well known "Rube" team from WLS will be featured in the Dairy Show at the Arena this week. KMOX will have five daily broadcasts. At 6:30 a. m. a resume of the previous day's events, including names of prize winners, will be given. At 10:15 a. m., 1 and 5 and 7:15 p. m. there will be speakers and specialty numbers. Ford Rush, Eddie Calmer, Holland Engle, Dell Reed, and the Singing Redheads, KMOX staff artists, will stand by. Hiram and Henry will be heard every day at 3 p. m. They will also be featured in broadcasts from the KMOX studios. Elmer McDonald, better known as the "Old Timer" will sing over KMOX this week. "The Inner Circle" will be this week's Play-of-the-Week. The Community Forum topic at 4:30 p. m. today will be "The Metropolitan Plan." Eugene D. Ruth, mayor of University City, will uphold the city-county merger and Judge Arthur A. D. Lashley will speak for the opposition. There will be music by the Imperial singers. Fullerton Place will preside and Robert Kelsoe will survey events of the week.

ONE KILLED, THREE HURT IN GASOLINE STOVE EXPLOSION

Arthur Streng Fatally Burned at Washington, Mo., Filling Tank With Burner Lighted.

One man is dead and three others are in a hospital badly burned as a result of an explosion of a fuel tank of a gasoline stove which was being filled with a burner turned on in Washington, Mo., Thursday night.

Arthur Streng, 58 years old, proprietor of a soft drink parlor, who was filling the tank from a five-gallon can, died Friday morning in St. Francis Hospital, Washington.

His son, Arthur Jr., and two friends of the family, Louis Buttermeyer and Dorsey Crisman, suffered severe burns about the face, arms, head and chest but are expected to recover, according to Dr. Frank G. Mays, who attended them.

The Strengs, who formerly lived at 3600 Weber road, Luxemburg, moved two months ago to Washington, where they formerly lived.

Funeral services for the elder Streng will be held Tuesday at the Fendler Undertaking Co., 7819 Michigan avenue. Burial will be in Park Lawn Cemetery.

M'CLELLAND BARCLAY, ARTIST, WEDS HIS DEBUTANTE MODEL

Former St. Louisan and Miss Helene Marie Haskin Married in Lake Kezar, Me.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—McClelland Barclay, an artist and sculptor, formerly of St. Louis, was married yesterday to his debutante model, Miss Helene Marie Haskin, daughter of Mrs. Helen Coghill South Haskin, a writer, of 117 West Fifty-eighth street. The ceremony was performed at Lake Kezar, Me., and was followed by a reception in Mrs. Haskin's lodge.

The bride, who is 19 years old, is the original of the Fisher Bodies Girl, whose pictures enhanced Barclay's reputation as an artist. Before she met him and posed for him, Miss Haskin had appeared on the stage, making her debut in "Ripples" last year. She is a graduate of St. Agnes' Episcopal School and is a member of a distinguished Virginia family.

Barclay is a son of the late Dr. Robert Barclay and a nephew of the late Shepard Barclay, both of St. Louis. He was divorced last January from his cousin, Nan McClelland Barclay, Washington society girl whom he married in 1916. His engagement to Miss Haskin was announced last month. After a month's wedding trip in the Maine woods, Mr. and Mrs. Barclay will reside at Delmonico's, 502 Park avenue.

$17,800 JUDGMENT IN SUIT OVER LEGAL FEE DISMISSED

Estate of A. R. Russell, Who Filed Action Against Former Partner, Has Received $7000.

A $17,800 judgment in favor of Mrs. Ionia Russell, widow of Alexander R. Russell, an attorney, against his former law partner, A. M. Frumberg, returned by a jury in Circuit Judge Lashly's Court at Clayton last February, was dismissed yesterday by stipulation.

The suit, filed by Russell before his death, was to recover one-tenth of a fee collected by the firm of Laughlin, Frumberg, Blodgett & Russell, and John T. Fitzsimmons. Laughlin and Fitzsimmons were named as defendants, but a demurrer on their behalf was sustained.

Since the judgment was rendered, $7000 has been paid into Probate Court for the Russell estate by Frumberg. Counsel for Mrs. Russell annoucned yesterday that the settlement was considered adequate as regards Frumberg, and that a motion had been filed to reinstitute proceedings against Laughlin.

BISHOP CANNON'S SON SOUGHT, ACCUSED OF GIVING BAD CHECK

Drafts Said to Have Been Written in Connection With Boys' Schools at Los Angeles.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 11.—Maj. Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop Cannon of the Methodist Church, South, was being sought by officers today on warrants from Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties charging issuance of bad checks in connection with the promotion of a boys' school.

One check for $40 was cited in the San Bernardino warrant. In Los Angeles the amount was said to be $1600. Cannon previously was connected with a girls' school at Montrose and a boys' school at La Crescenta, both in Los Angeles County. The latter was closed by health authorities a year ago because of alleged improper preparation of food. The difficulty was straightened out shortly after the arrival of Bishop Cannon who appeared in court in behalf of his son.

First Phone Talk With Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Kansas City talked with St. Louis for the first time 45 years ago tomorrow. Completion of the first long distance telephone line between the two cities was recalled here tonight. The average number of telephone calls between the two cities is 488 a day now, officials said.

Again GLICK'S REDUCE LAUNDRY PRICES

This Is the Third Time Glick's Have Given You Lower Laundry Prices!

JOE GLICK

St. Louisans Can Save $2,500,000 Annually!

BASED on the 1930 population of St. Louis, there are 326,937 men and boys in St. Louis. They wear an average of at least two shirts weekly---653,864 shirts that must be laundered.

At Glick's new price for laundering shirts, you save an average of 4 cents on each shirt.

If Glick's laundered all the shirts soiled every week, St. Louisans would save two and a half million dollars annually! Enough money saved to build 250 comfortable homes, or buy 4,000 small automobiles, or 20,000 good radio sets! Think of it! Is there any easier way of saving money?

Joe Glick says: "I am going to save you MILLIONS OF DOLLARS ANNUALLY on your laundry bills."

We felt that more people must use Glick's Laundry after prices were cut, and we were right---already, just one week since the price cut was announced, we can see that a still greater volume of work will be our reward. Greater volume means lower prices, always, at Glick's. Still further reductions are going to be made.

Bear this in mind: Not inferior work at a lower price, BUT, Glick's Regular High-Class Laundry Work and Service—For Less!

A Week of Shakspeare

Fritz Leiber and the Chicago Civic Society to Present Seven of the Bard's Plays at the Shubert in Six Days Starting Tomorrow Night—May Robson Visiting Star With the Casey Players at the Orpheum in "Mother's Millions"—"Strictly Dishonorable" Coming.

ST. LOUIS is to get its full share of Shakspeare during the coming week, for the Chicago Civic Shakspeare society arrives at the Shubert Theater tomorrow night with Fritz Leiber as the star, to present seven different plays by the Bard in six days. At the same time, or rather, starting tonight, the Casey Players at the Orpheum Theater will go into their second bill of the season, "Mother's Millions," a comedy for which the delightful May Robson has been brought to St. Louis as a visiting star. The American Theater is to get going, finally, next Sunday night with Brock Pemberton's widely discussed comedy, "Strictly Dishonorable."

The Shubert will probably be dark during the week following the Shakspearean offerings but on Monday night, Oct. 27, Ethel Barrymore is to come in with "Scarlet Sister Mary," the drama in which Miss Barrymore plays a Gullah Negress. The piece, which opened a few weeks ago in Columbus, O., has not yet been to New York or Chicago.

The Chicago Civic Shakspeare Society organized for the permanent presentation of the plays of Shakspeare in America, has its home in the new Chicago Civic Theater, which is part of the $29,000,000 Chicago Civic Grand Opera House Building. The Society is not only the only place in the world, except Stratford-on-Avon, where Shakspeare's plays are produced exclusively as a civic enterprise, at popular prices and not for profit, but is unique in America as being sponsored by men whose business and academic perceptions have swept them as high as Chicago skyscrapers, and who bring to the Shakspeare Society an energy and a basis of sound business judgment which are expected to revive Shakspeare as the Bard's works have never been revived.

FRITZ LEIBER, who for 25 years has been playing Shakspeare, was born in Chicago and appeared with Julia Marlowe, Robert B. Mantell and David Warfield, before heading his own company in 1920, touring the country continuously, like an old-time actor-manager, planning, staging and setting the tempo of every production. He continues this actor-managership with the Shakspeare Society, which has secured his services for four additional seasons.

Leiber's repertory company includes many members who have appeared with Mr. Leiber for many years, including Lawrence H. Cecil, Hart Jenks, Robert Strauss, John Burke, Philip Quin, Thayer Roberts, Ralph Menzing, John Forrest, Wilfred Mallory, Claudius Mintz, Virginia Bronson, Olga Leeds and Virginia Stevens. New members include Charles Henderson, Frank Peters, J. Augustus Keogh, Lionel Ince, Howard Inches, John Bryan, Sidney Mansfield, Ingeborg Torrup, Mary Hone, Virginia Chew and Maxine Arnold.

The following plays will be presented here—Monday evening, "Hamlet"; Tuesday evening, "Merchant of Venice"; Wednesday matinee, "As You Like It"; Wednesday evening, "King Lear"; Thursday evening, "Twelfth Night"; Friday evening, "Macbeth"; Saturday matinee, "Hamlet" and Saturday evening, "Julius Caesar."

MAY ROBSON, who comes to the Orpheum tonight with the Casey Players for her characterization of the richest woman in the world, in "Mother's Millions," made her first big hit, near Melbourne, Australia, ever so long ago, by appearing one day in the family of her parents. Her married sister lived in London, and May joined her there, later attending a Catholic convent in England, where she received part of her education. Then she attended school in Belgium, and a finishing school in Paris.

She comes from a family of clergymen—she is the only member ever to go on the stage, but she has not missed a season of acting since 1883. "Mother's Millions" is a comedy in which Miss Robson starred successfully in New York. In it Harriet Breen, who is reputed to be the richest woman in the world—worth untold millions—is also the most penurious. Maria Peppy, who had visions of turkey every day, when she went to work for this rich woman, bewails the fact that if she even kept a prune for her own dessert, she'd think she was having a banquet.

Her children, Faire and Tom fear their mother more than they love her, and suffer through her attempts to thwart their own love affairs. Meanwhile, Harriet spends most of her time in court, fighting or instigating, as the case may be, suits, and warring with a lifelong enemy who vows to break her.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

In the end, Harriet emerges as a real woman and a loving mother, who has been hungering all the while for the ability to express the affection for her children with which her heart overflows. In the cast with Miss Robson, who, of course, plays Harriet Breen, will

Hollywood Would Have Caught the Bard

BY JAMES RENNIE

In this article, written for the Post-Dispatch, Mr. Rennie, a well-known actor who has deserted the stage for Hollywood explains that the Bard of Avon was a smart business man and would follow the flight of the Golden Goose. It is of special interest at this time with the present revival of Shakspeare's plays on at the Shubert Theater.

IF William Shakspeare were alive today he would be in Hollywood, writing for the talking screen. That statement, at first sight, may sound like hooey, as they say around the studios. But really I mean it quite seriously; and before my readers dismiss it with a contemptuous sniff I hope they will consider a few of the reasons which support my contention.

In the first place William Shakspeare was a practical man — a business man. To put it on the lowest ground, he would find that the screen has become the most profitable branch of the drama in our time. Hollywood has made the theater a universal art. This means a world-wide appeal and a world-wide market—which in turn means big profits.

Now Shakspeare was interested in profits; there is not the slightest doubt about that. He was a poet, yes—the world's supreme poet, in my humble judgment. But if ever there was a living and breathing refutation of the popular idea of a poet as a moonstruck dreamer, utterly out of touch with the hard actualities of workaday life, it was the young man who went up from Stratford-on-Avon to London, wrote for the theater, became a partner in the company owning the most successful theater, and in a few years retired to the country with a comfortable fortune.

HE had an eye for real estate, and bought land wisely. He brought suit against certain people who borrowed money from him and failed to repay it. None of his manuscripts, none of the sheets of paper on which his deathless lines were written, is known to exist today. We have merely the records of some of his activities as a business man; and they prove that he was a first-rate one.

One phase of his genius produced "Hamlet" and "Lear"; another guided him aright in his transactions with the showmen of the Globe, so that he made himself their associate and a full sharer in the profits of the house. And to make his association all-embracing he played one of the roles in the original production of "Hamlet." This saved a salary.

That is one reason why I am quite satisfied that the lure of Hollywood would draw the Bard like a lodestone, were he living among us in the present age.

But I have another reason, and a far more significant one. In all probability very few people realize that today the technique of writing for the talking screen is closer to the technique applied by Shakspeare than is that of the modern legitimate stage.

Open a play of Shakspeare—any of them will do. Note the many scenes, some of them long, some extremely short, following upon each other with almost bewildering rapidity and calling for the most complete change of locale as settings for the action. As things are today in the regular theater, it is practically impossible to stage one of these dramas precisely as Shakspeare wrote it. Scenic difficulties alone are a well-nigh insuperable obstacle.

Now let us take a look at the Globe Theater, London, in Shakspeare's time. There was a stage, as there is in the ordinary theater today, but scenery was practically non-existent. The audience simply had to use its imagination. If a scene was to take place in a forest, the management merely hung up a placard bearing the legend: "A forest." The next scene might be a palace or a graveyard. No wonder the action of the play could cover such a diversity of scenes.

NOT for many years after Shakspeare's death did the English theater enter upon what may be called its scenic period. This era began about the time of the Restoration, when Charles the Second, the Merry Monarch, ascended the throne and gave the theater a new lease of life. Since then the stage has grown more and more elaborate in its settings, its trappings and its mechanical equipment.

But the development of scenery has meant a progressive hampering of the liberty of the playwright. Changes of scene have grown few and far between. It has been the aim of the modern dramatist to keep his action, so far as possible, in one place. Many masterpieces—those of Ibsen, to name no other—have been written in this medium, but the scope and sweep of the great Elizabethans have been almost banished from our stage.

The invention of motion pictures provided a new field for the broad movement of dramatic action; but not until the development of talking films did it become apparent to those interested in these matters that we were returning in the technique of play-writing to the Shakspearean style.

There are no limits to the scenic possibilities of the modern screen. There are no end of changes of scene in my first two talkies, "The Girl of the Golden West" and "The Bad Man." A play must be written in as many scenes as the most effective development of the story requires. And, whereas Shakspeare was confined to one bare stage, which depended upon the fancy of the onlookers for the reality and intensity of the events presented on the boards, the camera offers actuality itself as a setting for the author's creation.

Many of the most eminent modern dramatists have already realized this and have begun to write for the talking screen. I am quite sure that Shakspeare would have realized it, too—and, in his practical way, would have acted upon it.

THE day is coming, I believe, when the immortal tragedies and comedies of Shakspeare will be presented on the screen with a grandeur never known before. Many of us must have felt again and again that the theater, as we have known it, is too small for Shakspeare. But the screen, whose range is as wide as the world, can embrace within that range even the greatest dramas that have ever sprung from the mind of man—and can set them forth at last in a manner worthy of them.

Yes, Shakspeare would be in Hollywood were he alive today. And another reason why he would be there is that Hollywood is one of the world's great centers of vital activity. From the peaceful village where he was born, the poet who was "not for an age but for all time" went up to London, answering the call of pulsing and abundant life in that marvelous Elizabethan time when a new nation was rising toward the zenith in the European constellation. New worlds had been discovered. The Armada came, grim and menacing, to the English shores and was scattered in ignominious defeat. In arts and arms the land of William Shakspeare burst into bloom so brilliantly that the glory of that age still stirs us like a trumpet after 300 years.

Great life always produces great art. In our own country, another new star in the cluster of nations, the teeming richness and strength of youth has already thrilled and inspired the world; and this priceless quality of youth is reflected in the newest of the arts, which, as I have tried to show, is so closely akin to certain phases of the old dramatic art. The vigor, the hope and courage and indomitable spirit of America are being carried forth to all the earth from Hollywood.

These are some of the considerations which lead me to indulge a pleasant fancy that has often occurred to me when walking or motoring along Hollywood boulevard. As in a dream the sign above the doors of the Cafe Montmartre becomes the sign of the Mermaid Tavern; and from the entrance steps a figure which I have seen carved in stone above a tomb in Stratford Church.

It is not impossible of belief that he might even have found a Ben Jonson with whom to while away some jolly hours no matter what the Hollywood brand. He liked his fun and it was frequently robust. This also he could find in Hollywood.

How he would enjoy it all!

Many Soloists Scheduled for Symphony Year

PRESENTING the finest list of soloists in its history the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in the course of its fifty-first season, which opens at the Odeon with the concert pair of Friday, Oct. 31, and Saturday evening, Nov. 1, will present also a succession of masterpieces of musical importance in which those soloists will appear. Among the 13 soloists there are represented six different nationalities, and six of the artists will be making St. Louis debuts.

There is a departure from long-established custom this season in the inclusion among the group of soloists of not less than four vocalists, previous seasons having been limited to one or two in the making up of the symphony repertory. This, however, permits the presentation for instance, by Claire Dux of a group of Strauss songs as well as a Mozart aria, and allows Margaret Mattzenauer to be heard in the "Brief and Pain" from the Matthew Passion, as well as in a group of Mahler's songs with orchestra. Mme. Dux, who retired from the stage to become Mrs. Charles H. Swift of Chicago, permits herself an occasional return with some orchestra in which she is interested. Mme. Mattzenauer is an established favorite with St. Louis. Two other singers of the season will make St. Louis debuts in their appearance here this year. They are: Heinrich Slusnus, the baritone of the State Opera, Berlin, a German singer who specializes in Italian roles, and Gina Pinnera, a young Italian-American singer whose dramatic soprano voice has been one of the discoveries of recent concert seasons.

Jose Iturbe, the Spanish pianist, is to play with the orchestra, presenting the Mozart D minor concerto, in which he first captured New York audiences, and also the Liszt Hungarian Fantasie. Carlo Zecchi, a young Italian pianist who has loomed large in the concert world of Europe and South America during the last two seasons, plays the Liszt D-flat concerto as his contribution to the symphony programs. Another debut of the St. Louis season will be that of David Barnett, a young American composer, pianist and writer on music, who has made orchestral appearances in New York and under Monteux with the Paris Symphony and Fuertwaengler with the Berlin Philharmonic. He is to play the Beethoven G major No. 4.

Webster Players in A Comedy by Milne

THE cast for "The Dover Road," a satirical comedy, by A. A. Milne, to be presented by the Webster Groves Theater Guild Thursday and Friday nights at the high school auditorium includes Gordon Hall, Mrs. M. C. Owings, June Miltenberger, Alan McMath, Don McClure, Albert Evans, Donn McClure, Barbara Hall, Carolyn Exton, Wayne Yenawine and Loring Yenawine.

Parts for the second play of the season, Kenyon Nicholson's "The Barker," were cast Tuesday night,

German Company In Four Operas Here in January

J. J. VINCENT, manager of the German Grand Opera company which will give four performances of German classics at the Odeon during the month of January, was in St. Louis during the past week making preliminary arrangements. He announced that all plans for the coast-to-coast tour of his troup had been completed, that 60 artists were being imported from Europe and that an orchestra of 54 was being recruited in New York.

Mr. Vincent also said that economic worries which the company had sometimes faced during the past were now eliminated not only because the company was being given guarantees in most of the cities to be visited, but because four New York capitalists had underwritten the tour. These four men had become interested primarily because they wanted the German Opera company to serve as a place where young American singers could get a chance to perfect their art. During the forthcoming season the important roles will be played by European artists, but a number of the minor roles will be in the hands of young Americans. This policy would be extended, he said, as rapidly as American artists of ability and training became available.

The four operas to be presented in St. Louis are Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" and "The Flying Dutchman," Mozart's "Don Juan" and D'Albert's "Tiefland." The last two have never been heard in St. Louis.

Buster Keaton, 'Pamplinas'

Movie Star, Who Came to St. Louis Last Week to See Ball Game Tells How the Spaniards Call Him "The Hole in the Doughnut" and Explains How to Become a Foreign Language Expert—Whoopee Lupe's Sister Makes Her Film Bow at the St. Louis.

TWO movie stars were in St. Louis last week and escaped notice in the crowd of baseball fans here for the World Series games. Buster Keaton and Gilbert Roland, both enthusiastic National League rooters saw the start of the series in Philadelphia, journeyed here with the Cardinals and then made the trip back east for the final game. The next day they started for California to get back to work.

Keaton and Roland had been on a tour of Europe together and came back home when they did just to see the ball games. Keaton, between innings here told of some of his recent experiences in Spain where he was called "Pamplinas." "I would be at a bull fight," Buster said, "and everybody would start yelling 'Pamplinas.' The first time it happened, I just sat and let them all yell. But a freind of mine told me that I had better get up and make a bow or I would be as unpopular the next instant as I was popular at this.

"Vivid in my mind was the sight of one of the most admired matadors in the country being cheered wildly one instant and knocked endwise the next by flying ringside seat cushions because he had done something that displeased the audience.

"The minute I realized that what they wanted was a little recognition, I bounced right up like this and bowed."

Keaton changed from a sitting to a standing position in his grandstand seat in the twinkle of an eye, to show how fast he had stood up and saluted.

"I was told that 'Pamplinas' had a good many meanings," Keaton said, "but as good a one as any seems to be "The hole in the doughnut."

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

"COMICS are very popular abroad," Keaton continued, "I saw a Laurel and Hardy film in Spain and it was a riot. The big laughs were when either Laurel or Hardy mispronounced a Spanish word.

"But, while it is all right for the comic in a foreign language film to mispronounce words, and get all bawled up in his meanings, it is suicide for any of the 'straight' members of the cast.

"When I started to make Spanish pictures, all I knew about foreign languages was 'Si! Si!' and 'Oui! Oui!' The first idea was for me to become a master of Spanish in a week, but I gave it up after an hour's trial and used my own system of blackboards with my lines written on them in phonetic spelling. I had assistants hanging from chandeliers holding blackboards, and kneeling in fireplaces with blackboards and hiding under couches with blackboards. And when some member of the Spanish cast would say something to me that I couldn't understand in Spanish, I would just hope I was reading my lines from the right blackboard.

"They told me 'que' in Spanish is pronounced 'kay' and so I have it spelled 'kay' on the blackboard. They told me that the letter 'j' wasn't pronounced in Spanish, so I don't have any 'j's' on my blackboards to worry me.

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

"I DON'T recommend this system of speaking a language for every day use," Keaton went on, "as a chap would need an army of blackboard holders wherever he went."

A great athlete and sports enthusiast anyway, Keaton had a special interest in this World Series.

"Ernie Orsatti, now on the Cardinals, used to play on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer baseball team," Keaton explained. "He was a prop man for me. Byron Hauck, our coach, who had been a big leaguer, agreed with me that this kid showed fine baseball sense. So I wangled a job for him on one of the Coast League teams and he's been on the up-an-up ever since.

"Naturally, this series was a great wind-up for my three months' vacation, which has included London fogs, bull fights and a lot of laughs."

When asked what his next picture would be, Keaton said:

"I don't know, but with my system of mastering foreign languages, I can do it if it's a film in Chinese."

☼ ☼ ☼ ☼

AND while speaking of athletes and the films it is just as well to mention young David Sharpe, a St. Louis boy who is coming along splendidly out in Hollywood. Dave, a son of Harry Sharpe, the referee, made a big hit on the coast as an all around gymnastic

Behind the Screens

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 11.

TO HAVE the productive mind, in the motion picture business, one must stifle any possible urge toward originality or initiative. Some time back, some producer decided the time-worn, faithful Western picture was "done." Accordingly, all producers turned well manicured thumbs down. Then Fox made their "Old Arizona," and the Western gold rush was on. Anybody with a Stetson and a .44 is now eligible. Musical comedies and operettas then seemed to please. An overdose was inevitable. Now they are on the sloppy side of the cycle. "Ingagi," the baboon boudoir cinemater piece, released to a curious public which apparently had been worried to death about the sex life of a chimpanzee, coined money while allowed to run. Immediately word came through underground channels that almost every studio was in the throes of an intense yearning for gorilla tales (not tails). Just now the astute anticipators of the public taste are nibbling their hangnails with apprehension, awaiting the jury's verdict on Chaplin's forthcoming "City Lights." Advance reports, usually very reliable in this town of secrecy, say it will click pitilessly. Then, no doubt, there'll be a sudden downpour of "silents." They will, of course, be made hastily, in an effort to beat the brother-producers to the box office. Consequently, many will smell to high heaven. And there will soon be no more talkless films. And thus it goes!

OH yes, and we neglected to comment upon the current epidemic of war pictures. All hasn't been so quiet on the western front since it was. First National, happy over "The Dawn Patrol," has bought "Chances," by Hamilton Gibbs, for Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Richard Barthelmess also is said to be about to refight the great struggle. Besides, George O'Brien is to start in two weeks upon "The Seas Beneath," a submarine story.

Incidentally, it has been suggested by someone that Clara Bow's difference with Lady Luck lately might have been an exploitation stunt for "Check and Double Check."

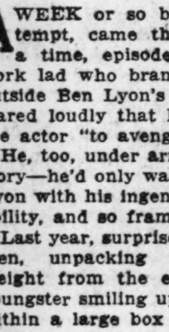
THE slow trickle of movie players stageward is beginning to develop into a near-flood.

Karl Dane is going into vaudeville, so is Olive Borden, and Alice White is considering it.



OLIVE BORDEN

Carmel Myers is taking part in a stage play here, and others of greater or lesser prominence are joining the parade to the footlights.

For most the new venture is only temporary.

A miniature golf course announces that "autograph seekers no longer will be permitted to solicit the signatures of their screen favorites while playing the links."

Slick, that, but most courses hereabouts are having a weary struggle in the face of the game's declining popularity.

WILLIAM HAINES, following the example of Edward Nugent, fellow actor, is opening an antique shop as a sideline.

People who nurse hopes of film fame because they chance to resemble movie stars might have better luck if hopes were based on ability to mimic the stars' voices.

For a new series of "shorts" film celebrities will be caricatured and "voice doubles" to speak for the drawings will be in demand. (But don't leap into Hollywood on the strength of that—ther're plenty here to do the little job.)

As a quick follow-up to "The Big House," the studio is making another underworld story, "The Secret Six," and Wallace Beery, "Butch" of the prison picture, has the lead.

OUTDISTANCING the Eddie Sutherland, who gave a "separation party" to announce the impending rift in their domesticity, a Hollywood couple will celebrate their divorce decree with a party at which the guests will all be each other's ex-wives or ex-husbands, and a few ex-sweethearts.

That's a laugh because the problem at most Hollywood parties is to avoid bringing "exes" together.

ANOTHER yarn to prove it's the little things that count.

An actor we know, once a star, was well on the way to regaining his old position.

JOHN GILBERT

One evening, entertaining a few friends at home, he instructed his new butler that he did not wish to be disturbed. The man, as it happened, was a foreigner, newly arrived and unfamiliar with picture names.

During the evening a stranger came, gave his name to the butler, and insisted on seeing the actor. The servant replied that the master was not at home, although the buzz of conversation in an adjoining room was clearly audible. The visitor left, greatly incensed.

It was not until next morning that the actor learned his unwelcomed caller was not only one of the most important movie executives, but the head of his own studio. Efforts to explain were fruitless.

He hasn't worked in a picture, except an occasional "quickie," since. And that was some four years ago.

THE question of John Gilbert and his talkie future would seem to be settled now, and favorably. "Way for a Sailor" is adjudged much better than his two previous microphonic ventures, presenting him in a rough-and-ready role more suited to him than the tinsel soldier of mouthed gallantries he was in "His Glorious Night."

Whatever the outcome, there can be no doubt that Gilbert's fans are still loyal. At the preview there was a storm of applause, followed by cheers, the instant his name leaped on the screen. Of course, the cheers may have been "planted" but his studio was eager to offset the unfavorable publicity of his other picture.

However, the new picture's good, and it looks as though the kingpin of silent stars at last has come through in the talkies.

THE industry has a central casting agency to register those ambitious to work their way into the movies, but each year brings a new crop of aspirants too impatient to survive the usually long wait for a call.

NANCY CARROLL

They ignore this machinery of selection, and go out "on their own" to crash the gates sensationally.

Recently a young man paraded outside the lots on a bicycle, clad grotesquely in woman's dress, comically rouged and shouting would-be smartcracks.

Arrested, he explained he thought he could "get in the movies."

A WEEK or so before this attempt, came the exciting, for a time, episode of the New York lad who brandished a pistol outside Ben Lyon's studio and declared loudly that he would shoot the actor "to avenge his sister."

He, too, under arrest, sobbed his story—he'd only wanted to impress Lyon with his ingenuity and acting ability, and so framed the story.

Last year, surprised studio workmen, unpacking newly arrived freight from the east, found a youngster smiling up at them from within a large box labeled "statuary."

He had hidden himself there, at some town along the railway, in hopes of outwitting the gateman. He was in, for sure, but not for long.

NANCY CARROLL won one of her first movie roles by a chance argument with a gateman, but she was not intentionally "sensational."

Having an appointment for lunch with a friend employed at the studio where she is now a star, she was refused admittance, and her Irish temper rose. Anne Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose," witnessed the argument and had Nancy signed for the heroine's role.

And Donald Reed, now a leading man, crashed the gates—but quietly—for his first movie role. He walked straight past secretaries, office boys and other obstacles, into Carl Laemmle's office, stated his case—and won a contract.

IN THE cast of "Strictly Dishonorable," coming to the American next Sunday night, will be Flobelle Fairbanks, Lino Manzoni, Lee Baker, Ralph Locke, George Meeker, Jerome Daley, Guido Alexander and John Robb.

An adroitly written comedy, with shrewd character drawings and the atmospheric touches of a Gotham speakeasy in the "wet 40s," the play is now in its second year in New York and, because of its deft handling in writing and direction, its wealth of alert and intelligent humor, intriguing romance and sprightly buoyancy, the comedy was last season selected by Gotham critics as "one of the year's 10 best plays," and was awarded the coveted Roi Cooper Megrue prize.

A romantic tenor of the operatic stage, an innocent but naively adventurous girl from Mississippi, an overbearing and dictatorial lover from a small town, a judge who is given to friendly imbibing during ex-officio moments, and a wisecracking policeman give mainspring to the play's action.

The company to be seen here is en route to an engagement in London.

Marlene Dietrich in "Dishonored"

Marlene Dietrich, European actress brought to this country to act in audible pictures by Paramount and signed to a long-term contract as the result of her work in "Morocco" with Gary Cooper, has been assigned to her second role in "Dishonored." Josef von Sternberg, who directed "Morocco" also will have charge of this production.

star and won the championship of the United States at tumbling. He cleaned up everything so well in that line that the events in which he was entered dwindled to one man affairs so he decided to go in for pictures.

Hal Roach got hold of him and put him in the series of "Our Boy Friends" comedies. Last week young Sharpe was seen down at Loew's in the lead of one of these Roach films and gave every appearance of being as good an actor as he was a tumbler.

DESPITE the overseated condition of the motion picture field here the Grand Opera House, after a long let up, is to reopen the latter part of this month as a straight "grind" cinema house, starting early in the morning and continuing as far into the night as the cash customers continue to lay it on the line at the box office. The Grand, once a great "legit" theater and later the most successful small time vaudeville house in the world, is to offer second run pictures after the other RKO theater, the St. Louis.

JOSEPHINE VELEZ, sister of fiery Lupe Velez, makes her motion picture debut in "Her Man," a new Pathe production featuring Marjorie Rambeau at the St. Louis this week.

Although Josephine is a year and two months older than Lupe, she looks enough like her famous sister to be her twin. There is a scant half-inch difference in their heights and a pound and a half difference in their weights.

Josephine, who plays a cigarette girl in a Havana cafe in "Her Man," appeared on the stage in Mexico City before coming to the United States with her sister. She was regarded as one of the greatest girl athletes in Mexico, being an expert equestrienne, swimmer and dancer.

THERE will be no "successor" to Lon Chaney, so far as his studio is concerned—the studio which had contracted to pay him nearly a million dollars for making talkies.

Yet the studio has been receiving quantities of mail from would be Chaneys extolling their fitness to step into his place.

Weird photographs are sometimes enclosed, depicting the aspirants in what they consider typical "thousand-faces" make-up.

As a matter of fact, Hollywood already has numerous experienced actors, who, as far as versatility in characterization goes, have proven their right to consideration as torch-bearers of the Chaney tradition.

There is Walter Huston, for one, and Lucien Littlefield, the "young-old man of the screen" and O. P. Heggie, whose portrayal of the French monarch in "The Vagabond King" stands out in memory—these among many.

For actual resemblance, however, John Jeske, for years Chaney's chauffeur and best friend, is as close to a double as can be imagined. He is not in pictures, of course, but many at the Chaney funeral mistook Jeske for a brother of the star.

Wallace Beery and Lionel Barrymore, it appears now, will divide the starring roles which were scheduled for Chaney.

This question of "successors" for screen idols seems to arise whenever one passes away. Ever since Valentino died, every Latin actor of any prominence has been publicity-hailed as "Valentino's successor," to no avail.

The latest, not Latins for a change, were the dashing Chevalier and the spectacular Lawrence Tibbett.

Neither resembles Rudy, but the question has been as to which more nearly filled his place in fan favor as a screen lover.

Catholic Guild in "Misleading Lady"

THE St. Louis Catholic Theater Guild's premiere production, the first of a series of seven plays, will be presented at the St. Louis University Auditorium tomorrow night, and will run five consecutive nights.

The "Misleading Lady" a comedy drama in three acts by Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey, will be the offering. The play contains all of the elements demanded by the theater-going public of today—heart interest, suspense and comedy. It is clean and wholesome in its make-up.

The St. Louis Catholic Theater Guild has gone to a considerable expense in having new curtains and new scenery built and the electrical effects are the latest and most up-to-date as used upon the American stage today. The people taking part in this first production are made up of talent from eleven different parishes.

The Guild announces that its second production to be held on Nov. 17 at the University Auditorium will be a play by Owen Davis "The Donovan Affair" a mystery drama which was played for one season in London and on Broadway and was successfully made into a talkie by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Tryouts for the November production will be held Oct. 23 at St. Louis University Auditorium, at 8 p. m.

Also the Playhouse Club of St. Louis University will give a Circle Reading of "Three Live Ghosts" by Frederick Isham, in the university gymnasium on West Pine tonight. Those taking part will be: Kathryn Holland, Ida May Crosson, Dorothy Krauskopf, Joseph Mulvihill, Robert O'Shea, Paul O'Dea, Maurice Falchaero, John Schneider, Robert Mattis and Edward Reh.

Milton McGovern, director of the Playhouse Club will preside and a social half-hour will follow. The St. Louis University Orchestra will furnish a musical program. The public is invited.

Shrine to Be Open Friday.

The Shrine of the Sacred Heart, on the grounds of the Visitation Convent, Cabanne and Belt avenues, will be open to visitors from sunrise until sunset next Friday, the feast of St. Margaret Mary. There will be a sermon followed by benediction.

Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet for League

THE Civic Music League for the opening of its series at the Odeon Tuesday evening, Oct. 28, provides the colorful Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet in recital. Members of the committee visited Chicago last season and saw a program by this organization and were prompted to engage the dancers for St. Louis.

Andreas Pavley will be with the company and do a number of his famous solo dances. He is one of the famed male dancers of the day, a pupil of Ceccechetti and Clustine and Jacques Dalcroze. From the latter he gained his rythmic values and from the former the technique taught by the masters of the Russian school. Pavley is of a Russian mother and a Dutch father, and was born "East of Suez" in India, all of which has given him an extraordinary personal equipment and individuality of wide range. His ballet is the result of his imagination and creative art.

German Theater To Start Season Going Tonight

THE German Theater will open its season tonight in the German House, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, with the well known play, "Twelve Thousand," by Bruno Franke. This play has had a great success in Germany and on the German language stage in foreign countries. It also has been translated into English and has been shown successfully. The story of the play is based on the American Revolution.

The management of the German Theater has been entirely reorganized. A committee, consisting of the board of directors of the German Theater Society, a social organization, and delegates from a large number of German-American societies is now in full charge. Heinz Rudorf, a well known German actor, has been engaged as artistic director. The stock company consists mostly out of new members, appearing for the first time in St. Louis.

It is the intention of the new management to offer only modern plays. The comedy, "When I Was Still a Child," will be given on Sunday, Oct. 19, and a musical comedy is to be played on the following Sunday.

The German Theater at present only performs on Sunday evening; the shows starting punctually at 8 p. m.

Denny to Support Pickford in "Kiki"

REGINALD DENNY, his work opposite Grace Moore in "Jenny Lind" completed, has been selected to play with Mary Pickford in the picture, "Kiki." Denny has recently worked in De Mille's "Madam Satan" and in Fifi Dorsay's "Those Three French Girls."

The entire cast of "Kiki" has reported for rehearsals. Miss Pickford has been rehearsing her role of the French gamin, whose antics will be perpetrated against a modern New York background instead of the Parisian setting of the original work.

Announcing—
STRICTLY DISHONORABLE
WEEK—October 19th to 25th, Inclusive

¶ St. Louis will be STRICTLY DISHONORABLE the week starting Sunday night, October 19th, when the biggest comedy hit in the history of the stage comes to open the 1930-31 season at the AMERICAN THEATER. Of course, you know STRICTLY DISHONORABLE is the title of the famous play produced by Brock Pemberton and written by Preston Sturges. It is now in its second year at the Avon Theater, New York.

¶ STRICTLY DISHONORABLE was voted by New York critics as one of the year's ten best plays. It was awarded the coveted Roi Cooper Megrue prize as providing the greatest entertainment value of any stage play of the season. LIFE described it as the first American comedy to show sex as charming and amusing and neither tragic nor dirty. GEORGE JEAN NATHAN said "We have here a fresh and jovial comedy that again makes theater-going a pleasure."

¶ Presented by a distinguished cast, STRICTLY DISHONORABLE will be a high spot in the coming theatrical season. The engagement is limited to a single week—October 19th to 25th, inclusive.

BOY SCOUT LEADERS' TRAINING COURSES

Elementary, Principles and First Aid Classes Open Tomorrow Evening.

Three training courses for Boy Scout leaders, including scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters and troop committeemen, will be started by St. Louis Council this week, according to William Puffer, educational director. The courses will be similar to those given previously and, like those of the past, will lead toward a gold scoutmasters' key, awarded for completing five years' training and achievement.

The courses will consist of an elementary class for men of little or no experience in scouting, a principles of scoutmastership class for experienced scoutmasters and those who have taken a previous elementary course and a class in first aid for leaders who have completed both courses in previous years.

The elementary class will start at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the auditorium of Michael School, Forest Park boulevard and Euclid avenue, under direction of Field Executive Max Nusser of the North District. The class will be organized as a scout troop, with Nusser as scoutmaster, while patrol leaders will be selected from the ranks. This class is open to any man interested in scouting, carrying with it no obligation to become a scout leader.

The principles class will meet at Stix School, also at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening, under leadership of Field Executive L. J. Case. Organized more on a patrol rather than a troop basis, this class will have more of a round table aspect than the elementary class. Principal MacKay of Carondelet School will talk on "The Nature of the Boy," while the topic, "A Scouting Program that Meets the Boys' Needs," will be taken up in a discussion period at the meeting tomorrow.

The first aid class will meet in the chemistry lecture room of Washington University Medical School, Scott and Euclid avenues, at the same time as the other classes. This class will be conducted by Dr. R. F. Barnes, associate medical adviser of the Bell Telephone Co., assisted by Aubrey C. Lindsley. Field Executive Carl H. Laemmli of the South District will be director. The course is given with the co-operation of the Red Cross.

Two other courses may be offered later in the year: One in troop camping and the other in patrol leadership. It is planned to begin them Nov. 3.

Complete information regarding the courses may be obtained from Boy Scout headquarters, 505 Chemical Building.

PREDICTION OF HYDE'S AID ANSWERED BY DEMOCRAT

George T. Priest Discusses Forecast That G. O. P. Defeat Would Produce a Panic.

George T. Priest, an attorney, in a statement issued yesterday through the Democratic Citizens' Campaign Committee, takes issue with the prediction of R. W. Dunlap, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, that a Democratic victory in Congressional elections next month would "turn a depression into a panic." Dunlap spoke to North St. Louis Republican organizations Thursday night, opening the campaign of the Republican City Committee.

"Mr. Dunlap's theory," Priest said, "seems to be that if this country were engaged in a warfare for its life, headed by a general who had led us to terrific defeat, he ought to be retained in command. The newspapers which told of Dunlap's statement also told of new November lows in the stock market and of declines in the price of grain.

"Where is the vaunted relief of the tariff and of legislation passed under the direction of the Republican party, that meddles with and upturns the natural law of economics?"

To Address Epworth League.

Joseph W. Lewis, chairman of the Board of Stewards of St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevards, will speak at the Epworth League service at 7 o'clock tonight.

LIEUT.-COL. E. L. DALEY ASSIGNED TO ST. LOUIS

At Same Time Lieutenant-Colonel Moore Is Sent to Kansas City for River Work.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—A War Department order formally transferring Lieutenant-Colonel Richard C. Moore from the office of the corps of engineers at St. Louis to Kansas City was received here today. He has been in charge of river work in this district since Maj. Gordon R. Young was transferred last summer.

A second order formally transferred Lieutenant-Colonel Edmund L. Daley from the Kansas City office to St. Louis. He has been nominally in charge here, but special work in which he was engaged for the St. Louis division prevented his coming here.

St. Louis U. Faculty Changes.

Five appointments to the faculty of the School of Commerce and Finance of St. Louis University have been announced. The new instructors are: Kenneth L. Richards, formerly of the New York University School of Retailing; John J. Lynch, lately of the Harvard Business School; Ross L. Large, from the University of Wisconsin; William J. Healy, treasurer of the Title Insurance Corporation and a graduate of the St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance, and Harold A. Braun, a graduate of the school and now an insurance officer for the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co.

DENIES MERGER WOULD GIVE SEWER TAX RELIEF

John E. Mooney Says Property Owners Could Not Have City Assume Debt.

Passage of Proposition No. 5, constitutional amendment enabling the consolidation of St. Louis and St. Louis County under certain stated conditions, and subsequent adoption of a charter as Greater St. Louis, would not relieve property owners in incorporated county sewer districts of the preliminary tax which has been assessed, although no sewers have been built, it is said in a statement issued through the Save St. Louis County League yesterday. John E. Mooney, president of the Taxpayers' Protective Association, an organization opposed to sewer construction under the Ralph law, issued the statement.

"The report that Greater St. Louis would assume the sewer debts has been widely circulated," Mooney said. "This preliminary tax is a direct lien against the property and could no more be assumed by the proposed Government than a deed of trust against the property. The preliminary tax is about $43 an acre."

F. W. A. Vesper, chairman of the Citizens' Metropolitan Committee of 1000, which is sponsoring the consolidation plan, yesterday announced the appointment of a large Executive Committee to head the campaign for the amendment.

George W. Stephens, dean of men at Washington University, and Joseph McAtee, Clayton attorney, will debate on the amendment at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the City Club. Stephens favors its passage and McAtee has spoken against it frequently.

Speakers for and against the proposition will address the North University City Improvement Association at 7415 Carleton avenue, tomorrow night.

CITY HALL CLOSED TOMORROW IN HONOR OF COLUMBUS DAY

Several Societies to Hold Ceremonies Today, Anniversary of Discovery of America.

A holiday at City Hall tomorrow will mark the official observance of Columbus Day, which is today. All city offices will remain closed during the day.

In observance of the anniversary of the discovery of America, the Knights of Columbus, the Daughters of Isabella and several Italian societies will hold joint ceremonies at the Columbus statue in Tower Grove Park at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

A radio address on the life of Columbus will be broadcast from Station KWK at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, and a banquet of the Knights of Columbus will be held at their building, 3917 Lindell boulevard, at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Archbishop Glennon and Francis P. Matthews of Omaha, Neb., will speak at the banquet.

MARINE BAND WILL GIVE CONCERTS IN CITY NOV. 8

The United States Marine Band, one of the oldest and most distinguished musical bodies in the country, will give an afternoon concert for children and an evening concert for adults at The Arena Nov. 8 in connection with the annual convention of the United States Marine Corps League.

The band plays only by special appointment of the President. It was established by act of Congress in 1798 for "a drum major, a fife major and 32 drums and fifes." Its first press notice of a concert was dated July 10, 1800, at Philadelphia. Thomas Jefferson as President became known as the band's "godfather," and since then "Tthe President own" has been an integral part of Washington social and official life.

You Meet Them in the movies!

There is a certain fastidiousness which habits of cleanliness cannot achieve alone. The person you sometimes suspect of carelessness may have bathed within the hour. If you are absorbing intestinal toxines, soap and water will not solve the difficulty. Nor will any refreshant neutralize unpleasant vaporings of the body, or the breath, for any length of time.

Nobody is that way by nature. It is a condition that might be corrected. Just a few days are often sufficient to take the unpleasant odor out of perspiration and render one's breath as pure as can be; and this personal cleanliness made permanent. Ask any doctor—or nurse—about Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

You may not know that you emit unpleasant vapors. Try Stuart's Calcium Wafers, and see! If there is any improper elimination in the system, everything will speedily be sweet and clean. Your skin will be less acrid; color improved; this colonic correction even brightens the eyes and gives life to your personality! And you will never need another harsh cathartic from the time you have learned to prevent even semi-constipation by just occasionally taking a tiny calcium wafer.

MAKE THIS TEST

A five-day test should prove to you very conclusively the system's need for Stuart's Calcium Wafers, and the decided benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them—the test size for pocket is 10c. Or the family size, 60c.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 11.—The first hero in the lore of Notre Dame's $750,000 stadium is none less than the renowned hod carrier from Three Oaks, Mich., "Galloping Joe" Savoldi.

Piercing through the Navy's defense when all the rest of Knute Rockne's famous "shock troops" failed, Savoldi made the dedication ceremonies for the new stadium a perfect one today by leading Notre Dame to a 26 to 2 victory over the Middies.

Three times did "Galloping Joe," whose muscles are steeled each summer by carrying a hod of bricks, crash through and around the Navy wall for touchdowns and many more times did he back up a staggering line with a brand of unbeatable defensive play.

Savoldi Scores Three Times.

The rest of the Irish, at home at last in a new home of their own, did their share and two others joined in the scoring but Savoldi stood out of the fight like a man mountain. Forty thousand fans, who came to cheer Rockne and the stadium he built, turned their cheers for Savoldi. He was the first hero of the new stadium.

Entering the battle just before the start of the second period, Savoldi immediately changed the complexion of the game from an even fight to a one-sided one. He started by smashing through left tackle for 23 yards and the first touchdown. A few minutes later he took a lateral pass from Marty Brill and skimmed around Navy's left wing for a run of 48 yards and another touchdown. He ended his performance in the third period, showing his versatility by plunging through the center of the

A PERFECTLY-EXECUTED PLAY: St. Louis U. Going Through Tigers in First Quarter

By Clint Murphy, Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

The Billikens, in their opening offensive, made a first down on two tries by Stephan, from their own 25-yard line. On the next play, Salinsky, shown above carrying the ball, made a sensational run to Missouri's 20-yard line, a 45-yard gain. This led to the first St. Louis score in just a few minutes. Note that EVERY Mis souri man has been "taken out."

By James M. Gould.

Showing a varied and powerful attack and a stubborn defense, the Billikens of St. Louis University yesterday afternoon defeated the Tigers of the University of Missouri, 20-0. The game was played before a crowd of 10,500 and marked both the resumption of athletics between the two universities and the dedication of the Edward J. Walsh Memorial Stadium, new athletic home of the Billikens.

From the standpoint of form, tradition and pre-game predictions, the result was a decided upset. It was thought Missouri carried too many heavy guns for the Billikens, but whatever offensive weapons the Tigers had were silenced early in the game and, scoring one touchdown in the first and two in the fourth period, St. Louis never was in the slightest danger of defeat.

Billikens Outplay Tigers.

Both offensively and defensively the Tigers were outplayed from start to finish. Just once—in the second quarter—the Tigers seemed to get going. Then they completed two long passes in succession and attained their closest approach to the St. Louis goal—the 19-yard line. The crafty McKinley, Billiken quarter, immediately took time out and in the two-minute rest period, the Billikens apparently learned how to stop the Tiger passes. This they did when play was resumed and, so far as scoring possibilities went, the Tigers were through for the day.

Missouri impressed as a team with decided possibilities for later games in the season; St. Louis U. performed like a team which had played together for a couple of years instead of just three games. There was no cohesion to the Missouri offense and the final two St. Louis touchdowns both were due to fumbles which the Billikens recovered far down in Missouri territory. McGowan, an end, was the eagle-eyed recoverer of one of these fumbles and Steve Kalmar, a substitute guard, gathered in the other.

Smoothness in Billikens' Play.

There was a smoothness in the performance of the Billikens not noticeable in St. Louis U. teams of recent years. Interference formed promptly and there was considerable clever blocking. The Billikens' tackling was hard and fierce.

On the other hand, the Tigers

This Gentle Game.

A LONG time ago when football addicts wore long hair on the ball field and chrysanthemums to match their college colors in the grandstand, reformers brought out their axes and whacked the old game to bits because it was too rough.

In those days the boys wore no uniforms equipped with built-in bone protectors, had no leather coal scuttles to save their skulls, had few replacements and usually played on ground that was harder than the heart of a usurer.

There were no rules to protect the gridiron gradiators from clipping, piling on, and assaults on the kicker after the punt had been made.

Progress was by a slow grinding advance. The runner who went to earth and bore a shock of some 20 players piled up on him, felt recompensed if no ribs had cracked and he had slithered along for a gain of two or three yards before blackness overtook aH. P. Headley entry.

Sun Beau, under an excellent ride, was well rated close up to the far turn, then began to gain steadily on the leaders and, catching Spinach afte entering the stretch, continued to show the way to the end to win rather handily. Pigeon Hole came fast after leaving the back stretch and passed the others in the last furrlong, but, although gaining slightly, did not seriously threaten the winner. Alcibiades set the pace and, continuing gamely after being headed by Spinach, outfinished the latter. Spinach followed Alcibiades closely in the early running, went to the front to take a short lead after turning out on the back stretch, but faltered after being headed by the winner and was tiring badly at the end.

$2 mutuels paid: Sun Beau, win $6.06, place $3.70, show $3.64; Pigeon Hole, place $5.88, show $5.54; Alcibiades, show $5.54.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 11.—Game and speedy Sun Beau, owned by Willis Sharpe Kilmer of Binghampton, N. Y., Repeated his triumph of a year ago, in winning the $25,000 Hawthorne Gold Cup at a mile and a quarter today, cinching the all age championship of the American turf. The race was the final rich stake event of the Chicago season.

With a crowd of 30,000 cheering him on, Sun Beau, with Jockey Frank Coltiletti astride his back, bounded out of fourth place as the field rounded the stretch turn, conquered the leaders and flashed on to win by a length from Hal Price Headley's Pigeon Hole. Alcibiades, the 3-year-old stablemate of Pigeon Hole, finished third, with Spinach, the Havre de Grace Cup winner of a week ago, staggering back in fourth place.

Trailing back of the leaders were Lady Broadcast, the Western Handicap champion, Plucky Play, Jim Dandy, the surprise conqueror of Gallant Fox, and Saxon.

Sun Beau won the Hawthorne Gold Cup a year ago in the sensational time of 2:01 3-5. The track today was about two seconds slow and he raced over the same distance in 2:04 3-5.

$23,800 to Owner.

The race had a gross value of $30,800, of which $23,800 went to Owner Kilmer, with $6000 going to Hal Price Headley of Lexington, Ky., owner of Pigeon Hole and Al-

NORTHWESTERN CAPTAIN HAS THE SMALLPOX

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 11.—Capt. Hank Bruder of the Northwestern University football team was found by physicians tonight to be suffering from smallpox. He was placed in quarantine.

Officials announced other members of the Northwestern team would be examined and vaccinated, but probably not isolated.

In addition to all members of the team, Bruder's fraternity brothers, classmates and coaches are to be examined for possible infection. Bruder took part in scrimmage with the team Thursday.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 11.—Inspired Gopher forwards, fighting with a desperation of underdogs, arose to unexpected heights to halt the brilliant offensive of Stanford's giant backs to record a scoreless tie in the first meeting of the two teams here today.

Six times the power of Glenn S. (Pop) Warner's attack threatened to score for the western eleven, but each time the Gopher line battled the visitors to a standstill to a completely unexpected tie for the squad of Coach Fritz Crisler.

Once, in the game's most spirited point, Stanford got to the Gopher's one-yard line but could go no further despite the flash and power of Phil Moffatt. Harlow Rothert and Harry Hillman, aces of the Cardinal attack.

Stanford Kick Fails.

The final desperate effort to score was made by the Californians two minutes before the game ended. Warner sent Rudy Rintala, kicking specialist, in for Moffatt, but despite excellent protection from Gopher interference Rintala's carefully executed place kick went wide of the uprights, and the last threat of the Californians to score had failed.

Time after time, Stanford unleashed an offensive which took the oval steadily down the field to

Washington U. Held To a Scoreless Tie By William Jewell

Just when the Washington Bears expected a nice juicy apple for their second meal of the grid-iron season, they learned that the steward had substituted an unripe persimmon. The William Jewell College eleven of Liberty, Mo., which it was hoped would provide the toothsome repast, surprised 5500 football fans at Francis Field last evening by messing up the menu in the form of a scoreless tie.

That Washington had the more powerful football team will be readily evidenced by the fact that it was on the offensive fully 75 per cent of the game and on eight occasions carried the attack within the visitors' territory. Each time the doughty visitors squared shoulders and formed an iron resistance. Surely no greater testimony could be offered to the fighting spirit of this unheralded and unsung eleven.

Only one time did Jewell appear threatening and that came in the second period when Right Guard Summers broke through the Bear line to block one of Hornsby's punts. A team-mate recovered on the 25-yard line. Two ineffective line bucks added five after which Washington was penalized five yards for being off-side. The local defense then scotched this effort and its goal was never in danger again.

Bears Close to Score.

Washington started with a rush when Sausselle carried the kick-off 37 yards to his 45-yard line. A powerful attack with Sausselle as the spearhead put the ball on Jewell's 10-yard line as a result of four wide sweeping runs.

Tyrrell cut the distance to the goal in half by a plunge through tackle, but on the next play Hornsby fumbled on the tartars' five-yard line.

The Bears came back in the same period, brilliant openfield runs by Sausselle and a pass from him to Friedman placing the ball on Jewell's 12-yard line. This time the drive came to naught when a forward pass was grounded behind Jewell's goal line.

On six other occasions Washington aroused the hopes of its henchmen by penetrating to the shadow of the goal post. But the Jewell pulled-in defense was too strong to overcome.

The spark was missing in the Bears last night and co-ordination was woefully lacking. Rarely were the ball carriers preceded by smashing interference and when the line did open holes the secondary defenders were not taken out of the play.

Jewell's Ends Stand Out.

Jewell showed a pair of husky fighting ends in Spradley and Albright, and on occasions these wingmen were turning in the wide sweeping runs that Sausselle and Tyrell accomplished so effectively last week. The added line power which was expected from Butz and Senn, was not great enough to pave avenues for the Bear backs.

In the last period, both teams threw discretion to the winds and resorted to frenzied passing efforts. There were occasional successes but the Washington overhead attack was poorly screened and rarely was a man open for the loss without a defender close at hand.

Although the Bears had been odds-on favorites, their advantage could not be based on poundage. There was very little difference in weight between the two elevens. The Bears apparently suffered from over-confidence due to a top-heavy victory over last week's set-up.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—The University of Georgia started sensationally and finished brilliantly to beat Yale today, 18 to 14, before a crowd of 45,000 excited spectators in the Yale bowl. It was the second Georgia victory in two years over the Elis and third in the last four games played.

Yale was leading, 14 to 12, and the game was within two minutes of its close when the lads from Athens shoved over the winning touchdown. Starting on their own 40-yard line, where a Yale pass was intercepted, the ball was driven deep into Blue territory, only to be lost on a fumble. Yale, however, fumbled it back, and from Yale's 45-yard line the visitors started a drive that could not be stopped.

Roberts finally plunged over center from the three-yard line for the touchdown after two plays had failed to gain.

The Georgians played a hard, smashing game and three times were penalized for unnecessary roughness. They also suffered from fumbling, losing the ball once on the two-yard line and once on the one-yard line. Georgia fumbles also contributed to Yale's two touchdowns.

81-Yard Run for Score.

The big crowd, including 3000 members of the American Legion and a small but enthusiastic delegation from the South, was brought up standing on the first play of the game, when Austin Downs took Hare's kickoff and wriggled his way through the entire Eli team for a touchdown. He took the ball on his own 19-yard line and dashed 81 yards for the first score of the game.

Yale, held scoreless in the first period, came back to score a touchdown and go ahead in the second, for Georgia never found the goal-kicking combination all afternoon.

Albie Booth, Yale's sensational midget halfback, entered the game in the second period and scored his team's first touchdown. He threw a pass to Bean for a gain of 40 yards to Georgia's 17-yard line. Georgia was penalized to the two-yard line for roughing Booth and Albie then slipped through for the touchdown and kicked goal.

Georgia received the kickoff to start the second half. The ball struck Kelly's hands, bounded out and into the arms of Barres, who ran 20 yards for the touchdown. Sullivan kicked goal.

Georgia Takes Charge.

Georgia's offensive then began to function and the rest of the way, the visitors were threatening much of the time. Georgia drove the ball to Yale's 22-yard line and Downs ran across the goal line but it was not a touchdown, for Georgia backs were in motion.

Steinoff fumbled on the two-yard line and a minute later there was another fumble on the one-yard line. The touchdown finally came when Chandler threw a pass to Catfield Smith.

Dickens late in the game intercepted Taylor's pass and ran to his own 40-yard line. The ball was advanced to Yale's 40-yard line, where Mott made the last of Georgia's seven fumbles.

Yale took the ball but lost it again when Taylor fumbled. Georgia drove to Yale's eight-yard line and a penalty of five yards for extra time out sent the Elis back to the three-yard line. Yale's line held twice but Roberts plunged over on the third effort.

Yale made 15 first downs to nine for Georgia, all of Georgia's coming in the second half. Yale made 11 in the first half and only four in the second. Yale completed five of 15 passes for a total of 82 yards, while Georgia gained 55 yards in two passes out of four. Yale rushed 180 yards and Georgia 185. Georgia was penalized a total of 50 yards and Yale 10. Booth gave the crowd a big thrill when he took the kickoff on his own goal line after the final touchdown and ran 35 yards.

ARNOLD DEFEATS LITZ IN SPECIAL AUTO RACE

"King Albert Likes to Dunk."

KING ALBERT scorned all sham and bunk,
His coffee cakes he liked to dunk,
But while for dunking he was keen,
He would not dunk before the Queen.

Go choose your east, go choose your west,
Go choose the kind that you love best;
Into your coffee you must dip
Your cake before you take a

Now all good dunkers rise and sing
The praises of this noble king,
Who liked to dunk his cake or bread,
Despite the crown upon his head.

Down on this carpet we must kneel
And make the good King Albert feel
That we regard him as a pal,
And think the world and all cibiades. Spinach saved $1000 for his owner, William Ziegler Jr., of New York, for finishing fourth.

Sun Beau was the favorite in the betting and rewarded his backers with $6.06 to win, $3.70 to place and $3.64 to show. The Headley entry paid $5.88 to place and $5.44 to show.

Sun Beau was given a perfect ride by Jockey Coltiletti. He had the 5-year-old son of Sun Briar-Beautiful Lady in fourth place under hard restraint until the field hit the turn into the stretch. Meanwhile, Alcibiades, Jim Dandy and Spinach had been setting the pace in the order named. When Coltiletti gave Sun Beau a free rein, he quickly passed Alcibiades, and, going to the front, raced on to victory in great strides. Pigeon Hole moved up fast in the stretch and was racing strong at the finish. Lady Broadcast raced alongside of Sun Beau until the last turn was reached, but her impost of 123 pounds proved to be too heavy a burden and she slowly dropped back.

In addition to winning the $23,800 purse, a solid gold cup was presented to the winning owner. Kilmer, however, was not present, but his trainer, W. A. Crawford, accepted the trophy, which was presented by Albert Sabath, vice president of the Chicago Business Men's Racing Association.

ROOSEVELT WINS OVER PRINCIPIA ELEVEN, 20 TO 0

By Harold Tuthill

Roosevelt defeated Principia Junior College, 20 to 0, yesterday afternoon in a nonleague game, at the Public Schools Stadium.

The Rough Riders did all their scoring in the second and fourth periods. Near the end of the first half, Gus Beiser made two sensational runs, totaling 26 yards, which carried the ball to Principia's 14-yard line, from where Norman Kloepper scored the firts touchdown. Beiser's place kick for the extra point was blocked.

In the third quarter, Kloepper intercepted a pass on his own 44-yard line. Nathan Tutinsky swept around Principia's left end for a gain of 33 yards. The Cadet line held the Rough Riders for downs at the two-yard line and kicked temporarily out of danger.

Beiser, who was the individual offensive star of the afternoon, broke loose again in the final period for 22 yards. The Rough Riders made two first downs, bringing the ball to the eight-yard mark. After trying two unsuccessful line bucks, Tutinsky passed to Ken Koerner for the second touchdown. Kloepper went through the center of the line for the extra point.

Principia virtually donated the third score, when it fumbled on its own 16-yard line, Roosevelt recovering. On a reverse play around left end, Tutinsky did some nice shifting to take the ball across. The extra point was allowed because of a Principia offside.

The Cadet attack never seriously threatened the Roosevelt goal line. However, Powers and Nolte did some nice running.

The lineups:

MINNESOTA HOLDS STANFORD ELEVEN TO SCORELESS TIE

points within scoring range. Its pass attack failed lamentably in these moments. Once it marched to the eight-yard line only to be halted by the fierce rushes of Gopher tacklers who nailed Stanford's back behind the line of scrimmage to disarm its offensive.

But Stanford's mightiest effort came only four minutes before the final gun. It was the most brilliant attacking episode of the game, with Moffatt opening the way with a 45-yard run after a double pass originating with Rothert, and who apparently was headed for a touchdown when Walter Hass, Minnesota safety, forced him out of bounds on the Gopher eight-yard line. Hillman plunged two yards and Moffatt added three more on another line thrust. Moffatt plunged again on third down to put the ball on the one-yard line for Stanford's final chance.

Stopped on One-Yard Line.

With the stage set for the afternoon's climax, Moffatt took the ball again and with a mighty burst of speed hurled through the air in an effort to slide over the pack of fighting forwards. But at least three pairs of Gophers' hands reached up, grasping him firmly and he was thrown back behind the point from which he started.

This outburst of Gopher defensive strength sent the 42,000 spectators into a frenzy of cheering. To Gopher supporters the tie amounted to a moral victory, for they had been reconciled before the game to defeat, because of Minnesota's weak defensive showing against Vanderbilt a week ago, when the Southerners invaded this stadium to win, 33 to 7.

Minnesota made only one serious scoring threat, penetrating deep into Stanford territory on a series of off-tackle smashes and end runs soon after the start of the second half. In this critical moment, however, and for the remainder of the game as it had been in the first half, Minnesota's efforts were concentrated on a fighting defense.

him. Men staggering with punishment, even with ribs broken, cried, when helped from the field, over the disgrace of not having been able to withstand the rigors of play.

A grand climax of deaths, far up in two figures for one season, awoke parents to the fact that the gentle game of football needed more gentling. So, they changed the rules and gave us a contest that is a revelation for improved interest, for variety of play and for visibility by spectators.

Too Many Substitutions

BUT any game, however well conceived, can be rendered extremely rough at will. And one wonders if the football of today is starting a new trend backward?

The use of "shock troops" has a suggestion of this. As explained by one coach, shock troops are second string players employed early in the game by elevens with many replacements, so that accidents which are supposed to happen in a large measure early in football games would eliminate only less important players. It is also designed to let the opponent with fewer reserves wear out his men against second string foes, only to face fresh regulars when they themselves have become tired.

Of course this is a game that two might play and therefore not likely to result in much damage. But isn't the spirit of the thing just a bit off color?

When real sportsmanship passes out of athletic contests, then a lapse into rough stuff is almost certain to follow.

The almost unlimited use of substitutes makes possible some of the troubles. It would seem that a compromise between the ancient condition, when to use a substitute was considered a disgrace, and the present condition when a procession of replacements is kept up throughout our contests is desirable.

If men taken out of the game were not allowed to return, would it not confine the use of substitutes to legitimate replacements for injury, exhaustion or incompetency?

Plenty Rumors

THE fight world is apparently filled with rumor-mongers and some of the tales dispensed will have to be taken with large quantities of salt. First comes the report from Miami that Stribling will not fight Sharkey at any cost, as a winter attraction. Also, we learn through sources of uncertain dependability, that Schmeling has retired and will fight no more.

That will jar the Madison Square Garden's solar plexus. Stribling and Sharkey were scheduled for a fight at Miami and $500,000 was the expected house. The winner was to have met Schmeling for the title at a New York baseball park next June. A $1,000,000 gate was hoped for.

There is no official substantiation of these rumors and there seems only an outside chance that they will come through. There is too much money at stake for the fighters.

A Red Ink Season

FIGHT promotion by the big guns of the game has not been profitable for many months. Owners of huge temples dedicated to the Shrine of the Wallop have had to enter their accounts in crimson. Indoor arenas particularly have not been profitable. It is doubtful if any of the huge stadia built solely for sporting purposes has even paid operating expenses. The Chicago Stadium's wonderful property is a huge frost. Madison Square Garden is not much better.

It is easy to surmise therefore that the proprietors are not going to be hard-boiled about crossing the pampered pugilists, whom they need for their shows.

Can't Expect Much

STRIBLING, on his part, is not going to make any strong objection to fighting Sharkey or anyone else offered him at Miami. Nor is Schmeling likely to give up the chance of a huge share of a title fight next June. His manager won't let him. Stribling is basking right in prosperity's glow and if he plays his cards right he can be the head man in the heavyweight class. Bad left hand and all, he is now considered a greater fighter than either Schmeling or Sharkey. After whipping them there remains a match with Carnera for another million. Boy, it is some rosy outlook!

Wants Easy Foes

WITH this in mind, one wonders just what promoters seeking to show Stribling can expect to get, in the way of an opponent. Stribling positively will not fight any opponent likely to jeopardize his title future or his bad hand. He is saving that for real work. He will meet only such opponents as his manager "Pa" Stribling approves. And so, we may possibly get another Billy Freas, as not much better, if "W. L." is brought to this city. Men like Bud Gorman, a wornout third-rater, are being mentioned. If the object is to exhibit "W. L." it is all right. If the object is fight, might as well send the pet house-cat against a pit bull terrier.

Stribling has been a well-known "easy mark" chooser, on his winter tours. Year after year he campaigns the bushes and makes scads of money boxing for a percentage against one of several men on Pa's "list." If Carnera had done the same thing for as long as Stribling he would be met at Ellis Island and turned back to Italy, if he attempted to return to the United States. So widely known is Stribling's predilections for the easy money that a Georgia sports editor in syndicating a story to newspapers entitled, "Barnstorm Bill," which is just a story of Stribling's career. It is significant of how he built up that knockout record of about 120.

Probably Tommy Loughran, who is one of those proposed as a local opponent for Stribling, will not be accepted by "Pa." But if he does, the town fans will see the world's greatest holding company in action. Both Tommy and Willie know too much about preventing the other fellow from getting rough.

Epinard Is Here

AMERICA'S thoroughbred racing stock will certainly be improved by the addition of the great Epinard, winner of the French Derby in 1923 and exhibited in several races in this country during the racing season of 1924.

Epinard has a singular record in this country. He started five times, ran second four times and broke down on his fifth effort. He was beaten by Zev, Sarazen, Wise Counsellor and 'Ladkin, if memory serves, at distances varying from sprints to endurance races. He had only a few weeks to adapt himself to the American climate and tracks and the fact that our hard dirt course did not suit his turf-trained hoofs was evident in his final breakdown.

There is little doubt that he would have beaten our horses on his own soil under French conditions and training.

This horse, although 10 years old, was brought to this country at a cost of $150,000, for use in a Kentucky breeding farm. Epinard's progeny, therefore, probably will be heard from in a few years.

OKLAHOMA IS WINNER OVER NEBRASKA, 20-7

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Ok., Oct. 11.—Rising to unexpected heights today, the University of Oklahoma Sooners opened their 1930 Big Six schedule with a resounding victory today over the twice-champion Nebraska Cornhuskers, 20 to 7.

Battered at the beginning when Nebraska received the kickoff and made three consecutive first downs, the Oklahomans came to life in a startling manner and put to rout the heavier champions. Bus Mills' 55-yard run for the first touchdown when the first quarter still was young, was the turning point.

Nebraska's force apparently had been spent and the Sooners continued to plow through the heavy line. Early in the second period, Guy Warren, a diminutive halfback, threw his 140 pounds through the Cornhusker line and sped 54 yards for the second Oklahoma touchdown. The try for point failed.

The Cornhuskers had no chance once the speedy Oklahoma backs got going, and they were outplayed throughout. They came back desperately, however, at the beginning of the second half, passing on the second play after the kickoff. This pass was intercepted by Ab Walker and in five more plays the Sooners put across another touchdown.

Nebraska scored its lone counter in the opening minutes of the final period when Long went over from the one-yard line on the fourth try after the Sooner forward had held three times. Frahm kicked goal.

The lineup and summary:

NEBRASKA	Position	OKLAHOMA
Prucka	L. E.	Ewing

Boxing Should Have a "Judge Landis" at Its Head, Asserts Magnolia

New York Referee Thinks Having One Supreme Governing Power Would Eliminate Present Evils

By W. J. McGoogan.

LOU MAGNOLIA

Lou Magnolia, famous New York boxing referee was in St. Louis last week to officiate in the bout between Maxie Rosenbloom and Jimmy Slattery—a bout that was cancelled—and Magnolia returned to New York without having a chance to show St. Louis fans how he operates in a ring.

However, Magnolia did find time to discuss the evils which beset the boxing game at present and his ideas of the way to combat them.

"I believe," declared Magnolia, "that the only way the game can be made sound throughout the country is through a national head, a figure at the head of the boxing game with the same power which Judge Landis wields in baseball. Let the state commissions be under his jurisdiction and when a decision is made by local authorities let it go before him for final disposition. Make his rulings binding on all the commissions throughout the country.

Should Bar Some Men.

"It is true that there are men in the game who don't belong in it and who, if allowed to go unchecked, will in time ruin boxing. Some of them would rather make 50 cents dishonestly than a dollar honestly and the only way to drive them out is to hit them in the pocketbook. Therefore, if they are barred in one state, they should be barred in all, thereby depriving them of the possibility of making money.

"Also, if a national head existed, rules would be interpreted the same way in all states, referees would be under same control and referees' fees would be uniform. I don't think boxing referees are adequately paid. The maximum in New York is $200 and when a man is refereeing a bout for $200 which draws a gate of a half-million dollars, I think it is a poor system. A referee should be paid on the basis of the size of the gate and the importance of the bout.

"One of the best moves the New York commission made lately was the no-foul rule. That is, a bout cannot end on a foul unless a man is crippled by a low blow, in which case he LOSES on a technical knockout. In all other cases a man delivering a foul blow merely loses the round in which the low punch occurs.

A Protector That Will Protect.

"That sounds brutal and unsportsmanlike, doesn't it? But—there is a form of protector now in vogue which, if a fighter uses, will absolutely prevent him from being hurt seriously by a low punch. A heavyweight can hit a bantamweight low and the little fellow will suffer no hurt—that is a fact. I have seen it demonstrated. But the best argument in favor of the new rule is the fact that since its introduction not a bout in New York has terminated by a foul and the world knows what happened before.

"Phil Scott, the English heavyweight, earned about $80,000 in purses in this country by claiming fouls every time he was hit, even if the blow landed on his jaw, until the Miami bout with Jack Sharkey, which I refereed, and in which I refused to permit Scott to claim a foul when he was hit on the hip.

"I had made up my mind before I went into the ring that Scott would not get out on a claim of foul if I could prevent it, and subsequent examinations by physicians bore me out. He was not hurt by the blow which landed on his hip. Every doctor who examined him told me that Scott could have gone on had he been so minded."

Magnolia's View of Carnera.

"What do you think of Primo Carnera as a heavyweight title hope?" Magnolia was asked.

"To my mind he will be the next champion of the world. I don't believe there is another man in the game today who can touch him. I have seen him in several fights since he came to this country and he has improved so much in his ring technique that it is almost unbelievable.

"They talk of the men behind him being bad men. I don't know, nor do I care what their past lives have been. Bill Duffy, under whose management Carnera's American tour was handled, is not a friend of mine, nor is he an enemy. We speak when we see each other and that is all. But he has done wonders for Carnera.

"When Primo fought Big Boy Peterson in his first bout here he was a clumsy looking, awkward mauler. I saw him in his bout with George Godfrey in Philadelphia and noticed the remarkable improvement in him. He has learned to take advantage of his tremendous height. He stands up now and punches straight out instead of crouching. He whips his body around behind his blows instead of hitting haphazardly and I don't believe there is a heavyweight boxer that he cannot defeat."

Magnolia was a wrestler before he became a referee and also did a little boxing. He is 53 years of age, but always keeps himself physically fit for his work in the ring. He declares that when a referee is forced to step around for 40 rounds, as is frequently the case in New York rings, that he must be in physical condition, and his training routine is almost as severe as that of boxers.

NOTRE DAME ELEVEN DEDICATES STADIUM BY BEATING NAVY, 26 TO 2

middle wall for nine more yards and his third successive touchdown.

Savoldi's Substitute Scores.

After that Rockne was content and destroyed more Savoldi specialties by sending him to the showers, only to have Joe's substitute, Fred Staab, a sophomore from Madison, Wis., add a finishing touch by crashing over for another touchdown in the final period.

Illegal interference by Byng, Navy right end, on a Notre Dame pass in the second period was the spark that sent Savoldi away on his scoring splurge. After Savoldi had crashed through for a gain of 12 yards to his own 37-yard line, Brill tossed a 40-yard pass to Schwartz. Byng collided with Schwartz and the pass was ruled valid, placing the ball on Navy's 23-yard line. Taking a short lateral pass from Brill, Savoldi cut through his right tackle, shook off two tars and bounded over for his first touchdown. Frank Carideo added the extra point by a perfect place kick.

Savoldi's next dash came two minutes later after the Middies failed to make an appreciable dent on the offense. Carideo caught the Navy punt on his 28-yard line and returned it 20 yards behind perfect interference to his own 48-yard stripe.

On the first play, Savoldi tucked the ball under his arm and swept around the Navy's left wing for a touchdown. Carideo's place kick failed.

His next march started in the third period when he raced 18 yards from midfield to the 32-yard line. Brill put him in scoring position by a pretty reverse play that landed the ball on the Middy nine-yard stripe, from which point Savoldi smashed through without a man ahead of him. This time Carideo's place kick for extra point was good.

The final Notre Dame score came early in the final period when the reserves crossed the tar line on exactly four plays. Starting on their own 26-yard line, Clarence Kaplan, substitute for Brill, dashed 34 and 26 yards. Bernard Leahy, another substitute half, then broke loose for a sprint to the two-yard line and Staab plunged over through a gaping hole in the center of the line.

Navy Threatens Twice.

Navy, although outclassed from the second period on, had two big chances to score today, only to be confronted by a stone wall when the chances looked the brightest. It took a Notre Dame mistake to save the middies from a shut out. However, with but five minutes to go, the blimp bowstrom, Navy's punter, booted the ball out of bounds on the Notre Dame two-yard line. Quarter-back Mahoney signalled for a punt, but the center tossed the oval far over his head and Mahoney sat on the ball for a safety.

Navy's best chance came late in the final period when a bad punt by Koken traveled but 15 yards to Notre Dame's 20-yard line. The middies, Gannon and Kirn, punched their way to the seven-yard line, but were stopped.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 11.—For the second time in two years, proud Princeton bowed this afternoon before a bruising, battering football team from Brown. The score was 7 to 0, the lone touchdown coming in the third period after Capt. Lincoln Fogarty, Brown's triple threat halfback star, had been forced out of the game with injuries received in the second quarter.

A crowd of 30,000, containing many doleful supporters of Princeton's luckless eleven, watched Brown's barelegged stalwarts push the Tigers all over the floor of Palmer Stadium, outplay them from start to finish and roll up a total of 15 first downs to five.

Brown's fumbles and Princeton's alertness in falling on the ball cost the visitors at least two other excellent chances to score, but one touchdown proved more than enough as the Tiger backs were held in a grip of iron all afternoon, including the ballyhooed sophomore, Jack James of Brooklyn.

It was not until the final period when Coach Bill Roper sent in his injured and fragile ace, Trix Bennett, to launch a desperate passing attack that Princeton was able to gain with any consistency and not even then was Brown's goal in the slightest danger.

It was behind a screen of white and brown jerseys that Gurll swept around right end for 17 yards in the third period to launch the drive that ended in the winning touchdown.

Levick, Princeton left end, had been injured on the previous play, one of many Tiger athletes to be felled in the course of the afternoon, and Gurll found it easy to outflank him. Levick was taken out at once but the damage had been done.

Heartened by their success, Brown shook Chase loose on the very next play for 25 yards off left tackle, James bringing the sophomore down on the Princeton five-yard marker. Gurll zigzagged through a hole in the right side of the line to be dropped on the one-foot line, but Andy Rotelli was not to be denied. The hard-hitting fullback drove through center for the score and Gurll drop-kicked the extra point for a victory more impressive than the 13-12 decision of last year.

Harvard Defeats Springfield, 27 to 0.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11.—Harvard had to play rugged football here today to defeat a stubborn Springfield eleven, 27 to 0, in a dull contest. The visitors had a powerful line and were able to check two crimson drives inside of their five-yard line, but failed to show any kind of a running attack. Harvard made 27 first downs to two for Springfield, one of which resulted from a completed 25-yard forward pass.

Women's National Golf Tournament Opens Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—Feminine golfers took their final turn today over the par 80 layout at the Los Angeles Country Club and called it quits until the national championship opens Monday with an eighteen hole qualifying round.

Sunday will be a day of rest for the 100 seeking the title held for the fourth time by Miss Glenna Collett, of New York City. Three former champions are included in the list of contenders.

The thirty-fourth annual tournament with its final round next Saturday will be a hard test over a course which puts a premium on a hard, accurate driving game.

Failure to crash through par in practice has kept the course dotted with those seriously interested in winning, with the nearest approach to perfect figures made by Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., whose best mark was 81.

Miss Collett, still a bit off her game, shot an 82, while Mrs. Leona Pressler, San Gabriel, California, the West's chief hope, also turned in an 82.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 11.—ith their backs to the wall and acing what seemed insurmountble odds, the Michigan Wolvernes staged a fighting comeback down Purdue, 14-13, here toay and provide the outstanding pset on the Big Ten football ont.

Two touchdowns behind at the nd of the first period, the Wolerines opened with a determined ush in the second period, overook and passed the Boilermakers nd thereafter held the powerful ttack of their ace-backfield man, unevich, and his mates in check send the Big Ten champions own to defeat in their opening ame of their defense of conferace football honors.

It was a game in which the erial department, a running atack and the timely use of the oary Wolverine "83" play comined to bring touchdowns.

The unerring toe of Newman, ubstitute sophomore quarterack, provided the one point marin by which the Boilermakers uccumbed. He booted both exa points after touchdown after an Bibber, kicking for the visiors, muffed his second chance.

Yunevich Scores Touchdown.

The smashing attack of Yuneich combined with a passing atck gave the Boilermakers their rst touchdown. The game was nly a few minutes old when the owerful Purdue fullback, feinta line plunge, swung around the olverine right end and crossed e goal line. Pope's forward pass d plunges by Yunevich, Pope and urvis had put the ball within oring distance.

The outlook became darker for ichigan a short time later when urdue opened up with a sensaonal aerial game which reeled off ree good gains and brought the cond touchdown. Pope threw to alvert, White and Moss for gains hich teamed with a running atck to take the oval within the 10ard line. On the fourth down, ope sailed a lateral pass to Keean, subbing at quarterback for urdue, and the receiver went over.

Van Bibber had made good his ick after the first touchdown, but e missed the second for what roved to be the point which derived Purdue of a tie.

It was a scrapping bunch of olverines which opened up in the econd period. The quarter was nly a few minutes old when Danels, who replaced Draveling at the ichigan right end, snared a long ss from Newman and sprinted cross the goal line.

Fumbles Aid Michigan.

Three Purdue fumbles aided in e Michigan drive which culmiated in the second touchdown and e final scoring of the day. A uff by Risk, who replaced Puris, recovered by Morrison, huge ichigan center, on the Purdue 4-yard line, provided the turning oint for the Wolverines. Michian could not put the ball over is time, but another break came heir way a moment later when aniels recovered for the Wolveres on Purdue's 22-yard line. Forard passes availed Michigan lite and Purdue took the ball on heir own 21-yard line. Kissell, who ad replaced Pope at left halfback, hen fumbled and Samuels recovred for Michigan on the Boilerakers' 26-yard line.

At that point began a march hich placed the Wolverines in potion to execute their famous "83" lay.

After working the ball up to the ive-yard line, Wheeler, who had one in at left halfback for Michian, slid across the goal line for he tieing touchdown as the old lay worked perfectly.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 11.—With their backs to the wall and facing what seemed insurmountable odds, the Michigan Wolverines staged a fighting comeback to down Purdue, 14-13, here today and provide the outstanding upset on the Big Ten football front.

Two touchdowns behind at the end of the first period, the Wolverines opened with a determined rush in the second period, overtook and passed the Boilermakers and thereafter held the powerful attack of their ace-backfield man, Yunevich, and his mates in check to send the Big Ten champions down to defeat in their opening game of their defense of conference football honors.

It was a game in which the aerial department, a running attack and the timely use of the Hoary Wolverine "83" play combined to bring touchdowns.

The unerring toe of Newman, substitute sophomore quarterback, provided the one point margin by which the Boilermakers succumbed. He booted both extra points after touchdown after Van Bibber, kicking for the visitors, muffed his second chance.

Yunevich Scores Touchdown.

The smashing attack of Yunevich combined with a passing attack gave the Boilermakers their first touchdown. The game was only a few minutes old when the powerful Purdue fullback, feinting a line plunge, swung around the Wolverine right end and crossed the goal line. Pope's forward pass and plunges by Yunevich, Pope and Purvis had put the ball within scoring distance.

The outlook became darker for Michigan a short time later when Purdue opened up with a sensational aerial game which reeled off three good gains and brought the second touchdown. Pope threw to Calvert, White and Moss for gains which teamed with a running attack to take the oval within the 10-yard line. On the fourth down, Pope sailed a lateral pass to Keegan, subbing at quarterback for Purdue, and the receiver went over. Van Bibber had made good his kick after the first touchdown, but he missed the second for what proved to be the point which deprived Purdue of a tie.

It was a scrapping bunch of Wolverines which opened up in the second period. The quarter was only a few minutes old when Daniels, who replaced Draveling at the Michigan right end, snared a long toss from Newman and sprinted across the goal line.

Fumbles Aid Michigan.

Three Purdue fumbles aided in the Michigan drive which culminated in the second touchdown and the final scoring of the day. A muff by Risk, who replaced Purvis, recovered by Morrison, huge Michigan center, on the Purdue 24-yard line, provided the turning point for the Wolverines. Michigan could not put the ball over this time; but another break came their way a moment later when Daniels recovered for the Wolverines on Purdue's 22-yard line. Forward passes availed Michigan little and Purdue took the ball on their own 21-yard line. Kissell, who had replaced Pope at left halfback, then fumbled and Samuels recovered for Michigan on the Boilermakers' 26-yard line.

At that point began a march which placed the Wolverines in position to execute their famous "83" play.

After working the ball up to the five-yard line, Wheeler, who had gone in at left halfback for Michigan, slid across the goal line for the tieing touchdown as the old play worked perfectly.

One of the Few Flashes of Attack Shown by the Tigers

Early in the second quarter Missouri got going for a brief period. They completed two beautiful for ward passes for substantial gains. The picture shows the completion of one of them, with Podelwitz of St. Louis and a teammate bringing the Missouri recei ver down. These two passes brought the ball well into St. Louis territory, where the Billikens held, got the ball and kicked out of danger.

St. Louis U. Wins, 20 to 0, From Tigers at Homecoming

battling gamely as they surely did, were rather 11 individuals playing the game than a team. Such few opportunities as they had, they overlooked; the Billikens were wide awake every minute as is shown by the two recoveries of fumbles which added two touchdowns.

The Billikens showed they meant business from the first whistle. After the Tigers had received the St. Louis kick-off and were compelled to kick, Stephan, on two plays made a first down. Salinsky then broke through the Tiger line and ran to Missouri's 20-yard line. Steady plunging brought the ball to the 10-yard line and, for two downs, the Billikens were stopped. Then McKinney threw a beautiful pass straight to Joe Stephan and Stephan scored the first touchdown. La Presta's try for the extra point failed.

Tigers Show Best in Second Period.

It was in the second period that Missouri made its best showing, completing a pair of forward passes for substantial gains. Naturally, after this success, they essayed a further air-attack but it soon was stopped. The defense of both elevens in this period was so good that neither had a scoring chance.

The story of the third period was that of the second except that Missouri showed not so well on the offense. There was considerable punting by both sides and the quarter ended without scoring with the ball in the Tigers' possession near midfield.

McKinney Scores on "Sneak."

There was plenty of action in the fourth quarter. Stephan, who had done great work for the Billikens as a triple-threat man, was injured and was replaced by Bob McCoole. Salinsky and Schumacher, after the Tigers had been held, made a first down for St. Louis. In the next set of downs the Billikens could not make cosistent gains and kicked. The Missouri safety man fumbled and Kalmar, who had taken the plucky DeChristefero's place at guard, recovered on Missouri's seven-yard line. McCoole made five yards and Salinsky carried the ball to a few inches from the line whence McKinney "sneaked" over for the touchdown. LaPresta kicked a place-goal for the extra point.

From here on, the Billikens' task was an easy one. All they had to do was to play "safe" and make victory sure. There was an inclinaton to do this and McKinney called for a kick soon after the Billikens got possession of the ball. Turner, the Tiger back, fumbled and Tierney, an alert Billiken end, recovered. Two St. Louis plays were stopped and then McKinney passed to Kennedy who caught the ball in the end zone just as the gun indicating the end of the game scunded. A Missouri foul on the try for the extra point gave the point to the Billikens and made the final score 20-0.

Stadium Dedicated.

There were brief dedication ceremonies before the game. The bands of the two universitites paraded on the field about 2 p. m., with a stand of colors from Jefferson Barracks. While the two bands stood at attention in front of the box occupied by Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, the Rev. J. S. Johnston, recently installed as president of St. Louis University, made a short address to Mrs. Julius S. Walsh, donor of the stadium. The flag was raised at the north end of the field, the band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and the game began shortly thereafter.

Followers of St. Louis U. football rubbed their eyes in amazement at the speed and power of the Billiken attack. Head Coach Chile Walsh had put a well-trained, cleverly-coached team on the field. Each man, regular and reserve, knew exactly what to do and proceeded to do it. It seemed that the Billikens can place about three varsity teams in action, all of equal brilliance.

Billikens 5, Tigers 3.

The Billikens added to their lead in games won from the Tigers. The two teams now have played nine games. St. Louis has won five, the Tigers three and one was a scoreless tie.

It was the first victory of a St. Louis University eleven over one from Missouri in 19 years. They defeated the Tigers in 1911, by a 5—0 score.

The attendance of 10,500, while not as large as expected, nevertheless was good. The weather was entirely too warm for football but this didn't seem to worry the Billikens any.

How superior the Billikens were on general play is indicated by the number of first downs. The Billikens made nine, the Tigers, three.

The Billikens journey to Indianapolis to play Butler University there next Friday night. Next Saturday, Missouri is scheduled in New York with New York University.

There was plenty of contrast in the uniforms of the contesting teams. The Tigers wore their traditional black and gold while the Billikens were clad in white jerseys and royal blue silk trousers.

Joe Stephan, who did some of the kicking for the Billikens, made one of the most accurate punts of the new season when he kicked out of bounds on Missouri's one-yard line.

In winning two of their three games this season, the Billikens have scored 47 points, 27 against Cornell College and 20 against Missouri. This is exactly 16 points more than the 1929 St. Louis U. team scored in eight games.

DIXON, Ill., Oct. 11.—The Dixon High School football team defeated their old-time rivals of many years, Sterling High School, here today in two games, Dixon High Lights winning 7 to 0 and the Heavies downing Sterling 13 to 0.

TOUCHDOWN ON TWO PLAYS WINS FOR MAPLEWOOD

Maplewood High defeated Kirkwood yesterday by virtue of a touchdown score in the opening minutes of play, two plays being all that were needed to put the ball over the line. Kirkwood received the kickoff, lost the ball on downs, and on receiving the punt, Maplewood executed a triple reverse play with Bittner carrying the ball from his 50 to Kirkwood's 10-yard line. Rhyne then carried the ball over for a touchdown, with Kippenberger kicking the extra point.

This victory places Maplewood in a tie for the County League lead.

An outstanding factor in the victory was the hard running of Bittner and Rhyne, Bittner making three 40-yard runs and Rhyne scoring the lone touchdown.

Several times during the game Kirkwood was in scoring territory but its passing attack was easily broken up by Maplewood. Harsh did most of the passing for Kirkwood, and also stood out defensively. For Maplewood, Brockman, Farris and Kippenberger were outstanding, while Patrick and Brink starred for Kirkwood.

ROLLA, Mo., Oct. 11.—The powerful Rolla Miner eleven ploughed their way to an easy 67—6 victory over the Drury Panthers in the annual homecoming game at Rolla today.

Drury tallied its sole touchdown by a series of passes in the first quarter, while the Miners retaliated with a steam-roller attack which enabled them to lead by 26—6 at the half.

Principia A Team Loses, 15 to 12, To St. Charles

By Davison Obear

The St. Charles High School football team defeated the Principia Academy A team, 15 to 12, in a game played at Taylor Field yesterday afternoon. Coach Deuringer's eleven took an early lead and maintained it throughout the contest.

Long forward passes were mainly responsible for the St. Charles victory. The Principia team put up a fine line defense but lacked sufficient backfield scoring punch. Coach Laughlin's team also was somewhat weak in executing forward passes.

St. Charles scored two points early in the opening quarter when Hunkins, Principia quarterback, was tackled behind his own goal line after a blocked punt. Later in the period, Moore, halfback, scored a touchdown after receiving a pass from Fishback, quarterback. St. Charles failed to make the extra point.

The first Principia score was made in the second quarter. Several passes put the Academy within scoring distance. Hunkins went off tackle from the seven-yard line to score a touchdown and missed the kick for an extra point.

An intercepted forward pass gave St. Charles a chance to get within scoring distance in the fourth quarter. Two line plays put the ball on the Principia nine-yard line. A pass, Fishback to Wallenbrock, scored another touchdown and Fishback carried the ball across for the extra point.

With only one minute to play, Principia scored another touchdown on a long pass from Hunkins to Vogel. A pass for the extra point failed.

Burroughs Wins Over Principia In ABC League

In two games at John Burroughs School yesterday the Blue and Gold won two victories over Principia. The "B" team subdued the Cadets 6-0 while their "C" team came out on the long end, 13-6. These were the first games Burroughs has played this season. However, the Soldiers played Codasco last Saturday with the result that their "B" division eleven was held to a scoreless tie, but the "C" outfit was crushed 7-0.

In the first quarter of the "B" team struggle the Burroughs men received the kickoff. They did not yield the ball until they had placed it on the enemy's 20-yard line. When the Cadets got possession they made an effort to punt out of danger, but the kick was blocked and taken by the Blue and Gold over the goal line for the only touchdown.

EAST ST. LOUIS, GRANITE CITY TEAMS WINNERS

East St. Louis defeated Madison High, 47 to 0; Granite City won from Collinsville, 13 to 0, and Alton and Wood River played to a 6-6 tie, in three Southwest Illinois Conference games yesterday afternoon.

Wood River, on its own field, came from behind in the fourth quarter to score a touchdown and make a tie possible. Two successful passes, Smith to Solterman, and Solterman to C. Ford, put the ball on Wood River's 14-yard line from its 45-yard line, and a run around the right wing by Burnham accounted for the touchdown.

Alton made its only touchdown in the third quarter, when Cook, a lineman, fell on a blocked punt behind the Wood River goal line. Delfo had blocked the punt.

Scoring in every period, East St. Louis made a romp of its game at Madison, which marked the home team's second setback. It was the East Siders' first conference game. Cochrane, Edminston, Hinson, Brinson, Sidwell, J. Martin and Warfield scored touchdowns for East St. Louis. Hinson made two points after touchdowns, and Watson, Sidwell and Cochrane accounted for one each.

Score by periods:

East St. Louis	14	6	20	7	47

Granite City Victorious.

By scoring a total of 15 points in the second half, Granite City High won over Collinsville in the opening contest for both teams in the Southwestern Illinois Conference yesterday on the Granite City field. The score was 15—0.

Both teams played ragged ball the first two periods and play was confined between the 30-yard lines. Neither outfit was able to solve the opposing defense and punting was the order until the third quarter. Gillespie was kicking out of danger when the Granite City left end, Pindell, broke through, blocked the ball and it rolled for a safety.

The break seemed to crush the Collinsville defense, and Pat Rich went through the line for a touchdown in the last quarter and Colin's kick was low and wide. Rich went through again when he intercepted Allen's pass and raced around right end for 30 yards and score. The kick for extra point by Colin was good.

Collinsville failed to make a single first down in the entire game, while the Granite City lads made five.

New Illinois Back Runs 60 and 80 Yards for Scores

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 11.

GIL BERRY, 18-year-old youngster playing his first year for the University of Illinois, today sped through a dazed Butler eleven much after the fashion of the famous "Red" Grange to lead the Illini to a 27 to 0 win.

Reeling off a pair of 60 and 80 yard runs for touchdowns, the shifty sophomore halfback shook off the Bulldog tacklers as he broke through the line and then outstripped the Butler secondary defense as he reversed his field and crossed the goal line yards ahead of his nearest pursuers on nearly identical runs in the second and third periods.

Webster Scores 18 to 0 Triumph Over Beaumont

Scoring in every period except the second, Webster defeated Beaumont of the City League, 18—0, in a inter-conference football game yesterday on the Webster gridiron. This was the first victory for the Robertsmen, while it was the first loss for Beaumont this season.

Although missing the services of the injured star half, Bill Freschi, Webster's backfield showed the punch and flash of a winning team, due in part to the efforts of the big "find" of the game, Dick Hall at right half. Hall, who has never been used much before ripped open the Beaumont defense through sheer strength to make possible the first score. Larson, however, had the honor of carrying the ball six yards through center for the touchdown. This drive in which Hall starred began from Webster's own 35-yard mark.

Webster met Beaumont last year also, the former winning by the score of 7—6.

Washington State Beats Trojans in Fierce Game, 7-6

By the Associated Press.

PULLMAN, Wash., Oct. 11.—Washington State topped the heretofore topless Towers of Troy today, beating Southern California at football, 7 to 6.

The fierce Cougar attack in the first period, a hair raising line drive and aerial offensive, accounted for the result. Failure of Southern California to convert a touchdown was the margin of victory.

The second and third quarters were mad melees with each team alternating hammering line drives with airline shots.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 11.—Northwestern opened its Big Ten football campaign today with a 19 to 2 victory over a green, but fighting Ohio State eleven. The Wildcat offense found its full power in the first half when all Northwestern's points were scored. Ohio State's pair of points came in the middle of the fourth period as a result of a blocked punt which Rentner downed behind his own goal line for a safety.

Forward passes figured in all Northwestern scores. Rentner fired one to Hanley for a touchdown in the first period and came in with another to Oliphant in the second frame. Rentner intercepted one of Horn's long heaves and ran 48 yards for a touchdown just before the second period closed.

Ohio's line found the veteran Purple wall too much, and offered its backfield little assistance.

ARMY CADET CORPS TO ATTEND ILLINOIS GAME IN NEW YORK

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The Army Cadet Corps has received permission from the War Department to attend the football game with the University of Illinois in New York, Nov. 8, Major-General William R. Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy, announced today. The game will make the only appearance of the entire Cadet Corps in New York this fall.

TARPAULIN VICTOR IN $10,000 STAKE FOR TWO-YEAR-OLDS AT LAUREL

BOSTWICK'S MATE IS SECOND AND NOVELIST THIRD IN THE JOHNSON

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Md., Oct. 11.—George Wingfield's Nevada Stock Farm produced the winner of the $10,000 added Richard Johnson stakes that was decided at the Laurel Course of the Maryland State Fair here this afternoon. Tarpaulin, representing one of two that carried the Nevada sportsman's silks, was winner in a most tenacious drive to take the measure of A. C. Bostwick's Mate. Third place went to J. E. Widener's Novelist when he led seven others of the most capable 2-year-olds racing in the East. E. R. Bradley's B'Ar Hunter was well lapped on the trio.

Tarpaulin in accounting for the third running of this valuable fixture was ridden capably by Jockey J. Bejshak. He made the running for the entire trip to cover the route in the fast time of 1:12 1-5. He won by the shortest possible margin, and his triumph earned just $12,200. Mate, in landing second honors, took that award just a head before Novelist while B'ar Hunter saved his starting fee, when he was within two lengths of the first three at the end.

Western Cadets Beat Country Day "A" Eleven, 6-2

The Western Military Academy prep team defeated the Country Day "A" team, 6 to 2, in a hard-fought football game yesterday afternoon on the Country Day gridiron.

Cornelia, a halfback, scored the touchdown for Western in the third quarter on a line plunge from the 10-yard line after a series of line plunges and a successful pass had brought the ball down the field.

Country Day scored its two points in the final quarter on a touchback.

MRS. MYRTLE SCHULTE BOWLS 651, SEASON'S RECORD FOR LEAGUE

Mrs. Myrtle Schulte of the leading Martin-Breitt five of the Ladies' Major City Bowling League, featured the weekly round on the Washington Alleys last night by rolling a total of 651 pins to establish a new record for the season. Mrs. Schulte rolled games 204, 213 and 234, and as a result moved into top average position of the league, replacing Miss Marie Neu. The Martin-Breitts rolled games of 909, 892 and 918 for a total of 2719 pins, winning three games from the Stein Jrs. who counted 2391. In addition to Mrs. Schulte's 651, Mrs. Summers rolled 541, Miss Schlenk 528, Bostelman 517 and Schaefer 482, while Miss Wiedemann led the losers with 516.

The Andersons won two games from the Kallahers, the respective scores being 2658 to 2548. Mrs. Al Werder of the Andersons shot a total of 639 pins with games of 189, 215 and 235, her third game being the highest rolled in the league to date.

The Mid-Citys won the odd game from the Washington Alley five, 2469 to 2443. Mrs. Stevens, with 540, and Mrs. Coibion, 530, led the winners, while the Washington team was topped by Mrs. Stein Jr., 590, and Green, 513. The Bly Moss five, last year's champions, ended their losing streak by whitewashing the Coca Colas, 2527 to 2138.

BOWLING ASSOCIATION TO MEET NEXT SUNDAY

Tarpaulin, breaking last from the outside, went to the front with a rush to set a rapid pace. Bejshak hugged the rail and saved ground at the turns, was tiring at the end and just lasted. Mate, outrun first quarter, was on the outside of the leaders entire journey and closed stoutly at the end and would have won in another stride. Novelist was in close quarters most of the trip. Magnifico a forward contender until the final furlong, where he tired badly. Pennate broke flat-footed and trailed along with the rear division most of the trip.

$2 mutuels paid: Tarpaulin, win, $12.90; place, $5.50; show, $3.40. Mate, place, $4.10; show, $2.60. Novelist, show, $2.50.

PITTSBURG SMOTHERS WESTERN RESERVE

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 11.—Pittsburg easily rolled over Western Reserve University today, 52 to 0. Reserve could do little except bristle in impotent indignation as the Panthers raced over their goal line at will. The Reserve team was completely bewildered with Pitt's reverse play, which accounted for several touchdowns.

STARPATIC WINS AT JAMAICA WITH 120 POUNDS UP

By the Associated Press.

JAMAICA, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The Sanford Stud Farm's recently acquired Starpatic, carrying 120 pounds and conceding from 6 to 22 pounds to his field, ran a brilliant race to land first money in the Continental Handicap, mile and one-sixteenth feature here this afternoon.

The colt was ridden by Catrone and the boy rode one of his good races, allowing the colt to rate in the early part, but when the field went wide on the stretch turn, he came through on the inside, saving many lengths, and it was this move that won the purse. Sun Edwin was second and Khara third.

There was only five starters, with Starpatic favorite at 7 to 5. Khara, the lightly weighted filly, rushed to the front and tried to make the rest of the field tire chasing her. However, after she had led to the middle of the stretch, Sun Edwin took command and appeared the winner, but turning into the stretch, Catrone saved ground and Starpatic, standing a long drive gamely, won by a head.

The race was worth $4900.

Bobby Jones and Tolley Put O. K. On New Golf Ball

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 11.—Bobby Jones believes a properly-hit drive in calm air with the new golf ball will be, on average, not more than five yards shorter than the same drive with the old ball.

"I like it," the golf champion said of the ball that will become official after Jan. 1.

Jones gave it as his opinion that with the wind against the drive the distance with the new ball will be proportionately less, and with the wind behind the drive, it will be longer, but not proportionately so.

"For the reason," he said, "That as it nears the end of its course on the fly, its speed will be less than that of the wind."

Cyril Tolley, former British amateur champion, who is a guest of Jones, also likes the new ball. Tolly should, for in a match with Jones he hit the new ball 350 yards from one tee, and on several other drives went above 300.

The big Britisher was paired with "Big Bob" Jones father of the great Bobby, and the quadruple champion was teamed with Charlie Freeman, a fellow club member.

The four played a lackadaisical match which was won by Bobby and Freeman, 2 up in spite of Tolley's long shots and "Big Bob's" phenomenal putting.

On the first nine holes, the elder Jones had seven one-putt greens and shot a 35 to match his famous son's score stroke for stroke.

Bobby turned in a 72, Tolley had a 77 and "Big Bob" turned in a 78 after slipping on the home nine. Freeman was off his game and said his score was "something aroung 98."

Gypsie Chief	111	3	6	$6^{½}$	7^{3}	$8^{½}$	9	E. McLaughlin	20.70

Andora, breaking well, soon raced into a good lead and racing gamely, held away to the end. Garrick, as usual, began slowly, was outrun to the stretch, then closed a big gap and was gaining rapidly on the inside at the end. Josephine D was in the first flight throughout. Miss Cheyenne weakened in the run home. Toney's Star was never a threat.

$2 mutuels paid: Andora, win $20.62, place $9.18, show $5.76; Garrick, place $7, show $5.04; Josephine D, show $4.10.

SECOND RACE—$1400, allowances, 2-year-olds, mile and 70 yards; Start good; won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:31 p. m.; off at once. Winner, b. or br. c. 2, by Lucillite-Siren. Trainer, S. N. Holman. Time, :24 4-5, :48 1-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:39, 1:43 3-5. Value to winners, $950, $250, $150, $50.

Drastic Delight	102	7	6	6^{h}	7	7	7	7	A. Pendergrass	39.12

aR. Caldwell entry.

Charmer sprinted to the front, and racing well, held on courageously to the end. Hillsborough was in close quarters on the back stretch and finished gamely on his own courage. Upright, off slowly, and in close quarters around the first turn, came to the outside of the field in the back stretch and although carried wide in the stretch made up ground and was going well at the end. Boiling weakened in the home run.

$2 mutuels paid: Charmer, win $10.32, place $4.44, show $2.90; aHillsborough, place $3.60, show $2.48; Upright, show $2.58.

THIRD RACE—$1500, all ages, six furlongs—Start good; won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:01 p. m. At post ½ minute. Winner, ch. f., 3, by Bunting-Whirl. Trainer, S. S. Combs. Time, :23, :46 4-5, 1:12 2-5. Value to winners, $1000, $300, $150, $50.

Polydor	126	1	2	2^{1}	6^{2}	7	7	R. Fischer	2.31

Lady Fingers sprinted to the front soon after the start, drew away from Polydor after going a quarter and racing gamely held gamely, held away to the end. Martie Flynn was outrun the first part, but came fast in the stretch and was racing strongest of all at the end. My Dandy close up on the outside in the early stages, came gamely in the stretch run, but seemed to hang in the last few strides. Nuskan showed good effort. Polydor quit.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Lady Fingers, win $13.40, place $4.82, show $2.72; Martie Flynn, place $8.24, show $3.80; My Dandy, show $2.96.

FOURTH RACE—$1800, allowances, 3-year-olds and up, mile and 70 yards. Start good; won driving; place same. Went to post, 3:32 p. m.; at post 1 minute. Winner, b. g. 6, by Seth-Bardora. Trainer, J. A. Parsons. Time, :23 2-5, :47, 1:12 3-5, 1:38, 1:42 3-5. Value to winner, $1300; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50.

HORSE.	Wt.	PP.	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1.

Andromeda	102	4	5	4^{1}	4^{h}	7	7	7	L. Cunningham	27.42

Seth's Hope, far back for the first mile, gained steadily thereafter and saving ground at the stretch turn, took to the outside of Fiddler in the run home and passing him in the last sixteenth, won going away. Fiddler shot to the front at once and opened up a long lead in the first half mile, but tired under punishment in the stretch and could not hold the winner. Tonto Rock held on fairly well. Ulunlu made up ground. Eskimo stopped badly after going six furlongs.

$2 mutuels paid: Seth's Hope, win, $52.82; place, $25.26; show, $8.66. Fiddler, place, $3.62; show, $2.60. Tonto Rock, show, $3.86.

TWO GAMES SCHEDULED TODAY IN DE MOLAY FOOTBALL LEAGUE

The De Molay Football League will open its second season this afternoon with a doubleheader at Cleveland High School Field, Grand boulevard and Osceola street, starting at 1 o'clock.

Strengthening of the teams is expected to result in the Perfection eleven having a hard time in duplicating its winning of the championship last year. The same teams are in the league as last year.

Perfection will oppose Harmony in the opening game today, while St. Louis and Carondelet will meet in the second at 3 o'clock.

There is no admission.

CALIFORNIA RALLIES TO BEAT ST. MARY'S, 7-6, IN HARD GAME

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 11.—The University of California football team defeated St. Mary's, 7 to 6, here today, coming from behind to win one of the hardest-fought games ever witnessed in the California Memorial Stadium.

The Gaels scored first, marking up a touchdown in the first quarter when Bud Toscani, halfback, scored from the three-yard line after a march down the field. The attempted conversion was wide.

The Bears scored their touchdown in the opening minutes of the last period on a four-yard pass from Hank Schalbach to Russ Avery. Schalbach drop-kicked the conversion.

California showed a surprising gain in strength since the Bears' defeat last Saturday by Washington State.

The Californians gained 134 yards from passes, while the Saints chalked up 71 yards. From scrimmage the Gaels gained 106 yards to 89 yards for the Bears. St. Mary's made 11 first down to eight for California.

BEECHER LEADS IN WEEKLY PISTOL SHOOT

S. L. Beecher led the entrants in the weekly shoot of the St. Louis Pistol and Revolver Club on their range, turning in a score of 89, while the next highest, E. C. Frechmann, had an 85. Shooting was at 20 yards, slow fire.

The scores:

ST. LOUIS CLUBS NOT WORRIED BY DRAFT WAR WITH MINOR LEAGUES

By J. Roy Stockton.

Sam Breadon of the Cardinals and Phil Ball of the Browns, having invested important money in minor league baseball clubs, might well be expected to be worried over the threatened war with the smaller circuits over the draft, but if they are at all perturbed, there is no evidence of it at the St. Louis major league offices.

The Cardinals own or control the Rochester club of the International League and the Browns are interested in Milwaukee of the American Association, through Phil Ball's personal ownership of stock in the Brewers. Therefore, if the major leagues break off relations wth those leagues Dec. 1, as they have threatened to do, the two minor league clubs will cease to be sources of player supply and farms where promising athletes can be developed.

Dispatches from Cleveland yesterday told how representatives of the American and National Leagues and the three Class AA minors—the American Association, International and Pacific Coast leagues, wrangled all day Friday without approximating any state of agreement.

According to L. C. McEvoy, vice-president of the Browns, the minor leagues agreed to recognize the draft in principle, but that the conditions they demanded made an agreement impossible. A draft price of $10,000, considered exorbitant, and a demand that players be permitted to serve several years before becoming subject to the draft were the outstanding causes of disagreement at the Cleveland conference.

Have Until December 1.

The one thing that saves the situation for the Cardinals and Browns and other major league clubs with minor league holdings is the fact that they have until Dec. 1 to get their affairs in order. Meantime the Cardinals can pluck from Rochester all the players wanted for 1931 service, the Browns can do the same thing at Milwaukee, if any useful athletes are there, and then perhaps, before another season rolls around, peace will have been made.

If the break with the minors had occurred a year ago, the Cardinals would be in an uncomfortable position, with First Baseman Collins, Pitchers Derringer and Carleton, Outfielder Worthington and Infielder Wilson ready for service in the big league. With all relations broken the Cardinals could not sell to Rochester, buy from Rochester and the farm team could not even sell players to other big league clubs.

The major leagues served notice of the break with the nondraft leagues at their joint meeting last December, stating that after Dec. 1, 1930, the majors would have no further dealings with minor leagues which did not recognize the universal draft. The meeting at Cleveland was called in the hope that the interested parties could affect a compromise.

Can Draft Only One Player.

At present major leagues may draft one player from each minor league club each year. The three class AA leagues have operated in recent years under a modified draft agreement, whereby players are not subject to selection unless they have been sent to the leagues by major clubs.

McEvoy and Business Manager Bill Friel represented the Browns at the Cleveland meeting, while Warren Giles, president of the Rochester club, was the only representative from the Cardinal organization.

LINCOLN HIGH ELEVEN OF JEFFERSON CITY BEATS SUMNER, 12-7

The Lincoln University Negro High School eleven of Jefferson City won its opening game of the season when it defeated the Sumner High School Bulldogs yesterday at the Star's Park, 12 to 7. The visitors collected 12 points in the first quarter when Starks ran 35 yards on an off tackle play to score a touchdown and later in the same period he threw a forward pass which was completed by Taylor to score again for the Lincoln school. The Jefferson City team fumbled a Sumner punt on its 35-yard line and Robinson scooped up theb all and ran for a touchdown for the locals, while Harris scored the extra point on a line plunge.

Starks and Johnson were the outstanding players for the visiting eleven while Robinson and Jackson starred for Sumner.

CLINE ARRIVES IN GOOD CONDITION FOR FIGHT WITH WALKER FRIDAY

MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMPION DUE HERE TUESDAY FOR WORKOUT

Tiger Johnny Cline, rough and rugged Los Angeles fighter, who faces Mickey Walker, world middleweight champion in the feature ten-round match on Mique Malloy's boxing card Friday night at the Coliseum, is in prime physical condition. The California Italian, who has won his last ten bouts, claims that he has never been knocked out in some 300 battles. The Walker-Cline bout tops an interesting card of six matches.

Cline will take part in his first local sparring session this afternoon at the National gymnasium. Following the advice of his manager, Fred (Windy) Winsor, Cline enjoyed a day of rest yesterday. The Far West light-heavyweight was a bit tired following his long train ride from Los Angeles, but will make up for lost time today with a strenuous session. Several sparring partners have been engaged to assist Cline in his training grind this week.

Cline Has Fought Here Twice.

In his two previous local appearances, Cline administered a nasty lacing to Chuch Heffner, and battled Al Stillman, St. Louis middleweight, to a draw. One of his best fights took place when he was awarded the decision over Dave Shade, a battler who gave Walker a hard scrap several years ago. Shade won over Cline in their other meeting.

Ring fans will not get a glimpse of Walker until Tuesday when the champion and his manager, Jack Kearns, will check in town. Mickey will complete his training at a downtown gymnasium. Walker, according to word sent here, is feeling fit following numerous engagements. He added several victories to his list by engaging in a busy summer season.

Schwake in Semifinal.

John Schwake, St. Louis County heavyweight, seemingly, is in the best physical condition of his career for the eight-round semiwindup battle with Harvey Mortensen, larruping Chicago mauler Schwake says he will try and win the match on a knockout, for if he looks impressive in this match he will be given another opportunity to take on Chuck Wiggins in a St. Louis ring. The Webster Groves mauler stopped the Indianapolis scrapper in a recent meeting in Springfield, Ill.

Schwake, who is managed by Joe Herbst, has not suffered a setback since he has been battling in the professional ranks. Most of his victims have been defeated on knockouts, and, with the exception of only one match, he administered severe lacings to all his foes. In the lone scrap he failed to win he was held to a draw by Dave Knost, another local heavyweight. Two of the fighters who stayed the limit with him were Frankie Wine and Joe Lohman, a pair of veterans. Tiny Roebuck, huge Kansas City Indian, who is now wrestling for a living, was on the verge of a knockout when he fouled Schwake last year in the Coliseum ring.

Malloy predicts that Mortensen will put Schwake to the test and if the local puncher gets by the coming battle in handy fashion the Stockham Post matchmaker will line up several better-known fighters for future opponents. K. O. Christner, Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko are listed among the heavyweights Malloy will attempt to sign as adversaries for Schwake.

The supporting card, featuring St. Louis and Illinois fighters, promises to furnish fans with some interesting matches. In the two six-rounders, Frank Power, former city amateur champion, who is now campaigning in the heavyweight division, meets Nick Taft, a Chicagoan; Buddy Schlereth, George Wilsman's shifty lightweight, faces Herchie Wilson, another rugged Windy Cityan.

Dave Barry, Springfield (Ill.) bantamweight, will be Woodrow Williams' opponent in the four-round curtain-raiser, and Peewee Terry will take on Frankie Almarz, Chicago 118-pounder. Williams, who is looked upon as a promising young fighter, will be making his professional debut. Terry has been very successful in his few professional matches to date.

CHICAGO LEADS ST. LOUIS TEAM IN INTER-CITY GOLF MATCHES

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—St. Louis golfers got off to a bad start in the first phase of their annual intercity match with Chicago amateurs at Medinah Country Club today, scoring only 15 points in the singles contests to 30 for the Chicagoans.

The St. Louis team was minus the services of Jimmy Manion, its No. 1 man, who did not arrive from Tulsa in time to play. He won the Petroleum Institute championship there yesterday.

Tomorrow's best ball matches between doubles teams are scheduled over the 36-hole route and it will be necessary for the St. Louisans to overcome a 15-point handicap to win.

O'Brien Shoots a 67.

Despite the fact that Chicago won the greater number of points today, it was a St. Louis boy who had the best score, Chester O'Brien, Westborough, turning in a 67 on the par 70, No. 3 course. Chester played great golf all the way, going out in 36 and coming back in 31, despite a six on the par five twelfth hole.

He showed in his practice during the morning that he was at the top of his game and he carried the spurt with him throughout the day. His fine score enabled him to win three points from George Dawson, brother of Johnny, famous Chicago player, and lead the St. Louis team in scoring. He was the only visitor to score a shutout over his opponent. His card:

Out:
Par ....435 434 444—35
O'Brien .....435 535 434—36
In:
Par ....345 444 434—35 70
O'Brien .....236 334 334—31 67

Roger Lord, veteran Algonquin player; Dick Bockenkamp, Midland Valley star and Missouri amateur champion, and the youthful Leonard Casale, Woodlawn, each won two points and lost one. Bockenkamp defeated Johnny Lehman, Western amateur champion, one up, while Lord conquered Art Sweet, and Casale won from Carl Devol, who was playing his home course.

Casale barely missed a hole in one on the seventeenth, a par 3 pitch shot, 110 yards long, over water. His ball arched through the the air, struck the flagpole and slithered down it, hit the cup and bounced 10 feet away.

Some of the boys found their Chicago opponents entirely too strong and were unable to win a point. Elliott Whitbread was shut out by Jack Westland, former amateur champion of France, losing the first nine one up, and the second nine one up. Westland had a 75 to Whitbread's 77. Russell Martin blanked Dr. I. R. Davis, Forest Park, winning the first nine one up and the second two and one. Frank Justin took three points from Chick Irwin, North Hills, while H. F. Bowbeer whitewashed Harold McAninch, Crystal Lake. Rial Rolfe shut out Charley Collins, Western junior champion.

In the other matches Ira Couch, runner-up to Lehman in the Western amateur, won two points, while Don Anderson, Normandie, won one; Gus Novotny won two points, Lester Slattery one, Lou Levinson two points, Ben Goodwin, Algonquin, one, Johnny Ames two, Earl Whatley, North Hills, one, Joe Bour two, Mike Roach, district junior champion, one, Don Hamilton two, Sid Salomon Jr., Westwood, one.

Not So Difficult.

The course is none too difficult, having a total yardage of 6261 with a par of 70. There are eight par four holes in the layout under 400 yards in length. It is situated some 25 miles out of Chicago proper.

One thing which all the visitors appreciated was the fine condition of the fairways. After playing on "concrete" all summer, they were surprised to see the fine covering of grass on the Medinah course.

Johnny Manion, Sunset Hill professional, who accompanied the St. Louis team as coach, played the course in a friendly match and had a par 70.

Manion, incidentally forgot his bag of clubs and left them on the train. He discovered it too late to go back for them and a messenger was sent to the club with them. When he arrived he presented John with a bil for $15 taxicab fare.

Jimmy Manion arrived by airplane late this afternoon and will play in the four-ball matches tomorrow. He will resume his place at No. 1 and probably pair with Whitbread.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN CRUSHES ARKANSAS

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 11.—Texas Christian University opened the defense of its Southwest Conference football title with a smashing 40 to 0 victory over University of Arkansas before 10,000 fans here today. The game marked the dedication of the Frogs' new 30,000-seat stadium.

BOWLING NOTES

Entry blanks have been mailed to all Knights of Columbus bowlers for the sixth annual City Tournament, scheduled to start Nov. 15 at 7 o'clock at the Gravois Recreation alleys. The opening squad will see 16 teams from the Santa Maria Council in action. On Sunday, Nov. 16, eight teams of St. Louis County Knights will bowl. Entries for the event close Nov. 1 and additional information can be obtained from A. B. Berne, 3939 Minnesota avenue.

A special three-game match between the Melene Recreations and Held Recreations will be rolled at the Held alleys this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Both teams are members of the Major City League.

Two of the leading teams of the Fairmount Business Men's Bowling League will meet in a special match at the Wellston alleys today at 1 o'clock. Both teams will use their regular league lineups. The teams are the Probsts and Al's Shop five. The Probst lineup: H. I. Rothwell, F. Davey, F. Gianella, R. Davey and F. Taff. Al's lineup: Joe Merlo, Arthur Guidici, Mike Canziani, Sam Parrino and Louis Purcuilli.

This week's bowling in the Peterson Scratch League resulted in good scores by the Flint Laundry team and Schmitt's Ready Mixers, each team winning three games from the C. C. Petersan's and the Witter Razz respectively.

The Flint's games of 1011-979-1053 for a total of 3043 were high. Krems 702, Wilson 634, Dean 602 were high.

The Schmitt's games of 988-1020-1027 for a total of 3035 were led by Gronek 709, Ludwig 626, Mulconnery 607. Ameling with 623 and Martin 601 were high for the Witter Razz.

The South Side Chevrolets won the odd game from the Sunshine Laundry Co. team. Andy Leicht, with 601, was high for the South Sides. Cotter 622, Moehle 617 were high for the Sunshine Laundry Co.

The Wooster Lamberts won the odd game from the Hellrung & Grimms. Holmes was high on the Wooster Lamberts with 652, Sherwood 682, Beckmeyer 600, were high for the Hellrungs.

Gronek won individual high three with games of 206-224-279 for a 709 total. Krems won high single with 263.

The Brennan team of the Wellston Recreation Scratch League will bowl a home-and-home match with the Peters team of St. Charles today. The first three games will be bowled at the Wellston alleys, 5942 Easton avenue, starting at 1 o'clock, and the last three games at St. Charles tonight at 7 o'clock. The Brennans include Fred Hager, Ray Ziegler, George Fothergill, Jassen Skinner and C. F. Kaley. The Peters five are the stars of the suburban city.

Moore-Finnegan Bout Tops Ring Card Tuesday

Barney McCarthy, matchmaker for the Tower Athletic Club, has arranged four of his ten matches for Tuesday night's amateur boxing card at Rodenberg Hall. In the feature bout on the card Farrell Moore, Mississippi Valley welterweight champion, will oppose "Wild Bill" Finnegan of the South Broadway A. C.

Until last spring Finnegan was unknown, but a series of victories over well-known amateur fighters boosted his stock considerably.

In another topliner Merl Thompson, Mississippi Valley bantamweight champion, takes on Victor Pudlowski, another South Broadway battler. Pudlowski, in a recent match, won over Thompson. Late in the fight Pudlowski came to life and won the decision by a handy margin.

Lloyd Bunyard, of the Collinsville A. C., opposes Tony Fuerst, Wellston A. C. lightweight, in another match.

NORTHWESTERN AND STANFORD AGREE ON TWO-YEAR SCHEDULE

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 11.—While excitment over the condition of Capt. Hank Bruder raged in Evanston tonight, Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern completed arrangements with Stanford University for home and home football games in 1932 and 1933. The first game will be played at Palo Alto, Cal., in 1932, with the second contest being scheduled for Chicago in connection with the World Fair. Hanley completed negotiations by telephone with Stanford representatives at Minneapolis, where the coast team met Minnesota today.

JAVA WRAPPED

THE SECRET OF LA PALINA'S BLEND

From the lush, tropic land of Java, we import the finest quality tobacco leaf grown, to be used for the La Palina wrapper . . . That's what makes La Palina different — better — milder — smoother. La Palina's choice filler of blended tobacco combines with the Java wrapper to give you a truly superior cigar.

CURTAIN RISES THIS AFTERNOON ON PROFESSIONAL SOCCER SEASON

The performance of new players who will break into the lineups of the St. Louis Soccer League teams this afternoon will make the opening games of the season more than usually interesting. Aside from changes brought about by trades, the teams will appear greatly altered through the introduction of twelve new players.

In the opening game, Phil Kavanaugh hopes his Coca-Colas will win with a new goaltender, McShane; a new halfback, Gallagher, and a new forward, Bochnicek.

Tate Brady will give an opportunity to Goaltender Stohlman; and Halfback Bill Corbett, both formerly with the Dolans.

Johnny Marre will introduce Joe Phelan at halfback and Eddie Flavin at center forward.

Willie Foley has new men in Fullback Keenoy; Halfback Thoene and Claeys.

In addition, there are numerous new players on the team rosters, ready to get into the game at the first opportunity.

In the past, the opening games of the season have not been very well played because the teams rarely played practice matches. This season a new order prevails. The Tablers and Coca-Colas, especially, have been active in preseason practice. Both have played Gillespie and both have had many hours of hard practice. If this work does nothing more it should put the players into good shape physically for the opening games this afternoon.

Kavanaugh Rebuilding.

Kavanaugh's team is in the process of rebuilding. Phil has made trades which he things will be beneficial, particularly in bringing about a better spirit of co-operation. The team failed last season as the Madisons after having gained national recognition by reaching the cup final the previous season.

Ribby Murphy will again be the league referee, assisted by Jim Burke and Len Zeuschel.

TEN RACES TODAY ON AUTO CARD AT CREVE COEUR

The Greater St. Louis Speedway under the new management of Don C. Only, veteran AAA race official, will have 10 automobile races today at Creve Coeur, beginning at 10 a. m. The races today will designate the dirt track champion for the 1930 season and practically all drivers eligible to the championship tuned up yesterday.

As a special added thriller the speedway management has secured Jack Early of Hollywood, daredevil stunt man, who will ride through a solid board wall built especially for the stunt. This wall is built of heavy lumber, and will be crashed at about 80 miles an hour by Early on his motorcycle.

The 25-mile stock car race and the 15-lap tramp car race have brought out some forty additional entries to the long list of professional drivers.

THE PROGRAM.

Time trials and qualifying heats, each driver making one lap of the track against time for qualifying and position in afternoon event.

First elimination heat—Open to six fastest cars. Distance 8 laps. Rolling start. Two prizes.

Second elimination heat—Open to four non-winners of event No. 2 and next two fastest cars qualified. Distance eight laps. Rolling start. Two prizes.

Third elimination heat—Open to four non-winners of event No. 3 and next two fastest cars qualified. Distance eight laps. Rolling start. Two prizes.

Consolation race—Open to all non-money winners. Distance 10 laps. Rolling start. Three prizes.

Championship dash—Open to championship entrants. Distance five laps. Winner takes all.

St. Louis helmet dash—Open to winners of events 2 and 3. Distance eight laps. Winner takes all.

Greater St. Louis grand sweepstakes—Open to winners of events 2, 3, 4 and 5, and two additional entries selected by referee. Distance 20 laps. Four prizes.

Twenty-five lap-modified stock car race—Open to all stock cars.

Fifteen laps, "tramp" car junk race—Open to cars whose owners agree to sell their mounts to anyone in the audience for not more than $50.

Jack Early, movie stunt performer, crashing a solid board wall at 80 miles an hour, with his motor cycle.

Debutantes Who Will Be Presented to Society This Season

Number Fewer Than Last Year—V. P. Queen and Special Maids of Honor Among Those Who Will Make Bow.

WITH the jeweled crown, the gift of th Veiled Prophet, resting securely on th brow of Miss Jane Perry Francis, i seems pertinent to announce the personnel of the remainder of the list of young women who will make their debuts this season. Although the number is less by a dozen than that of last year, prospects for parties seem brighter than they were a fortnight ago. The unusual warmth of October has been mentioned by a number of the buds as a contributing cause to the slowness of the season in getting into its accustomed swing.

So much has been said concerning Miss Francis and her four special maids of honor, that it is hardly necessary to more than mention their names and the dates of their coming-out parties. Miss Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talton T. Francis will be guest of honor at a dinner at the St. Louis Country Club Nov. 14. Miss Betty Rathmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Rathmann, the first special maid, will make her bow at a tea to be given by her mother the afternoon of Oct. 29 from 4 to 6 at their home. Miss Louise Goddard, second special maid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddard, will be presented at a mixed reception Thanksgiving day, followed by a buffet supper for the debutantes and their escorts. Miss Adeline Ely Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ely Smith, will wait until later in the season before announcing the arrangement for her party. In the meantime, however, number of smaller affairs will be given fo her. Miss Jane Blackmer, daughter of M and Mrs. L. Guy Blackmer, and the fourth i the Prophet's immediate court, decided onl yesterday to be a debutante this winter instead of returning to Vassar College for he junior year, and may return to her studie at the close of the formal season, so pla for meeting her friends formally have no been decided.

With the foregoing mention of five important buds the following is an authentic li of this season's 21 debutantes:

Miss Amelia Overall, daughter of Mr. an Mrs. John Overall, Kent road, will make he formal bow at a dinner dance to be given b her parents at the St. Louis Country Clu Thanksgiving eve, one of the most sought after dates in the social season. Miss Overal attended Mary Institute and Miss Porter' School in Farmington, Conn. Later she attended the French School in New York. Sh and her parents have been in Hot Spring Va., for the late summer and early autumn and are expected home tomorrow. Miss Overall's mother was Miss Amelia Cupples Scudder, a belle in her girlhood, and of a prominent old St. Louis family.

Miss Mary Leslie Dana, second daughter o Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dana of Brentmoor, attended Mary Institute and was graduate from John Burroughs and Miss Bennett' School, Milbrook, N. Y. She is returnin home today or tomorrow from New Yor where she has been visiting since her retur from Europe with her parents a fortnigh ago. Miss Dana is a sister of Mrs. Jame Ward Thorne of Chicago, who, as Miss Judith Dana, was a popular member of th younger set. The Dana family has a summe home at Wianno, Mass., where they hav spent the seasons for several years. Mi Dana's debut party is scheduled for Dec. and will be a dinner dance at the St. Lou Country Club with her parents as host an hostess.

Miss Geraldine Allen, third daughter of M and Mrs. Gerard B. Allen, 4632 Marylan avenue, will be formally presented at a di ner dance to be given by her grandmothe Mrs. George L. Allen, 26 Westmorelan place, the evening of Friday, Dec. 19, at t St. Louis Country Club. The debutant known to all of her friends as "Tiny" r turned a few days ago with her family fro Rye Beach, N. H., there they have had cottage for the summer. Miss Allen is a alumna of Mary Institute and the Frenc School in New York. A year ago she spe the summer traveling abroad with her mothe and last winter was in the South for the se son. Several other parties are being plann and will be announced later.

Miss Elizabeth Singleton, daughter of M and Mrs. Marvin E. Singleton, 37 King bury place, will make her social bow at a b which her parents will give at their home t evening of Nov. 10.

Miss Singleton was educated at the Jo Burroughs School and the Barrington Scho Great Barrington, Mass. Last year she tended Mme. Clemont's School in Paris, turning to spend the summer in Watch H R. I., with her sister, Miss Susie Singlet a debutante of two years ago. Mrs. Singlet spent part of the summer in California wi her family.

Bridlespur Club to Hold Annual Steeplechase Nov. 1

THE second annual point-to-point steeplechase, the Bridlespur Hunt Club's outstanding social and sporting event of the autumn season, will take place Saturday, Nov. 1, on the club's grounds in Huntleigh Village, St. Louis County. In connection with the race, numerous breakfasts, teas and dinners will be held during the week.

The members of the Executive Committee are George S. Tiffany, Lewis D. Dozier, August A. Busch Jr., Edward L. Bakewell and Louis A. Hager Jr.

A meeting will be held this week to select members for the other committees. About 50 members will be named.

The Bridlespur course, including the property of Dr. R. E. Wilson and H. H. Herwick, which is being remodeled for the point-to-point meeting has been planted with timothy and English rye. It is planned to build a grandstand just back of the winning post which will seat 4500 persons and from which almost the entire course will be in view. The Bridlespur course has been constructed to follow in detail the Epsom Downs Derby course in England.

Mrs. J. K. Tully Hostess At Bridge Luncheon

MRS. JAMES K. TULLY, 12 Westmoreland place, was hostess Friday afternoon at a bridge luncheon complimenting her guest, Mrs. Albert Gardner of Evanston, Ill., who arrived in St. Louis a week ago. An innovation in prizes was a portrait sketch of the winner by William Wood, New York artist, who has an exhibition at Hotel Chase, and whom Mrs. Tully invited to her home for the occasion.

The guests were Mrs. Knox Taussig, Mrs. Paul D. Moser, Mrs. Elzey Roberts, Mrs. William Harrison Luytles, Mrs. John C. Roberts Jr., Mrs. Grandison D. Royston, Mrs. Jerome Schotten, Mrs. Edward Morton Banister, Mrs. Rollin Curtis, Mrs. Alfred W. Brown, Mrs., Edward Funsten, Mrs. Fairfax Funsten, Mrs. Mary Hoffman Grayson, Mrs. James E. Crawford, Mrs. Stanley Wight, Mrs. Lynn Gratiot, Mrs. Charlton Alexander, Mrs. Frederick C. Lake Jr., Mrs. George B. Logan, Mrs. Blasdel Shapleigh, Mrs. C. D. P. Hamilton Jr., and Mrs. Owen Mitchell. Mrs. Gardner will depart today for her home.

escorts. Later in the evening the debutante set will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Connett at the theater. Miss Connett is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent in St. Louis, and attended Bradford Junior College, Bradford, Mass., for two years. She spends her summers in Charlevoix, Mich., with her family. Miss Connett is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Schlafly.

Arrangements for Miss Margaret Vieth's parties will probably be made following her return this week from Hyannisport, Mass., where she has been spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar H. Vieths, 6432 Cecil avenue. She is a graduate of the John Burroughs School and attended Holton Arms in Washington for a year. She continued her studies in St. Louis last winter. Miss Vieths is a granddaughter of Mrs. Wayman C. McCreery. Her mother, formerly Miss Louise McCreery, was a Veiled Prophet queen of a former year.

Miss Helen Kirtland Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Nelson Spencer, 4324 McPherson avenue, is an interesting addition to the list of the season's buds. Miss Spencer is a graduate of Mary Institute and Vassar College, class of last June. She remained in the East until late August and will make her bow at a series of dinner and theater parties throughout the season. Last night she was the guest of honor at a small dinner party given by Mrs. Thomas T. Richards, 5272 Washington boulevard, one of the first parties of the season.

Miss Mary Jane Baumes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Baumes, 4605 Lindell boulevard, promises to be one of the most popular of this year's group of buds. She is a graduate of Mary Institute, and last year took a special work there in the crafts. Miss Baumes recently returned from Hyannisport, Mass., where she spent six weeks as the guest of Miss Caro Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holmes of the St. Louis Country Club grounds, and visited in Cleveland en route home. No definite plans have been made for her parties, which are to be informal.

Miss Melissa McKay, daughter of Mrs. John A. McKay, 5133 Westminster place, will make her formal bow this winter. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Wheeler's School in Providence, R. I., and spent the winter in Europe with Miss Jane Conzelman, chaperoned by Mrs. William J. Porter. She recently returned from Charlevoix, Mich., where, with her mother, her sister, Miss Katherine, a brother, George, and her grandmother, Mrs. George F. Meyer, she spent the summer at their cottage. She was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. Miss McKay spent last winter in Europe, chaperoned by Mrs. William J. Porter. Invitations will be received tomorrow for a luncheon to be given by her mother Monday, Oct. 27, at the Bellerive Country Club.

Miss Sara Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hillsman Taylor, 5 Washington terrace, will make her bow at a reception which her mother will give for her at their home in November. Later her parents will give a ball in her honor. She attended Mary Institute and was graduated from Ward-Belmont College. She later attended Hollins College in Virginia and spent last year at the Finch School in New York. Miss Taylor returned recently from Europe where she spent several months traveling with her sister, Miss Nettie Taylor, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln.. Her mother was Miss Katherine Taylor of Nashville, Tenn. Her grandfather, the late Robert L. Taylor, was a United States Senator and Governor of Tennessee for three terms.

The name of Miss Mary Francis Day, known to her close friends as "Tina," has been added to the list. Miss Day is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Day of Ferguson, and is related to the Francis families of St. Louis, for whom she was named. She is a graduate of Mary Institute, class of 1929, and last year attended Pine Manor, Wellesley, Mass. The plans for her debut are not definite.

Miss Audrey Betts, daughter of Mrs. John Frederick Betts, 5150 Westminster place, is planning an informal debut, and later in the season will have a few informal parties. Miss Betts attended Mary Institute until her junior year, when she attended Mlle. Rey's School in Paris for a year. She was graduated in June from the French school in New York. She and her mother divided their time this summer between Rye Beach, N. H., and Hot Springs, Va.

Another Sacred Heart Convent graduate among the buds of the season is Miss Margaret Ellen Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Wagner, 603 Moorlands drive. Miss Wagner spent last winter studying piano music, in which she is proficient, at the Leo Miller studios. She will make her bow at a tea to be given by her mother the afternoon of Nov. 5 at their home from 4 to 6 o'clock, and a number of other parties are being arranged, including one at which her sister, Mrs. Henry T. Brinckwirth, will be hostess, the date to be announced later.

An informal debut is being planned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Costigan, 5235 Lindell boulevard, for their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth, one of the most attractive of the Veiled Prophet maids of honor Wednesday night. She will be honor guest at a series of informal functions during the season, the dates to be arranged later. Miss Costigan is a graduate of the Visitation Academy, and the Sacred Heart College at Maryville. She recently returned with her family from a summer's trip through Canada. Two years ago they traveled in Europe.

The initial fall meeting of Miriam No. 17, U. O. T. S., will be a luncheon at the Forest Park Hotel Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. An election of delegates to the convention of the grand lodge will be held.

Missouri day was celebrated by St. Louis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Oct. 3 at Jefferson Memorial, Mrs. Clement William Nelson, regent, presiding. Mrs. G. B. Puller of Washington, national chairman of genealogical research; Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, national vice chairman, and Mrs. Howard Bailey, State regent, were the honored guests.

Mrs. C. I. Pasch, accompanied by Mrs. J. Watson O'Brien, sang two groups of songs. The song "To the Flag of the U. S. A.," composed by Miss Grace Danforth of Charleston, Mo., and dedicated to the D. A. R. and the Sons of the American Revolution, was sung by Mrs. Pasch, the author requesting that this song be sung for the first time before St. Louis Chapter. McCune Gill spoke on "Unusual Phases of Missouri History."

Mrs. Alexander Smither of California, a former member of St. Louis Chapter and now State regent of the Daughters of the American Colonists of California, was present.

Mrs. Howard Bailey, State regent, told of her recent visit to Arrow Rock, and said that after 100 years the Tavern had electric lights and refrigeration. The State conference will be held at Kansas City, Mo., from Tuesday to Friday. Next Saturday and Sunday the delegation will celebrate the Centennial of Arrow Rock Tavern at Arrow Rock, Mo.

Mrs. Edwin B. Sherzer and Mrs. W. R. Bright were the hostesses for the afternoon. The tea tables were decorated with the State flower.

"Mary, Queen of Scots" is the subject of a paper to be given before the Friday Club next Friday by Mrs. A. E. Murphy of Kimmswick, Mo. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ernest L. Coffin, 147 North Hanley road. Mrs. Donald McFayden will be assistant hostess. Roll call will be responded to with names of Scottish rulers and the musical numbers on the program will be Scotch ballads. The discussion will be led by Mrs. Donald McFayden and Mrs. Lillie Wilcox.

"The Life of Napoleon" was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Sherzer, and the discussion was led by Mrs. William H. Allen and Mrs. C. W. Middleton. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. James H. McCabe, 5611 Bartmer avenue.

Mrs. W. H. Wright, president, entertained the members of the board of directors at her home, 6912 Washington avenue, last Friday. Plans were made to celebrate Reciprocity day Nov. 7.

The Current Topics Club held its

Atchison will speak on "Macbeth."

The five local chapters Daughters of the Confederacy and the Sons of Confederate Veterans have united to form a service corps for the benefit of the veterans of Camp 731. The plan of this organization was the work of the late Edward C. Fisher who, at the time of his death, was state commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Mrs. John Ritchie of Confederate Dame Chapter is general chairman and her committee will be made up of representatives from the different U. D. C. chapters.

The organization has a meeting each second Sunday at 3 o'clock at Jefferson Memorial. Mrs. William L. Ray of Margaret McLure chapter is program chairman. The music today will be furnished by the O'Wade Fallert Studio and there will be several talks and readings.

The Ben A'Kiba Aid Society has erected a drinking fountain on the playgrounds of the Jewish Orphans' Home, 6630 Oakland avenue, in memory of one of its founders, Mrs. Fanny G. Rosenblatt. The public is invited to the dedication today at 3 p. m. Rabbi Samuel Thurman will be the speaker.

To carry on its charity and philanthropies, this society will sponsor a card party at Nugent's Auditorium on Wednesday, Oct. 29, at 1 p. m.

The monthly meeting of the Corona Catholic Club was held Monday evening, Oct. 6, at 3730 Lindell boulevard. Miss Mary Bauer, 2623A Iowa avenue, has charge of the arrangements of a Halloween party at Castlewood Oct. 25.

For the balance of the season, there will be only one mass on Sunday at Castlewood, after the arrival of the 7:35 a. m. train.

Community Center Mothers' Circle met at Roosevelt High School Saturday, Oct. 4. Mrs. M. Stern, president, presided. M. M. Hart of Roosevelt High School addressed the circle. His principal topic was "Character Development of the Child."

The next meeting of the Athena Delphian Chapter will be held at the home of Miss Ann Gerock, Wednesday evening, Oct. 15, and the subject for discussion will be "French Opera." Text reports have been assigned as follows: "Gluck and His Methods," "Orpheus and Eurydice," Miss Rosalie Nutt; "Cherubini's Life and Work" and "Meyerbeer," Mrs. Ione Gilmore; "Les Huguenots" and "Gounod's Faust," Miss Lida Collins; "Saint-Saens' Two Best Known Operas," Miss Ann Gerock; "Mignon," Miss Amy Collins; "Carmen" and "Manon Lescaut," Miss Ann Knickman.

Members of Harmony Literary Club were entertained by Mrs. C. M. McMahon, 1395 Union boulevard, Friday, Oct. 3, at a 1 o'clock luncheon at her home. The president, Mrs. W. W. Saunders, presided.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. C. Markham, 3940 Russell boulevard, on Friday, Oct. 17, at 1 p. m. The response to roll call will be Spanish Traditions and a portion of the program will be devoted to the memory of Virgil, whose birthday anniversary is Oct. 15.

The younger members of De Soto Circle No. 171, Daughters of Isabella, are sponsoring their fourth informal dance which will be given in the Knights of Columbus Hall, 7318 Manchester avenue, Thursday evening, Oct. 16.

The committee in charge of the arrangements are: Miss Laura Kahmann, chairman; Miss Marcella Sullivan, Miss Lillian Barnes, Miss Marie Barnes, Miss Marie McLaughlin, Miss Margaret Butler, Miss Gertrude Foan and Miss Marie Carr.

De Soto Circle held its election of officers at its meeting Thursday evening, Oct 2. The following were elected for the coming year: Regent, Mrs. Mary A. Gibbar; vice regent, Mrs. Jennie Sanguinet; recording secretary, Miss Fay Hahn;

Simple Home Mixture Darkens Gray Hair

Cincinnati Barber Tells How Any One Can Prepare It in 5 Minutes.

Any man or woman can easily look twenty years younger by simply darkening their gray, faded, or streaky hair. This is now easy to accomplish with a recipe given by a well known Cincinnati barber.

Simply take a half-pint of water, add one ounce of bay rum, ¼ ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound. Shake and it is ready to use. These ingredients can be bought at drug stores at trifling cost.

Applied to the hair twice weekly this delightful mixture quickly gives the desired shade. It is easy to use, is not sticky or greasy, will not color the scalp and does not rub off.

MISS ALOHA GRAHAM of Kansas City arrived yesterday to be the guest of Miss Marion Ervin, 255 Blackmer place, and will be a bridesmaid in the Rountree-Haase wedding, Oct. 18.

Miss Nora McDonald, 433 Gray avenue, returned home Monday from a visit of two weeks at Asheville, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fox, 324 South Elm avenue, have gone to Jackson, Miss., for a visit with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fox Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chambers, 119 Portland terrace, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Chambers of San Diego, Cal., motored to French Lick, Ind., to spend a few days before going to Louisville, Ky., for the week-end and attend the races at Churchill Downs while there.

Mrs. Leo Schnabel of Dallas, Tex., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Melton, 7001 Northmoor drive. Mrs. Melton entertained Thursday afternoon at a luncheon at the Algonquin Country Club, in compliment to Mrs. Schnabel and Mrs. E. P. Fordham of Los Angeles, who is the guest of Mrs. Allen Williams, 7060 Maryland avenue. Eighteen guests were seated at the oblong table, the center of which was covered with mirrored glass resembling a miniature lake outlined with oak leaves and in the center of the lake was placed a small island of dahlias, zinnias and chrysanthemums in the autumn shades. Following the luncheon the guests motored to the home of Mrs. Melton to play bridge the remainder of the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kooser, 210 Rosemont avenue, and their daughter, Miss Juliet Kooser, arrived home last week from their summer home at Somerset, Pa., where they have been since early in May.

Mrs. J. J. King of Chicago will arrive this week to be the guest for a fortnight of Mrs. Emily F. Russell, 414 Park road. Mrs. King will be complimented with several formal and a few informal affairs during her stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wayne Green, 127 Jefferson road, motored to French Lick, Ind., to spend the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. King, 14 Algonquin Lane, had as their guests over last week-end Mr. and Mrs. Percy Broadbeck of Edinburg, Ind. Mrs. Broadbeck was the guest of honor at an informal bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Philip O. Viall, 220 Bristol place, Tuesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Broadbeck departed Wednesday for their home.

Mrs. Thomas M. Webster, 431 Yorkshire drive, entertained Friday afternoon, Oct. 3, with an informal tea in compliment to Mrs. Arthur W. Schisler of Austin, Minn., who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Gale Henderson. Mrs. Percy Broadbeck, who has been visiting Mrs. P. R. King, was also a guest at the tea.

Miss Doris Ervin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ervin, 255 Blackmer place, departed Friday for Oxford, Miss., to be the guests of friends at the University of Mississippi.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Plant, 243 West Swon avenue, have returned home from a three months' stay at their summer cottage at Ephraim, Wis. They had as their guests for September Mr. and Mrs. Theo. S. Blair, 115 Glen road.

The first Junior Fortnightly dance was given last evening at the Monday Club. The chaperons included Mrs. Jesse Skinner, Mrs. Julian Luckett and Mrs. Leonard Martin.

Mrs. James Hart Price of Tyler, Tex., with her small daughter, Claire, and son, James Jr., arrived last week to be the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rountree, 6643 Kingsbury boulevard, and attend the marriage of her sister, Miss Virginia Rountree, to Edward Theodore Haase, Saturday evening. Mrs. Harold Rountree of Chicago and her sister, Miss Ruth Major, arrived yesterday. Mr. Rountree will arrive from Chicago, the last of the week to also be present at his sister's wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren, 236 North Elm avenue, were the host and hostess at an informal supper party last Sunday evening at the Coronado Hotel for Mr. and Mrs. Percy Broadback of Edinburg, Ind., who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. King, 14 Algonquin place.

Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Baskerville of Nashville, Tenn., will arrive today to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. L. Goggin, 16 Sylvester avenue, for a fortnight.

Mrs. S. F. Joyce, 435 South Elm avenue, entertained her bridge club at luncheon Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Bertram W. Whaley, 352 South Gore avenue, entertained Tuesday afternoon at a bridge luncheon complimenting Mrs. H. H. Culling of Pasadena, Cal., who is visiting relatives in St. Louis.

The marriage of Miss Virginia Rountree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rountree of University City, to Edward Theodore Haase of St. Louis will take place Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock, at the First Congregational Church. The Rev. Wofford C. Timmons, pastor of the First Congregational Church, St. Louis, will officiate. The bride-elect will have as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. James Hart Price Jr. of Tyler, Tex. The bridesmaids will be Miss Marian Ervin, Miss Aloha Graham and Miss Ruth Napier. Mr. Haase will have as his best man his brother, Walter Haase. The groomsmen will be Edward Blank, Frederick Hageman and Arthur Leonhardt. Miss Marian Ervin will entertain the members of the bridal party at a dinner preceding the rehearsal Friday evening.

MRS. LORRAINE F. JONES of "Ivy Lodge" has returned home from a visit of several weeks in New York, with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Pitman, and at Millwood, Va., with another son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin O'Fallon Randolph. Mrs. Jones' younger son, Maury F. Jones, and Mrs. Jones, are expected to arrive late this month from Paris, where their marriage took place in August.

Mrs. Albert Chandler, 221 West Washington avenue, returned home last week from a short stay in Indianapolis. Her sister, Mrs. James C. Cotter, of New York, who formerly resided in Indianapolis, was also a guest there.

Mrs. Charles Wyche of Durham, N. C., is the guest of Judge and Mrs. Davis Biggs of North Taylor avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzhugh Randolph of Bodley avenue. Mrs. Joseph R. Matthews, 479 North Taylor avenue, will entertain Wednesday afternoon at a tea in honor of Mrs. Wyche.

Mrs. Charles Bedell, 537 North Clay avenue, was hostess for Chapter 2 of the Kirkwood Garden Club, Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 8. Mrs. Howard Warfield was assistant hostess. Following the election of officers a short talk was given by Anton Lindahl on "Landscaping the Grounds of the Junior High School."

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rowe of South Denny road enteretained the Florists' Club of St. Louis and St. Louis County at an afternoon fish fry near their home Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bryant, 620 Pearl avenue, were host and hostess at a bridge party of four tables Saturday evening, Oct. 4.

Mrs. George C. Martin Jr., 211 West Jewell avenue and Miss Virginia Orrick, 418 North Taylor avenue, have returned from New Berlin, Ill., where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown Hitt.

Miss Katherine Shaw of Argonne drive and Denny road has returned from a visit of 10 days at Farmington, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Brackbill of Edwin and Beverley avenue have returned home from a motor trip to Columbia, Mo., where they accompanied their son, Chester Jr., a student at the university.

The Women's Auxiliary of Grace Episcopal Church is sponsoring a dramatic entertainment to be presented Friday evening at the parish house. A short play entitled "A Game of Chess" will be presented under the direction of Victor Hoester, assisted by Miss Virginia Orrick and Sam T. Marshall. The Missouri Pacific Diamond Jubilee Quartet will sing and there will be dancing after the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Fiske, 311 Woodlawn avenue, have as their guests Mrs. Fiske's sister-in-law, Mrs. John C. Atwood, and son, Richard, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Fiske entertained Tuesday afternoon at an informal bridge luncheon in honor of Mrs. Atwood.

Mrs. Paul G. Rutledge, 205 Smith avenue, will entertain her bridge club at luncheon tomorrow afternoon.

The Sanctuary Society of St. Peter's Church will give a card party Wednesday afternoon at St. Peter's Hall.

The Lions' Club of Kirkwood will present a play at the Kirkwood High School Thursday and Friday evenings, Oct. 23 and 24.

Additional social news will be found on page 2H of Part 5 today.

Thick, wavy hair!

You, too, should have long, soft, abundant hair. It's simply a matter of using this easy method; approved by hair-specialists; endorsed by stars of stage and screen; used by millions who haven't time for the more laborious treatments.

Tonight when you arrange your hair, just put a little Danderine on your brush. Then as you draw the bristles through your hair, see how the scalp is toned and soothed. See how the hair becomes softer, easier to manage; how its natural color is brought out; how it takes on new brilliance and lustre!

Danderine helps dissolve dandruff; helps stop falling hair; keeps hair and scalp healthy; encourages the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. Five million bottles used a year. That proves Danderine's effectiveness!

4 Million Women Have Used 14,579,820 Bottles To Touch Up Gray, Streaked Hair so it must be the better way

If you are looking for a way to change gray, streaked or faded hair to a natural youth color... don't endanger the health of hair or take chances on its appearance by experimenting with a new and untried preparation. You don't have to. Here's a preparation that has been used successfully by more than 4 million women who refuse to be gray. They will all tell you it is the surest and very quickest way to give hair the exact shade you desire—without harming the hair or scalp in the least. As a matter of fact it darkens the hair so evenly and naturally that no one will ever know. So don't take foolish chances with your hair. Just ask any druggist for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur.

Jefferson Barracks

Items of Social Interest From the Army Post.

COL. PEGRAM WHITWORTH has received orders from the War Department to report to Fort Benning, Ga., where he will be a member of the Infantry School refresher class beginning Nov. 4, 1930.

Miss Betty Fillebrown departed last week for her home in Philadelphia after a visit at the post as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Arthur R. Underwood. During her visit she was entertained extensively, including a luncheon and bridge in her honor by Mrs. Underwood, a dinner by Capt. and Mrs. Richard M. Sandusky and a bridge luncheon by Mrs. Arthur G. Hutchinson.

Mrs. Henry S. Cole was hostess at a luncheon followed by bridge Thursday afternoon honoring her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Beyars of Washington and Long Island, who has been her guest for the past month. The decorations were carried out entirely in blue and gold. Her guest list included Mrs. Charles F. Morse, Mrs. John Randolph, Mrs. Arthur R. Underwood, Mrs. William E. Brougher, Mrs. Edwin W. Grimmer, Mrs. Richard M. Sandusky, Mrs. Sherman P. Walker, Mrs. Aubrey J. Bassett, Mrs. Edwin T. Wheatley, Mrs. Nathaniel Jones, Mrs. John H. Judd, Mrs. John D. Eason, Mrs. Claude D. Collins, Mrs. Joseph Catte, Mrs. Charles C. Higgins, Mrs. Edmund L. Butts and Mrs. Ola W. Bell, both of St. Louis; Mrs. Genevieve Parkhurst, who is the guest of Lieut. and Mrs. Arthur L. Moore, and Mrs. J. C. Beyars.

The following officers and their wives attended the Veiled Prophet ball in St. Louis: Col. and Mrs. Pegram Whitworth, Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Morse, Col. and Mrs. John Randolph, Miss Margaret Randolph, Maj. and Mrs. William E. Brougher, Maj. and Mrs. William E. Hall, Capt. and Mrs. Richard M. Sandusky, Lieut. and Mrs. William W. Harris and Lieut. Charles F. Howard.

Maj. Arthur C. Tipton returned to Jefferson Barracks Thursday after a prolonged absence in the East where he has been stationed in New York. For the past month he and Mrs. Tipton have been on leave in Gainesville, Fla., where Maj. Tipton was formerly stationed. Mrs. Tipton and her daughters, Teddy and Peggy, are remaining in Florida and will join Maj. Tipton later.

Mrs. Aubrey J. Bassett entertained St. Louis friends at a luncheon at her quarters Wednesday. Covers were laid for Mrs. L. M. Johnson, Mrs. H. W. Grassman, Miss Doris Grassman, Mrs. John Boyle and Mrs. C. W. Wright.

Capt. and Mrs. Edwin W. Grimmer were host and hostess at a bridge supper at their quarters Monday evening. Their guests were Maj. and Mrs. Daniel Smith of St. Louis, Capt. and Mrs. Richard M. Sandusky and Lieut. and Mrs. Edwin M. Sutherland.

East St. Louis

THE wedding of Miss Margaret Bucknell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Bucknell, 1761 North Thirty-sixth street, and Frank Plumley Flint, son of Dr. and Mrs. Homer A. Flint, Pittsburg, Pa., was solemnized at 8 o'clock Friday evening at the home of the bride's parents. Dr. Flint performed the ceremony.

Miss Bucknell wore a gown of white satin fashioned on princesse lines. Her long veil was held in place by a cap with orange blossoms at either side. She carried a showed bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Phoebe Flint, a sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride. She wore an apple green moire frock, with matching slippers and carried yellow tea roses. Allen K. Bucknell, a brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Aubrey Engel sang "O, Perfect Love," with Mrs. George Wallace playing the accompaniment.

Following a wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Flint departed for an extended honeymoon. They will reside in Providence, R. I.

Miss Bucknell was graduated this year from Boston University, at Boston, Mass. Mr. Flint was graduated in 1923 from Haverford College at Haverford, Pa.

Mrs. Conrad Reeb, 425 Brighton place, is in Kansas City, Mo., to spend several weeks.

Mrs. Carl Helfrich, 1617 North Forty-fifth street, entertained at her home yesterday at a bridge luncheon complimenting Mrs. Walter Thumser, St. Louis, a recent bride. The guests were: Mrs. Larry Sherman, Mrs. Robert Thumser and Mrs. Ann Brennan, St. Louis; Mrs. John Silverfield, Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Augusta Smith, Edwards-Ill.; Miss Lucille Kane, Miss Margaret Shreve, Mrs. L. B. Schmitt, Mrs. Cletus Canavan, Mrs. Bart E. Schmitt and Mrs. Malcolm McLean.

Mrs. Arlington Nuetzel of Signal Hill boulevard had as her guest last week her mother, Mrs. J. P. Foley, Ashland, Wis.

Mrs. James C. Leigh, 3030 North Park drive, will have as her guests this week her sister, Miss Frances Harper, Chicago, and her cousin, Miss Elizabeth Henry, Seattle, Wash., who has just returned from Europe.

Mrs. William G. Padfield, 539 North Fourteenth street, was hostess to her bridge club at luncheon at her home Thursday afternoon. The guests were Miss Lenore Vermillion, Mrs. R. J. Kramer, Mrs. O. J. Culbertson, Mrs. W. L. Fletcher, Mrs. J. W. Coulter, Mrs. J. Lyon Woodruff, Mrs. Leroy Browning, Mrs. Oscar White, Mrs. William R. Brown, Mrs. Stephen J. Cashel and Mrs. J. M. Kelley.

Miss Frances Schiele and Charles Schiele, students at the University of Missouri at Columbia, are spending the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Cchiele of Granvue drive.

Mrs. C. B. McManus, Nashville, Tenn., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Edna Potts of the Beulah Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kraft, Littleton, Colo., are guests of Miss Clara and Miss Stella Bean of the Charlton apartments.

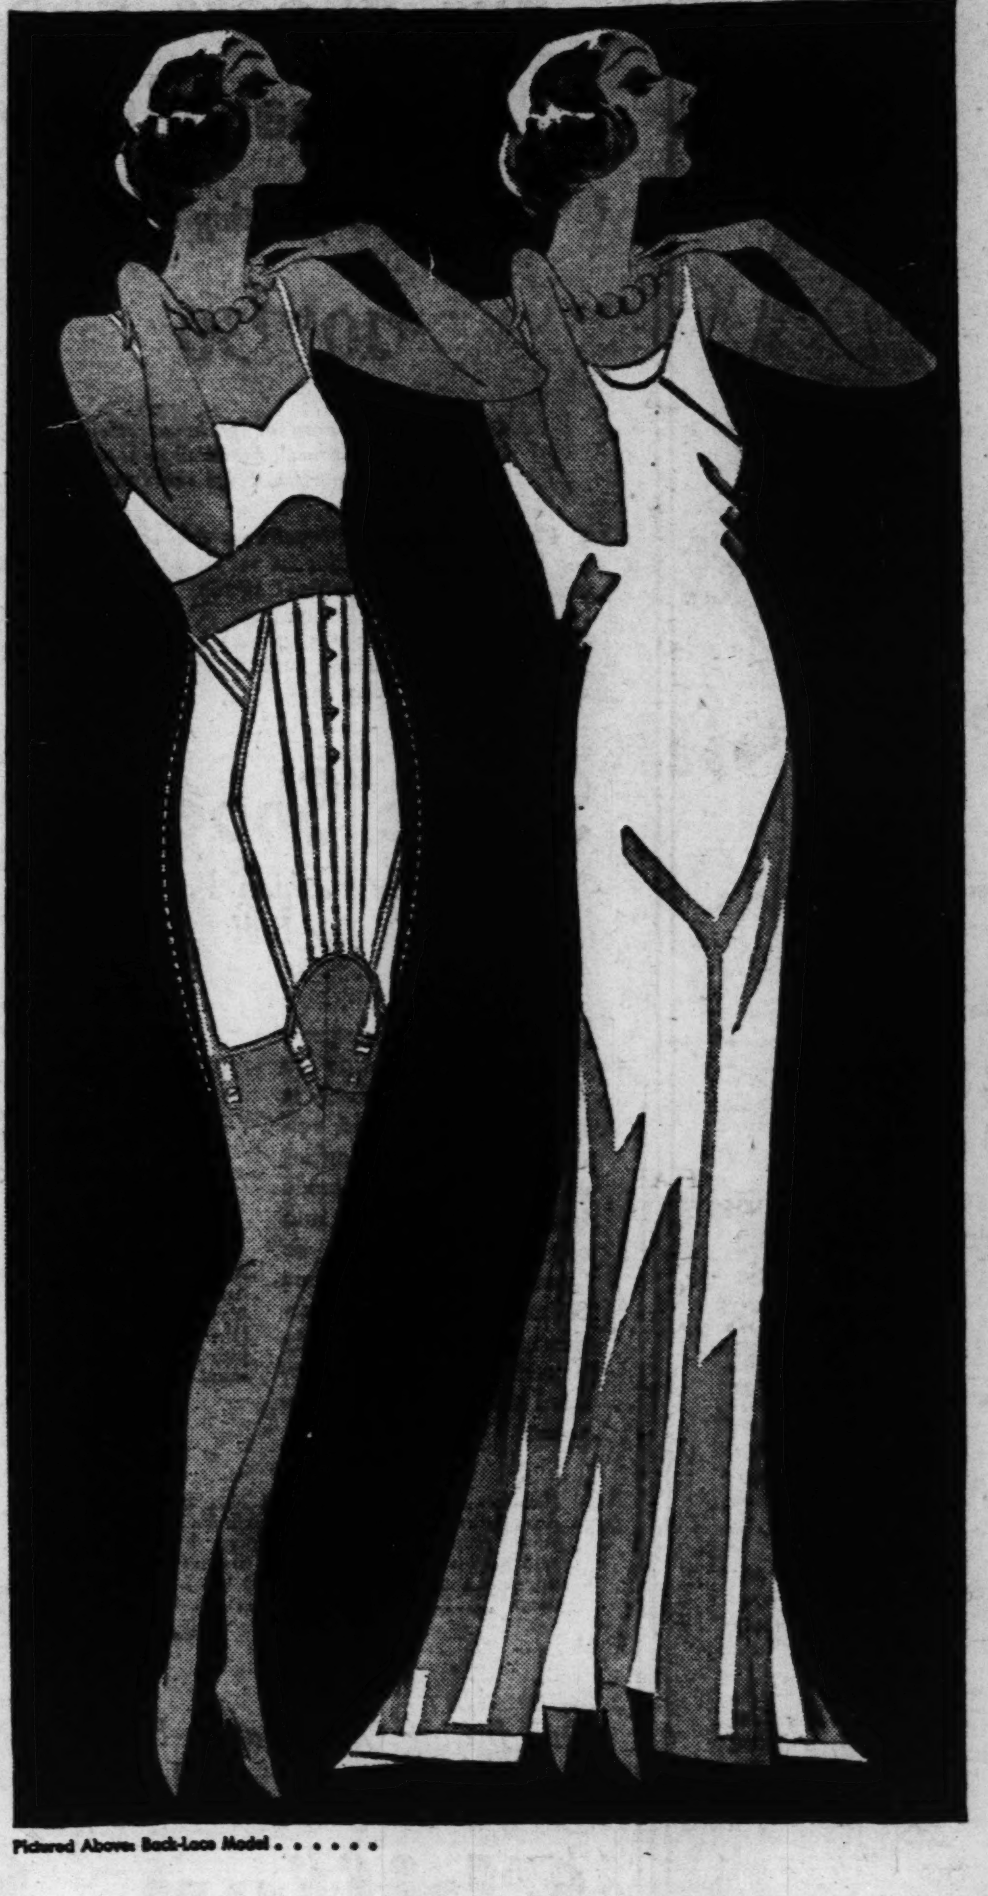
a Reducing Garment that changes the line of flesh to the line of fashion



Pictured Above: Back-Lace Model . . . . . .

The Step-in . . . .

EXCESS flesh is burdensome. Excess flesh is a handicap to a fashionable figure. Of course, one can diet—or exercise strenuously. But these are irksome methods. Beauty Mould is the new method—the easy method. Wear this famous reducing corset and behold a new figure. Inches disappear from the silhouette the instant you put it on—and every day you wear it you actually reduce. Those ugly bulges around the waistline disappear. Your whole body slims down miraculously. A new figure appears—slender, supple, fashionable. Today's styles are worn in perfect form and weight is lost daily. Don't let another day go by without finding out how unbelievably slim and graceful you can look—and become—in one of these BeautyMould reducing corsets.

BeautyMould

REDUCING GARMENT

Venna Varden, famous model, says "I never diet, but when I put on excess fat I immediately wear Beauty Mould and reduce down to 36. Then I discontinue—otherwise I reduce too much."

The Combination . . . . .

The Brassiere . . . .

Here is a totally new invention—a reducing garment scientifically constructed of a marvelous combination fabric. After months of research and experiment patented Rubber-Tex was placed in combination with other fabrics—in a weight which was determined would be correct for reducing purposes. No other corset on the market is made of this identical fabric. It puts BeautyMould in a class by itself. Try on a BeautyMould. See how your silhouette is changed, instantly. Note how your waistline is emphasized, your hips and thighs made slimmer, your diaphragm flattened. Fashion lines take the place of fleshy bulges. Add a BeautyMould to your wardrobe and you will add style and comfort to your figure.

That the crisis has grown worse until now, is attested by the fact that we witness almost weekly new demonstrations of panic in the constantly decreasing values of public properties and financial institutions in all countries of the world. A whole year seems to have been sufficient for the downward trend to spend its course, and we can expect a firm stand from now on which though it may be a period of marking time, will nevertheless be a curb for the downward movement and the signal for the turn upward and the rehabilitation of normal conditions of world trade. The uphill struggle will be ardent and painful, and like all uphill struggles, it will take longer than the descent. In an address which I delivered before our National Council—Corporazioni—which is the governing body of our national producing forces, I stated it would take another three years before world trade was restored to a normal, healthy flow.

Readjustment Necessary.

This crisis is a particularly industrial crisis in which no amount of governmental assistance has been able so far to effect the necessary remedy. The United States enacted the tariff measure, but the crisis went from bad to worse in spite of the tariff for the reason that the causes of the stagnation were untouched by tariffs and were found rather in the new industrial era of the world's supercapacity to produce. It is another cycle in the adjustment to the advanced industrial conditions which must make producing power harmonize with consuming power.

Progress in industry has been too rapid to make the adjustment between potential production and markets. The present crisis, however, has caused industrialists and statesmen to consider just how we came into this world difficulty and how we are going to get out of it. But it is only one of many difficulties which the machine, from the period of its first general use more than a century and a half ago, brought as it became rapidly more powerful and more productive. We have only to recall the poems of Gerhard Hauptmann, the great German dramatist, who pictured the poor hand-weaver trying to compete with the crushing machine-loom. Each new invention in the early days seemed to throw thousands of skilled craftsmen out of work, their skill superseded by the precision of the new machine.

Age of Machinery.

Today we have accepted the machine and have found out in the present crisis that it can make things faster than we can comfortably consume them. As the early days required an adjustment of hand-weavers to the use of machines and meant a transfer of large bodies of skilled artisans from home crafts to those of the factory, so today we must just adjust our powerful producing machines so that they will keep in step with our needs or we must increase our needs to keep step with the machine. That is to say considering that there is a real and vital relation between producing capacity and consumption in the creation of this terrible crisis, an adjustment must come to one or the other in establishing some

Mussolini Says Depression Merely Marks Another Cycle In Industrial Readjustment

"Foolhardy" Over-Production Must Be Curbed, He Declares, and Fitted More Closely to Possible Markets.

By PREMIER BENITO MUSSOLINI.

(Copyright, 1930.)

ROME, Oct. 11.

WE are about to complete an entire year of general, world-wide depression. A dark day was that of Oct. 24, 1929, which made the cycle of trade stagnation complete, for it was on that day that American industry found itself face to face with the crisis. From that day until now the momentum downward has been so marked that both industry and finance have seemed helpless before the world-wide stubbornness of its power, despite herculean efforts to stem the trend, and despite several brave stands made by governments and institutions in endeavoring to check the descent.

That the crisis has grown worse until now, is attested by the fact that we witness almost weekly new demonstrations of panic in the constantly decreasing values of public properties and financial institutions in all countries of the world. A whole year seems to have been sufficient for the downward trend to spend its course, and we can expect a firm stand from now on which though it may be a period of marking time, will nevertheless be a curb for the downward movement and the signal for the turn upward and the rehabilitation of normal conditions of world trade. The uphill struggle will be ardent and painful, and like all uphill struggles, it will take longer than the descent. In an address which I delivered before our National Council—Corporazioni—which is the governing body of our national producing forces, I stated it would take another three years before world trade was restored to a normal, healthy flow.

This crisis is a particularly industrial crisis in which no amount of governmental assistance has been able so far to effect the necessary remedy. The United States enacted the tariff measure, but the crisis went from bad to worse in spite of the tariff for the reason that the causes of the stagnation were untouched by tariffs and were found rather in the new industrial era of the world's supercapacity to produce. It is another cycle in the adjustment to the advanced industrial conditions which must make producing power harmonize with consuming power.

Progress in industry has been too rapid to make the adjustment between potential production and markets. The present crisis, however, has caused industrialists and statesmen to consider just how we came into this world difficulty and how we are going to get out of it. But it is only one of many difficulties which the machine, from the period of its first general use more than a century and a half ago, brought as it became rapidly more powerful and more productive. We have only to recall the poems of Gerhard Hauptmann, the great German dramatist, who pictured the poor hand-weaver trying to compete with the crushing machine-loom. Each new invention in the early days seemed to throw thousands of skilled craftsmen out of work, their skill superseded by the precision of the new machine.

Age of Machinery.

Today we have accepted the machine and have found out in the present crisis that it can make things faster than we can comfortably consume them. As the early days required an adjustment of hand-weavers to the use of machines and meant a transfer of large bodies of skilled artisans from home crafts to those of the factory, so today we must just adjust our powerful producing machines so that they will keep in step with our needs or we must increase our needs to keep step with the machine. That is to say considering that there is a real and vital relation between producing capacity and consumption in the creation of this terrible crisis, an adjustment must come to one or the other in establishing some sort of harmony between the two factors which make for the crisis.

It does seem astounding that with our present industrial intelligence we have not yet arrived at a closer control of production and the fact that our factories have such amazing figures of output as to make a regulated check necessary. The system of producing and producing without regard to whether there is a public to consume is foolhardy and completely repugnant to modern efficiency systems and completely unworthy of the genius which has built our great industrial organization.

Something toward the alleviation of the crisis has been accomplished in agriculture where the products are stable and not so numerous as in the manufacturing field. Markets are steadier though the supply is not as controllable due to natural causes like drouth, blight and bad years. In Italy we set out each season to try to grow something like 7,000,000 quintals of wheat and we succeeded last year, though this year has not been so good. With our confederation of agriculturists, we can control the areas sown so as to keep the right proportion between various grains, depending on the soil.

Keeping Track of Markets.

Besides, much more has been accomplished in the realm of agriculture with regard to conditions of trade than in industry. This year we celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the International Institute of Agriculture by his majesty King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy on the initiative of the late David Lubin, economist and merchant of San Francisco. This institute collects daily, even hourly, from all parts of the world telegraph and radio Governmental information from all official sources of crop conditions in the various countries. After their tabulation, experts can state with quite a mathematical exactness what the world supply of wheat will be in any current year, which is of exceptional aid to members and countries in knowing the exact condition in which they find themselves with regard to other countries. It is thus a great advantage to both the nation which sells and the nation which buys.

As I said, in agriculture products are more stable, but even in industry today there are commodities classed as stable. Clothing is a stable product and our needs in wool, cotton, silk, etc., are determinable. Certainly some instrumentality should be set up to give an index of the need and to prevent blind over-production and so forestall the risk of precipitating world trade in utter confusion. The present crisis is the first under the regime of excessive mass production, and we should learn to profit from the ill effects of not closely controlling markets and production.

How Government Helps.

The giant industrial trusts and consortiums which have come into existence in all the major countries, have become so much a part of the community that they can no more be regarded as merely private industrial societies. They are called upon for great public services and as such the public interest is at stake whenever the

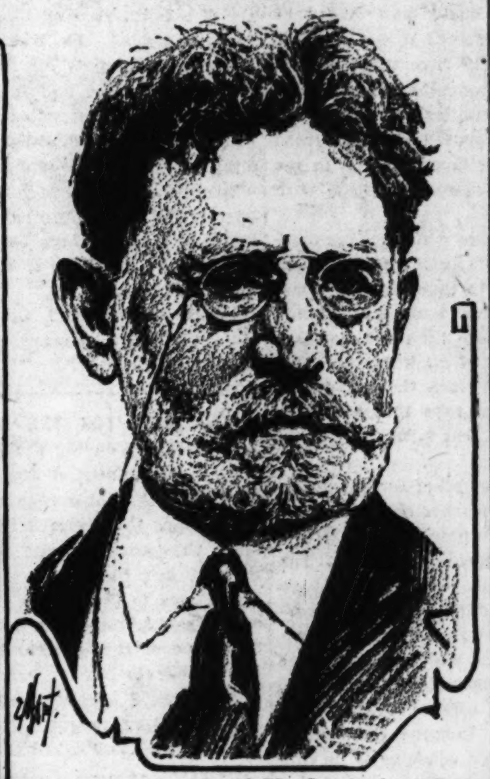
"THE LADY" VERSUS A BATTLING WET IN THE ILLINOIS POLITICAL ARENA

Colorful Incidents and Phrases in Senatorial Campaign

A snapshot of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick taken during her campaign for United States Senator.

J. Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic candidate, addressing a political meeting.



A crayon study of Mr. Lewis, by a Post-Dispatch staff artist.

Outcome of Contest Waged by Mrs. Ruth McCormick and the Veteran J. Hamilton Lewis Depends on Vote in Chicago—Many Doubt That the Great Mass of Wet Republicans in Cities Will Support Candidate Hitherto Known As An Ardent Dry.

By Paul Y. Anderson,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE campaign for United States Senator now in progress in Illinois affords one of the most remarkable political spectacles which the country has witnessed in a generation. It is a three-cornered race among two women and one man, and prohibition is the outstanding issue.

James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic nominee, is an uncompromising wet. He advocates repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment, and the return of liquor control to the states.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, the Republican nominee, is best described as a dry-wet. Originally dry, but needing the support of the wet Republican machine in Chicago to win, she has pledged herself to abide by the outcome of a prohibition referendum in which the electorate will vote at the November election.

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, an independent candidate, is an uncompromising dry. She entered the race after dry organizations charged that Mrs. McCormick, by shifting her position, had betrayed the dry cause.

The campaign is replete with curious and romantic features, some of them without precedent. Mrs. McCormick's father and husband were both Senators, Mark Hanna, her father, being the most powerful political boss of his time. Lewis, a singularly picturesque character, served one term in the Senate with distinction, and was defeated for re-election in 1918 by Mrs. McCormick's husband, the late Medill McCormick. The latter was defeated in 1924 for renomination by Charles S. Deneen, whom Mrs. McCormick, in turn, defeated for renomination last spring. Mrs. O'Neill was a pioneer in the suffrage movement, and was the first woman elected to the Illinois Legislature.

Those Primary Expenses.

The situation has been complicated by the disclosure of Mrs. McCormick's enormous expenditure of money in the primary campaign—the admitted total of which has now reached $317,000—and by the angry controversy in which she became involved with the Senate committee named to investigate campaign expenditures. A feature of this controversy was the startling discovery that Mrs. McCormick had employed at least six private detective agencies in widely separated cities of the United States to shadow members of the committee and its employes.

Incidentally, the committee has not concluded its investigation of Mrs. McCormick's expenditures and methods. Her report covers only the money disbursed outside Cook County. She reported no expenditure there, although the county, comprising Chicago and its environs, furnishes more than half the total vote of the State. Mrs. McCormick was supported there by the political machine of "Big Bill" Thompson, perhaps the most notorious organization in American politics. It also is supporting her in the general campaign.

Under ordinary conditions there could be little doubt concerning the outcome of a senatorial campaign in Illinois, since the normal Republican majority is approximately 500,000. However, the present condition is anything but ordinary, and doubt abounds. No responsible observer believes Mrs. McCormick has the slightest chance to poll anything like the normal Republican majority, and many believe she will be defeated. Without attempting to list them in the order of their importance, the factors that militate against her may be named as follows:

Elements of Weakness.

1. Dissatisfaction with her stand on the prohibition issue. Apparently she has alienated many drys who supported her in the primary, and it is questionable how much support she has gained among the wets.

2. Intimately related to the foregoing is the independent candidacy of Mrs. O'Neill, which can hardly be dismissed as insignificant. She is well known in the State, has a large following among women voters, and has been indorsed by many dry and religious organizations. She will take some votes from Lewis, but nothing like the number she is expected to take from Mrs. McCormick. These may not be confined to downstate drys. Many former Deneen supporters, antagonized during the bitter primary battle; are expected to vote for her.

3. General political unrest, growing out of business depression, unemployment, the tariff bill, and other causes, which seem to be taking shape in resentment against the party in power at Washington.

4. Mrs. McCormick's sex. In numerous communities, especially the Southern counties where the German element is strong, the writer heard the reiterated observation: "The Senate is no place for a woman—that's a man's job." This comment frequently was followed by another: "She seems to be the kind of woman who's always stirring up trouble"—apparently a reaction from her difficulty with the Nye Committee.

5. A widespread and apparently growing impression that the Senate will deny her a seat if she is elected, because of her huge campaign expenditures.

6. Resentment over the expenditures, themselves, frequently mentioned as an attempt to "buy a seat in the Senate."

Did Little in Congress.

Against these handicaps, of course, must always be balanced the fact that she is the nominee of the majority party. Moreover, she has the advantage of unlimited financial resources, the support of most of the Chicago newspapers, and last, but not least, the backing of the Thompson machine in Cook County. It looks like a hoss race.

The Republican nominee is 50 years old. She is somewhat over medium height, dark and extremely thin, with an aggressive profile. She has a large model farm at Byron, where she raises prize cattle. Washington has long attributed to her the political adroitness to be expected of "Mark Hanna's daughter," although this opinion seems to have been altered somewhat by her conduct in the present campaign. She is finishing her second year in the House of Representatives as a Congressman-at-large. Her service there has been undistinguished, and it was generally recognized that her election to the House was merely a political step in her preparation to run for the Senate. She made no impression on the House, comparable, for example, to that made by Congresswomen Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida, or Ruth Pratt of New York.

In this campaign of romantic contrasts it was fitting, perhaps, that "J. Ham" Lewis, celebrated for his gallantry and the elegance of his dress and manners, should find himself opposed by two women. Nor is it likely that the State could have produced a man better able to handle the situation without drawing the charge of unchivalrous conduct. Whatever he has done or said, whatever he may say or do, few will accuse J. Ham of forgetting his manners. Not only is he incapable of such a thing, but to the thousands who know him, the very suggestion would seem absurd.

Personality of Lewis.

The difficulty of attempting a life-like picture of Lewis without conveying a false impression of his underlying abilities, is enormous. Indeed, the impression received from a first meeting with him invariably is misleading. This is mainly due to his unusual mannerisms—his speech, his dress, his gestures, the thousand little affectations that long ago became part of his colorful personality. The splendor of his clothes is legendary. He speaks like a hero out of Shakspeare's plays—and often quotes them. His manners would shame a Chesterfield. Added to these are his famous "pink" hair and whiskers, now, alas! decidedly tinged with white, but still magnificent.

Never does he use a word of one syllable when one of five syllables will do; never does he say in five words what can be as well said in five hundred. The simple term and the blunt phrase are not for him. He never "talks down to" an audience. The more overalls and blue shirts he sees before him, the more classical his language waxes. Speaking in East St. Louis the other night he was seized with a fit of coughing. he had been caught in the rain the day before, and had a cold, but he was able to continue without undue hardship

The Memorial to a President No Successor in White House Has Found Time to Dedicate Harding Tomb in Marion, O., Long Completed And Association Has Been Trying Since 1927 to Arrange Ceremony.

By ROBERT S. HARPER.

(Reprinted from Plain Talk, September-October issue, by special permission.)

(Copyright. All rights reserved.)

ON the outskirts of Marion, O., looking out on the broad paved highway that leads south to Columbus, the State Capital, is a gigantic tomb, stark white against a background of forest in summer, and cold and pale in its setting on the cornland plains in the Northern Ohio winter.

It is designed with a mixture of Grecian and Roman architecture, stolid in its massiveness and serene in its quality to stand there for centuries to come. The outside columns are reproductions of those that once graced the Appian Way, and inside there are hanging gardens suggestive of the vines that grew in the crevices of the ruins along the historic Via.

Over the two black marble slabs inside the circle of columns there droops a weeping willow; Marion folk say the weeping willow dates back to an old Italian burial custom. This ponderous mass is the Harding Memorial.

School children gave their pennies and thousands of persons contributed their hard-earned dollars to build this seven hundred thousand dollar memorial to the President who tried to lead the people "back to normalcy," but those men who put him in the exalted position and whom he, in turn, honored with places high in the official life of the nation, shun the shrine as if it were a haunted place. The tomb still awaits dedication four years after the cornerstone was laid.

President Harding is dead but his spirit lives on. Mention of the tomb to the American citizen does not bring to his mind thoughts of a dead President; instead, he recalls the personnel of that administration in Washington, and he remembers that some of the leading characters were Harry M. Daugherty, Albert B. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, Jesse W. Smith, Colonel Miller, John T. King and many others of unpleasant headline prominence.

Names Fresh in Public Minds.

These names still are fresh in the minds of the public; Harding will still be alive in a mental sense until that group has passed into the dark pages of history. Perhaps that is the reason politicians shun the tomb; they believe that it is best to let well enough alone and have, apparently, adopted a policy of kicking not the sleeping dog.

But that can be said only of those men who are courting the political favor of the people; Harding's friends in Marion have nothing to fear.

The men who knew Harding at Marion when he was a newspaper publisher, a member of the Ohio Senate, and later United States Senator and Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio, have pulled every string in sight to bring those men whom he knew in Washington to Ohio for the dedication; but they are giving up hope, while the men who knew him in the Nation's Capital are content to let time slip along, trusting to luck, it appears, that an exasperated committee will finally get tired and cease dinging in their ears that a solemn duty awaits them.

Members of the dedication executive committee, through friendly newspapermen at Marion, have seen stories sent out over the wires to the effect that the memorial has long since been completed: and these stories have implied, cautiously of course, that there is a hitch somewhere and that it is past high time for Harding former associates to perform the last rites. But beneath these ripples on the pond of dedication stagnation there lies a record of buck passing that is inconceivable to those persons who have been on the receiving end.

Cornerstone Ceremony.

On Decoration Day in 1926, the cornerstone was laid with dignified ceremonies; but that was before Nan Britton told her story, and before a book came out which implied various reasons for the death of the President in San Francisco. May 30 of that year was a boiling hot day but ten thousand persons, most of whom were townsfolk from Marion, saw Vice President Dawes wipe the perspiration from his brow, step up to the cornerstone and smear across its face a few daubs of cement.

Among those present, according to newspaper accounts of the event, were Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey; Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio, who long since has passed to his reward, and his colleague from the Buckeye State, Senator Simeon D. Fess, whose words now are looked upon as translation for the White House. Governor Vic Donahey, Ohio's Democratic executive for three consecutive terms, also was present, as was befitting of his station. At that time, it was announced to the newspapermen that the dedication would occur July 4, 1927.

Now four years and more have passed since that Memorial Day but the dedication has not yet occurred. A tabloid history of the memorial is printed on the postcards which the drug stores in Marion sell to tourists. The clerks say they sell quite a lot of them. Members of the executive committee for the memorial say more than two million persons have visited the tomb but, of course, not all of them invested in the price of a postcard to take away as a souvenir. The descriptive matter on the cards reads:

> This beautiful memorial erected in this city, 1926-1928, by popular subscription, from many thousand schools from every State in the Union as well as by personal contributions, the Philippines and Alaska making responses proportionately greater than any of the states.
> The building is 250 feet in circumference, 80 feet in diameter and 50 feet high. Forty-eight gigantic pillars symbolizing the forty-eight states support the heavy circular roof. This structure is regarded as one of the finest examples of architecture in the country—is massive white Georgian marble columns adding great dignity.
> Total cost of building and grounds, seven hundred thousand dollars. Cornerstone laid May 30, 1926, many tokens being put in a sealed copper casket therein.
> President Harding died in San Francisco, Aug. 10, 1923, and Mrs. Florence Kling Harding in Marion, Nov. 21, 1924. On Dec. 21, 1927, the bodies of President Harding and his wife were moved from the mausoleum in Marion cemetery and and were placed in hermetically sealed sarcophagi in this beautiful building.

And that, in just so many words, is the history of the memorial. But not one word about the dedication!

Indifferent Washington.

Official Washington has indicated, by absolute failure to cooperate with the executive committee at Marion, that it does not give three whoops whether or not the memorial ever is dedicated. Those men who knew Harding in Marion are getting a trifle red un-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Theory, the Germ of Progress.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHAT is theory? Theory is the lantern that shows us what path we are going to take. False theories have led the world astray for hundreds of years. True theories have led the world in paths of peace, prosperity and happiness. No doctor can administer a drug, no surgeon can use a scalpel unless some theory has preceded to show them why and how to do these things. Visionaries, dreamers, idealists, and theorists are higher types of men than practitioners, practical men and men of action, for the theorist plans what the practitioner merely executes. An architect is a higher type of man than a contractor. Men like Hippocrates, Galen and Paracelsus are higher types than the ordinary medical practitioner because they founded schools of medicine to which the medical fraternity adhered.

There is no science, art or profession that should welcome theory more than the medical profession should welcome it, for no science or art has changed more throughout the years than medicine has changed. It is a far cry from such "remedies" as powdered bat's wing, the liver of a wolf, or the flesh of a serpent, that Pliny tells about in his "Natural History," to the theory and practice of modern schools of medicine. And who knows what medical theory and practice will be 500 years from now? Whatever they will be then, they will certainly be different from what they are now.

Theory? We want all the theory we can get, provided there be a modicum of intelligence in it, and genuine thought. Theory is the germ of progress.

Favors Water Power Conservation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE shale oil lands in Colorado owned by our Government, that someone is trying to give away, are said to be worth $40,000,000,000. The water power of this country is worth more than that. The truth of the matter is that if our water power were properly developed we could create an income from it that would pay the expense of development and would leave enough to pay much of the running costs of this Government. At the same time, we would all have cheaper light and power.

This great wealth is rapidly being given away. We had better give some thought to its conservation before it is too late.

EXPERIENCE.

Bouquet for J. Hamilton Lewis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE State of Missouri (the State of my birth) furnished for many years a galaxy of brilliant men of whom any state should be proud. Real statesmen: Senator Vest, Champ Clark, Joel Stone and Senator Reed. Can it be eclipsed for brilliant orators? Massachusetts, with its wonderful Webster; Indiana, with its "Tall Sycamore of the Wabash," Senator Voorhees, and the illuminating Beveridge; the colorful Ingalls of Kansas; the independent and courageous Charles R. Towne of Duluth; Iowa furnishing the brilliant Dolliver; W. C. P. Breckenridge scintillating from Kentucky; Colorado, with its well attired and handsome Senator Wolcott; Illinois, with its Lincoln and Douglas, makes anyone proud that he now or once lived in Illinois. In this recounting it would be an injustice to omit the magnetic Bourke Cochran of New York.

Why not, for a truly representative man for all the people, irrespective of politics, return to the United States Senate a person whom the whole world knows, not limited to Illinois? I refer to that giant in intellectual stature, ex-Senator James Hamilton Lewis.

My first attraction to him was when he was Representative from the territory of Washington. How he grew while others stood still watching him. I'm an independent, but I do admire anyone that stands steadfastly in the interests of the people.

Baby No. 13 and Princess No. 14.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE delayed registration by the Duke of York on Oct. 2 of the birth of the Princess Margaret Rose is generally explained, according to an Associated Press dispatch, as due to the desire of the Duke and Duchess to avoid having the baby Princess, who was born Aug. 21, entered as No. 13 on the registration list. Another child has been born in the village and registered as No. 13. Little Princess Margaret Rose is now safely No. 14.

And so the Princess is assured of having missed the baneful influence of 13—providing she can be kept from uttering her first articulate word on the thirteenth of some month or from being the recipient of a thirteenth rattle or doll from some fond relative. But what of the little martyr that is serving as No. 13? If that child gets whooping cough and measles simultaneously, has an unruly temper, cries when Uncle Alec plays the bagpipe, gets saucy with grandfather, makes low grades at school—why, look what Baby 13 did for Princess 14.

WILL THE MACHINE COMMIT SUICIDE?

When the Machine Age reaches its climax, what will happen? The climax will come when the machine in practically every industry will displace human labor.

We are steadily approaching this climax, more rapidly than most men realize. Science and invention are busy improving old and devising new processes of industry. Every large industrial corporation has its laboratory, where engineers, chemists and inventors are constantly striving to reduce the cost of production by devising new and improved methods of manufacture. Of course, products are multiplied and opportunities for new industries are discovered. To some extent new fields of labor are supplied for working men and women. But the disaster to labor in changing the fields and methods of production is enormous.

In practically every industry, including agriculture, the changes in production wrought by the machine are startling. In agriculture the tractor, the reaper, thresher and truck have displaced hosts of men formerly employed on the farms. We need not describe the tractor, which with its plows attended by one man can cultivate in one day an area of farm land that a number of men and horses would take several days to cultivate. Recently it was announced that a machine which cuts, shocks, shells and cleans 20 acres of corn a day was demonstrated at San Antonio, Tex. Many men would formerly have taken several days for that work. The corn machine is convertible into a wheat machine, doing similar work. This is one of many inventions of improved machines used on the farm which are sending farm laborers to the city, where they find even harder competition with the machine.

In the Ford shops is a machine which makes automobile wheels with little aid from human hands. Electric light bulbs are turned out in thousands by a machine which requires only a few human assistants. One machine produces what more than 400 men formerly produced. Commodities of all kinds are now made by machinery. The machines themselves are made by machinery. Mr. Ford says that wages in a few years will be $27 a day, but how many wage earners will get them?

President Hoover's program of relief for unemployment is to push public improvements such as roads, flood control and others of a similar kind. The machine has invaded all public improvement work. The roads are graded and constructed, sewers are excavated and ditches dug by a machine which displaces thousands of men. In addition to the shovel run by steam or oil motors, there is a wheel which digs ditches for wires and piping, which runs along, excavating the ditch and delivering the dirt at the rate of a mile and a quarter a day. Imagine the men it would take and the time it would consume to do this work without the machine! The men needed for work of this kind would hardly make a dent in the ranks of the unemployed.

We could multiply instances of the substitution of machines for human hands. The field of clerical work has been invaded by the machine, displacing skilled clerks and operators of every kind. Dictation is done through a machine. Ingenious presses write letters and circulars, address envelopes and inclose return postal cards, by one operation requiring a little unskilled labor. Computation and bookkeeping in banks and commercial houses are now done by machines, typesetting and practically all the processes of printing are largely done by machines. All these machines produce in an incredibly short time and at low cost.

Clerks who sell in stores are threatened with displacement by slot machines and vending machines. There is a vast range of commodities sold in packages at fixed prices which can be handled in vending machines, with only enough human labor to keep the machine filled with goods and collect the coins. Many are now in use for the sale of small articles, but there are rapidly being perfected machines to handle larger articles.

We asked what would happen when the Machine Age reaches its climax. What can happen? With human labor almost wholly displaced by machines, and even with the increase of new industries under machine production, compelling those who can find employment to change their trades, human labor is dislocated as well as displaced. With human labor largely out of employment, where will consumers be found to absorb increasing machine production? There is much talk among producers of the necessity of keeping up the market for their products by steady employment at high wages. High wages are made possible by increased production and lower cost of production through machines. But when the major part of human labor is displaced by machines, high wages for the few will not make up for the unemployment of the many or supply the market for machine production.

The machine, unlike human labor, does not consume its own products or the products of other machines. It does not wear clothes or eat food. It lives on cheap fuel and grease. It is not a profitable market for anything. In destroying the consuming market it is doomed to suicide. It is a Frankenstein before it commits suicide. It destroys human labor but is unable to live without it.

The problem of the few and the many is involved in the problem of the machine. The few, up to the present time, have profited enormously through the increased production at low cost by machines. That is the reason for their multiplication. Manufacturers and a few wage earners required to run the machines profit, but what of the many who are thrown out of employment? If the machine is to go on, there will have to be a readjustment by which the many will share in its benefits. The machine is a tremendous advance, and ought to benefit the human race. Some way will have to be found to distribute the benefits among the many if our present industrial and social order is to live.

CULTURE COMES TO ETHIOPIA.

Ras Tafari, who becomes Emperor of Ethiopia next month, will send his people far along the paths of advancement and culture, it is clear. His first great educational movement has already been launched. Tafari's agents have bought in the United States samples of all our gambling devices, to be used in making the coronation festivities a memorable event in Ethiopian annals. The civilizing influence of the punch board undoubtedly will open new vistas in the hitherto dull lives of benighted Ethiopians. As they pull the levers of slot machines they will gain a new respect for the accomplishments of Western culture. The soothing click of roulette wheels may well stimulate a great renaissance in that medieval land of darkest Africa. Of course, we enlightened Westerners must not expect too rapid progress there, but we do not doubt for a minute that this ambitious people will be ready for dog tracks and mechanical rabbits in another generation or so. And if full advantage is taken of the opportunities now opening, we fearlessly predict that some day the aspiring Ethiopians will come into the full flower of Western civilization by installing stock tickers.

MORE BONNET MUSIC.

Republican spokesmen should get together on this matter of party responsibility for business depression. Senator Fess and Representative Wood and even Secretary Stimson have been telling us for months that commodity prices are declining all over the world for causes which are quite beyond the party's control. But just as we were on the point of conviction along came Representative John Q. Tilson, Eastern director of the Republican congressional campaign, with the good word that the price drop was caused by the Grundy tariff, and now we don't know where we are.

Shoes and stockings and blankets and sugar are selling very cheaply, says Mr. Tilson, and wheat, too, although Mr. Tilson failed to mention it, has fallen to the lowest point it has touched in nearly a quarter of a century. And this, in spite of a tariff of 42 cents a bushel. Or was it because of the tariff? We had understood Mr. Hyde to say that the Russians did it. We had thought, in our simple way, that the tariff was passed for the purpose of raising prices. But Mr. Tilson's jubilance over the declining price level would seem to indicate that such was not the case. And just how the Grundy bill was operated to bring down prices in England and in Germany and everywhere else in the world, we must confess, is something of a mystery to us. It is all very confusing.

Is Mr. Tilson right? Or is Mr. Fess? Or is it possible that both these good gentlemen are talking through their hats?

NOTE FOR THE KU KLUX ALBUM.

In Germany during the First Crusade, in the year 1096, a community of Jews, fearful of violence and sudden death, took refuge in a Christian church. The Soldiers of the Cross battered down the door, violated the sanctuary and slaughtered them all—all, that is, but those who slew themselves and their loved ones to escape the Christian touch.

In Frankfort-on-Main the other day, not far from the scene of this ancient massacre, 30 Christians—Steel Helmets often given to outraging the Jews—were attacked by Communists and driven to refuge in a Jewish synagogue. The Jews hid their enemies from the mob and called the police to rescue them.

RUDY VS. FAIR HARVARD.

Who to side with in the row between Rudy Vallee and Fair Harvard? There is a question. The Harvard Crimson says the crooning son of Eli was denied permission to use three of Harvard's songs in recording phonograph music, and the "Crime," as every dweller in the elm-filled yard knows, is to the powers at Harvard what the Boston Evening Transcript is to the aristocrats in Back Bay. The singer from Yale promptly denied he had been turned down, but very generously said he would be willing to "give Harvard a plug." Popularization of its songs, he said, would "help put the school on the map." By interpretation he must have meant he would do for "Harvardiana," "Gridiron King" and "Our Director" what he did for a certain song from the recently discovered University of Maine. That is a splendid spirit in one from the campus of the enemy, but on the other hand there is more than traditional hauteur in the Harvard position. Harvard can't afford to have its songs associated with thousands of swooning damsels. Things are bad enough as they are. With teas, symphony concerts and Elizabethan poetry still outranking the more robust indulgences, despite commendable efforts at the latter in recent times, a Rudy Vallee complex would be more than Harvard's 300 years could stand.

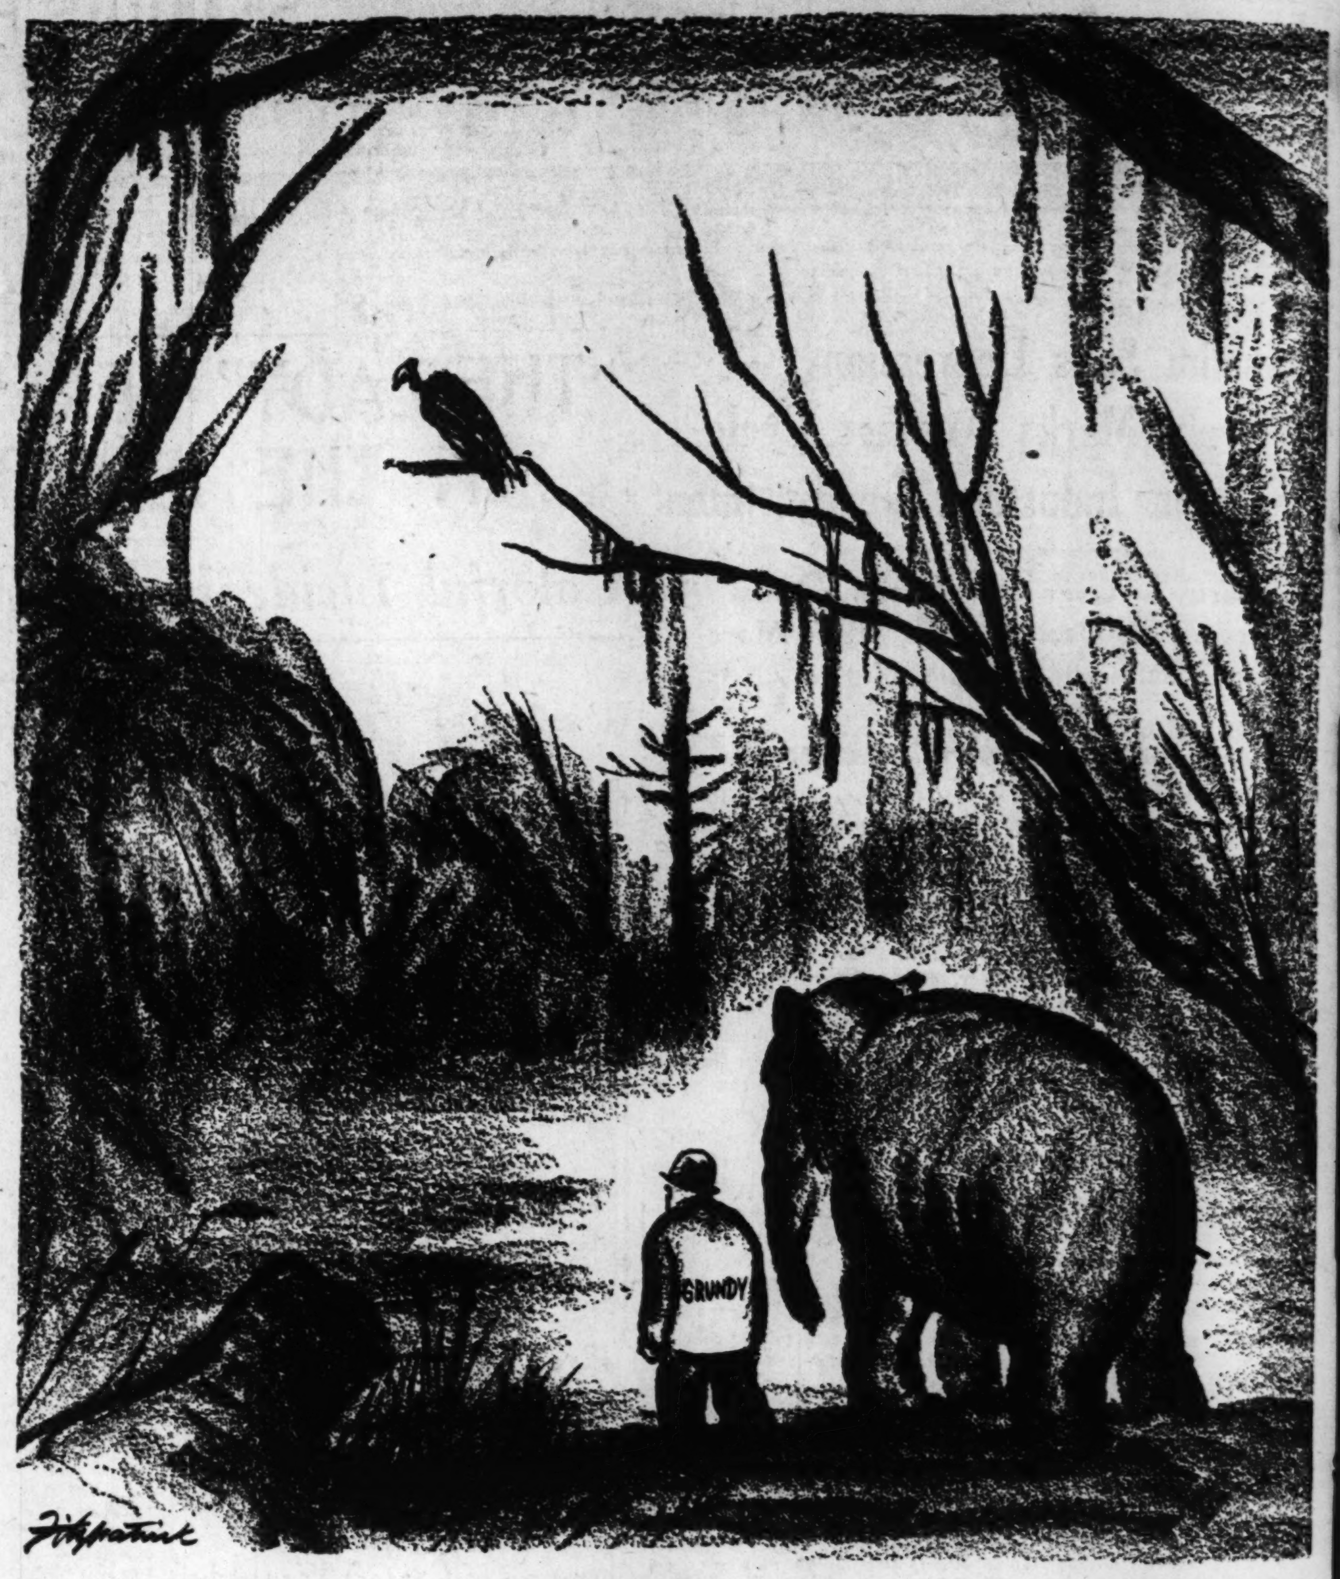
GEORGE CALEB BINGHAM: MISSOURI ARTIST.

The request of the State D. A. R. society that persons owning paintings by George Caleb Bingham lend them for display in his old home at Arrow Rock during the centennial celebration at the Arrow Rock Tavern, Oct. 18 and 19, is a reminder of the debt which Missouri owes to this pioneer painter. That he was not able to do truly great work in a wilderness is not surprising; the wonder is that he turned to art at all in a country where thought was only for the necessity of life. His widowed mother, who kept her large family together by teaching school in her farm home, could not buy paints for young George, so he mixed axle grease, vegetable dyes, brick dust and oil. His first studio was in Franklin, where he painted townspeople for a livelihood. He worked fast, sometimes completing a portrait in a day. Befriended by a man of wealth, he came to St. Louis with $100 to study and while here he lodged in a garret. Living by art was a hard row in the Missouri of the '30s and '40s.

While Bingham produced many portraits, his chief interest was in pictures that tell stories and accordingly he painted many of that kind. There were, for example, the town scenes, "County Election," "Verdict of the People," "Stump Speaking," "Canvassing for a Vote," and the river pictures, "Jolly Flatboatmen," "The Squatters," "The Wood Boat" and "Raftmen Playing Cards." Vigorous life shows in the picture of the seven flatboatmen making merry as their craft, the oars pulled in, drifts in the current. Not one of them is posed. The group seems suddenly to have come into view. In all of his pictures of groups or crowds, except that of the flatboatmen, Bingham placed a dog. Asked about the omission, he said, "I have not, the dog is in the hold."

Frequently weak in drawing, (he was often forced to use stumps of brushes) and poor in color (only poor paints were obtainable at times), Bingham nevertheless was able in the main to stay close to life. He was sincere and his work shows it. The wily politician, the shrewd old villager, the carefree loafer, all his people are alive. The loaned collection in his old Arrow Rock home can very well present a picture of Missouri life as it was a century ago. Fortunately, too, Bingham himself still lives in the admirable portrait of him placed in the Missouri Capitol some years ago. Done by Blumenschein, and breathing the spirit of Bingham's own debonair nature, this portrait is regarded as one of the Capitol gems.



THE PROMISED LAND.

25 Years of Dairying in Missouri

From a minor interest of farmers in 1905, dairying has become an important industry; calf clubs played large part by bringing in purebreds to start herds; creamery stations increase in number to aid in butterfat sales; Missouri now eighth butter state; annual value of product has grown from $15,000,000 to $90,000,000.

E. G. Bennett, Missouri State Dairy Commissioner, in the Missouri Ruralist.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago in Missouri practically all of the butter consumed within the State, especially outside of the larger cities, came directly from the farm. The price made on butter at large market centers had no influence on the price of farm-made butter, because the towns depended on the farmer for their butter and the price was entirely regulated by the local supply and demand. Buttermaking on the farm was not considered profitable—either to the producer or the merchants.

This unsatisfactory situation was greatly improved through the coming of the centralized creameries, and these were welcomed by producer and merchant alike. Markets were immediately enlarged, enabling the producer to get his product to a competitive market—which meant a higher price—and giving the merchant opportunities to avoid becoming overstocked with a perishable article.

It required little time to convince the farmer that selling cream was more profitable, to say nothing of getting away from the hard work of churning and getting his butter to market. Other farmers, seeing their neighbors with cans of cream, became interested in cows and more cream stations were started to handle the increase.

No progressive community would sit still, seeing opportunities to increase farmers' income, and fail to encourage it. Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations, bankers and newspapers have all been active in their communities to develop dairy interest locally, while farm papers and State forces have added much support.

It was found in those formative years that the farmer generally knew little concerning dairy cattle. He had given little attention to dairy breeds, milking the kind of cattle he happened to have, if he milked any at all, and any increase of the milking herd had to come from those on hand.

But the banker, business man and the editor were making close surveys of the dairy game. They were getting information from the older dairy states. They were finding out that farmers were making money year after year specializing in dairying, that the cow was not only providing her owner with sufficient profit to provide the needs of himself and family, but she was replenishing the fertility of his worn-out land. All this was convincing that a good cow would very soon pay for herself, and little or no chance of loss was taken in lending money to farmers with which to buy dairy cows.

In Jasper County a meeting was called. At this meeting it was proposed by one of the banks in the city to lend money to farmers to buy three carloads of bred heifers from good producing herds in Wisconsin. These heifers were to be high grades and to cost about $50 each.

To the surprise of everyone present, nearly the entire number was asked for that day. Within three days 105 heifers had been signed for and a committee was on the way to bring back the three cars of heifers as soon as possible. Thus, the largest club of the kind, up to that time, had been organized, and the first one west of the Mississippi River.

Did it pay? It put Jasper County among the leading dairy counties of the State and that position is held today, and Jasper, moreover, is the leading county in the United States in the number of breeders of purebred Jersey cattle.

Those who were not in close contact with dairy development over the State generally cannot realize the widespread interest that sprang up within a few years following the early calf clubs. The club program edged its way into North Missouri. Many who a few years ago took pleasure in saying that they would never milk cows, and that bringing dairy cattle into the country would destroy their long established program of breeding cattle, are today milking herds of good dairy cows in well equipped barns and enjoying the income. Their activities in dairy work are fast making dairying the major branch of their farm operations.

Milk plants, creameries and cheese factories have come to North Missouri to give a market to the fast increasing supply of milk. All this adds evidence that dairy development is not confined to any particular section of the State.

Southern and Southeast Missouri are convinced they can produce grass and grow legumes and other field crops necessary to feed cows as economically as any section of the country. They are finding out that "hill cattle" do not fill milk pails. Many carloads of good dairy cattle have gone into those sections under the club plan.

From now on it will be "Forward March" in Missouri for the dairy business. It has passed the experimental stage, and its future success is assured. The rough spots have been gone over, united efforts to increase production of all dairy products have proved successful. The better cow and better bull are here to stay. Cow testing associations are eliminating the worthless cow.

Twenty-five years have not only brought to Missouri surprising results in the increased production of dairy products, but have added tremendously to transporting them also, which has opened new markets never before enjoyed by those in the dairy business. Our butter, cheese, milk and cream find markets in all sections of the United States.

Twenty-five years ago we were getting along with 15 creameries, making less than 8,000,000 pounds of butter annually. Today we have over 90 creameries making over 70,000,000 pounds of butter annually, which puts Missouri in eighth position as a buttermaking State. More than 3000 cream stations buy cream for these creameries, covering every nook and corner of the State. Within the last seven or eight years 25 cheese factories and nine milk plants have been added to the fast growing manufacturing branch of the industry.

To increase the value of milk and milk products in the State from $15,000,000 to well over $90,000,000 in 25 years undoubtedly shows progress in this industry of the right sort.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.

IT is always interesting to stroll down to that section of the capital known as "Foggy Bottom"—about a half-mile southwest of the White House—and roam through the corridors of the Navy Department. Tourists find it a delightful place. Those who love the sea and ships have come to regard this place as a mecca.

In those almost endless corridors there are many models of ships in glass cases and numerous paintings on the walls depicting great moments in the naval history of this country. It cost Uncle Sam a lot of money to assemble this miniature fleet. These models are fine bits of craftsmanship—perfect in every detail.

It is not an uncommon sight to see old sea dogs—some now in the Navy, others long retired—standing before one of these glass cases in a reminiscent mood. In many instances the models are reminders of those old ships on which they first put to sea—ships that made American history.

THERE is one, for example—the Oregon—before which one of these old tars may be frequently seen. He is that hale and hearty chap, Capt. C. S. Kempff, formerly naval hydrographer, but back in the days of '98 a junior officer aboard the Oregon.

It was the Oregon which made the gallant and spectacular 17,000-mile dash from San Francisco to the naval front at Santiago and fired the first shot at the Spanish fleet, which was attempting an escape to sea.

Capt. Kempff commanded the after guns on the Oregon at that time. The late Admiral Eberle, who died shortly after his retirement as Chief of Naval Operations, commanded the forward turret. Well does the Captain remember the day when that doughty old battleship opened the battle with her 13-inch guns.

HE admits that he has heard and told this 30-year-old story of the Oregon many times, but that it will never grow stale. Nor does he ever fail to get a kick when he passes that model in the corridor of the Navy Department. Capt. Kempff is back at sea now, aboard the U. S. S. Trenton with the Atlantic fleet.

Incidentally, the Navy Building itself—a semi-permanent steel and concrete structure—was put up in exactly three months' time during the war.

Navy folk laugh up their sleeves when this low-lying, long building is designated as "semi-permanent." It was supposed to last 20 years when put up more than a decade ago, but it begins to look as if the "semi-permanent" means a long, long time.

ox, the former Ohio Governor hom Warren G. Harding defeated or the presidency, sounds off as ollows:

"Over at Marion, O., there stands get him, now he is dead? It is not strange that Harry Daugherty who, whatever his manifold faults, should be raising a question now which concerns one of the most extraordinary postures of these times."

Some Futile Efforts.

Records of the Harding Memorial Association show that 1927 was passed over with but little effort to arrange a dedication, when no one seemed in the humor to stage it on the date first scheduled. The first intensive effort to have the memorial dedicated began early in 1928, but this was squelched for purely political reasons. Members of the committee were given to understand that the powers that be in the Republican Party did not think it wise to dedicate a memorial to President Harding during a presidential campaign year. In this, it was said by members of the executive committee, President Coolidge most heartily agreed. So the executive committee agreed to lie low until another Republican President had been elected and the skies clear again.

In 1929, certain members of the association began to set about in earnest to arrange the now long delayed dedication, and they were agreed that a memorial to the dead
President could be dedicated only by a President or a former President. This meant that either Mr.

What Cox's Paper Says.

What a list of men who have done big things; yet the memorial is not dedicated! And what a mass of cannon fodder the Democratic press is baling for the next campaign! Already this has begun to appear. Under the heading, "Harding and His Helpers," the Dayton Daily News, which is the privately owned mouthpiece of James M. Cox, the former Ohio Governor whom Warren G. Harding defeated for the presidency, sounds off as follows:

"Over at Marion, O., there stands a most beautiful memorial built in honor of Marion's gift of a President for the United States. It stands, and for some time has stood, awaiting a formal dedication. The dedication does not come.

Hoover, Coolidge, Hughes, Mellon and their party never disowned Harding while he was alive. Why this strange effort to ignore and forget him, now he is dead? It is not strange that Harry Daugherty who, whatever his manifold faults, should be raising a question now which concerns one of the most extraordinary postures of these times."

Some Futile Efforts.

Records of the Harding Memorial Association show that 1927 was passed over with but little effort to arrange a dedication, when no one seemed in the humor to stage it on the date first scheduled. The first intensive effort to have the memorial dedicated began early in 1928, but this was squelched for purely political reasons. Members of the committee were given to understand that the powers that be in the Republican Party did not think it wise to dedicate a memorial to President Harding during a presidential campaign year. In this, it was said by members of the executive committee, President Coolidge most heartily agreed. So the executive committee agreed to lie low until another Republican President had been elected and the skies clear again.

In 1929, certain members of the association began to set about in earnest to arrange the now long delayed dedication, and they were agreed that a memorial to the dead President could be dedicated only by a President or a former President. This meant that either Mr. Hoover or Mr. Coolidge was supposed to officiate; but the silence that met these suggestions was deafening.

As these new efforts got into full swing and it was apparent that a showdown was coming, the Memorial Association fell into two distinct groups—those who would dedicate the memorial and let the chips fall where they might, and those who glided into a sidestep to avoid the issue directly.

The Hoover Attitude.

About the first of April, 1929, the executive committee of the association wrote to President Hoover, suggesting that he name any date for the dedication, and the committee would act at his pleasure. While the contents of a reply from Mr. Hoover's secretary, George Akerson, have been carefully guarded, as is deserving of any and all correspondence from the White House according to the custom in this country, the information leaked out that President Hoover had no suggestions whatsoever for a date on which he might be in Marion. Executive committee members also said they were told that the letter suggested a dedication without the presence of the President and if such an event occurred, "the President will, of course, understand."

"In fact," Mr. Akerson was quoted as writing, "he (meaning Mr. Hoover) thinks that perhaps that would be the best course to pursue."

This letter, so committee members relate, proved quite a source of irritation to the executive group, who refused to be set down so abruptly. So, after thinking things over, they started all over again the next fall; they recalled that Mr. Hoover's secretary had said the duties of office would keep the President busy for the next six or eight months. They also realized that if the dedication were delayed much longer, it would be a hollow-sounding affair when it did come off.

To the suggestions of a fall dedication, there arose the warning that some exceedingly unpleasant notoriety concerning the late President and Nan Britton was in prospect and that, to use the words of Walter F. Brown, Postmaster-General, "we would do President Harding a dis-service by an ostentatious dedication of the memorial."

It was also pointed out to the committee that Nan Britton and "the yellow journals" undoubtedly would make the most of some litigation brought against the sale of the Britton book. Mr. Brown was backed in this opinion, so he said, by "Mr. Mellon and others of my associates."

A Rejected Suggestion.

After the suggestion had been made from sources in Washington that it was best to have no formal dedication of the memorial but that President Harding's personal friends "each year—on some suitable occasion—either the anniversary of his birth or his death—conduct some simple and appropriate ceremony at his grave," certain members of the executive committee kicked like bay steers, and this idea was dropped as a possible substitute.

Eastern members of the Harding Memorial Association became fully aware of the temper of the Marion group later in the same year when E. P. Mellon wrote to the executive committee in Ohio under date of Oct. 7, 1929:

"I have just been advised by Secretary Mellon that it has been decided by the President and others interested, including yourself, that no dedication will take place in connection with the Harding Memorial. I am advising Senator Frelinghuysen of this fact."

Just what Hoke Donithen, chairman of the executive committee at Marion, replied to this letter is not of public record. He is the outstanding legal mind in Marion, a political observer with a nation-wide horizon, and in 1924 was campaign manager in Ohio for Coolidge.

His friends in Marion say he replied with such phrases as "disgrace that a tomb of the President is not dedicated" — "bunch of cowards"—"President Harding still has some friends in this country" —and so on and so on until the situation was fully clarified. They say that no doubt Mr. Mellon and the "others interested" were able to grasp the idea that Mr. Donithen never had decided there was not going to be a dedication.

The Honorable Joseph S. Frelinghuysen replied to Mr. Mellon with this note:

"Personally, I think that the trustees should go to Marion and dedicate the monument and that the President of the United States should do it. However, if the decision is otherwise, I acquiesce and with that will send my resignation as president of the Harding Memorial Association."

To the committee at Marion, Mr. Frelinghuysen sent this letter:

I am perfectly willing to dedicate this monument, but I am only president of the Harding Memorial Association, and it should be done by the President of the United States.

It seems that a record should be made in the Harding Memorial Association calling a meeting and presenting to the association the fact that the memorial is completed and that the trustees are ready to present it to the country. Then, if it is decided that it should not be dedicated, that of course must be the rule because they have the authority. I, myself, am perfectly willing to dedicate the monument or urge that it be done. If, however, this attempt is not made and you believe it should not be, please write me.

Of course, if this is the final decision, I shall feel that in having been president of the Harding Memorial Association and having been at the head of it while it was carried through to completion, that my work is done and I shall tender my resignation.

This letter was under date of Oct. 16, 1929.

Writes to Coolidge.

Mr. Donithen at one time took matters into his own hand and wrote to his friend and former chief, Mr. Coolidge, at Northampton, Mass., under date of Sept. 9, 1929. The Yankee humorist's reply ranws with his now famous "I do not choose to run."

Mr. Donithen wrote, according to records of the association, as follows:

I am writing to you in reference to the dedication of the Harding monument. As you know, it never has been formally dedicated. The local members all feel that this should be done. There seems to be a feeling in Washington that it should not be done. I want your frank expression of what you think we should do. As you know, you are honorary president of the association. If anything is done not meeting with the approval of Washington, you probably will be criticized as much as we are.

To that, Mr. Coolidge replied:

My Dear Mr. Donithen: I was very much pleased to get a letter from you which indicates you are in your usual good health. I should be glad to talk with you the next time I see you concerning the interesting suggestion which you have made. I was much pleased to know the memorial has been so successfully finished.

So matters stood throughout the winter, with the entire memorial front quiet except for a shot fired by Charles M. Schwab. He wrote from 25 Broadway, New York City, on Jan. 30, 1930:

"Harding Memorial Association.

"On February eighteenth, next, I shall be 68 years of age and it is my purpose to retire from all organizations. Therefore, I respectfully resign as a member of the Harding Memorial Association."

On receipt of this message, one of the wits in the executive committee sighed:

"Poor fellow, he became old waiting for the dedication."

Spring of this year brought another effort (probably it will be the last) to dedicate the memorial. This time, the Marion committee got in touch with John Barton Payne at Washington, telling him it was imperative that the dedication be arranged. Mr. Payne replied:

"I heartily agree with you that the monument should be dedicated promptly. Is there not something we can do about it? You can command me."

The executive committee, in turn, suggested to Mr. Payne that he "go and have a talk with Mr. Hoover on this subject." Also, "tell him of the newspaper comments." That was on April 21, 1930.

Latest Word From Hoover.

The committee, at last reports, still was awaiting a hint for the day of dedication. However, an answer did come from the White House indirectly, through the press. On April 30, the Columbus Citizen, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, carried this dispatch under a "special" date line:

Washington, April 30 — If and when a definite invitation is extended, fixing a specific date, President Hoover will go to Marion, O., to dedicate the Harding Memorial, it was indicated at the White House today.

Although the subject has been discussed with the President heretofore, no time has been suggested for the dedication and the question was left undecided.

Immediately, the attention of the executive committee members at Marion was called to this dispatch. "Imagine us setting a date for the President of the United States," they replied. Nevertheless, they had renewed hopes that the President might find time during the summer to come to Marion. But that was before he announced his summer travel plans and arranged his vacation.

In vain did the members of the executive committee at Marion scan this news, but not one word about their memorial did they see. It killed their last hopes for a 1930 summer dedication, and their plans melted entirely away under the hot Ohio sun. They all agreed that it was too bad—the memorial never was more stately, the grounds never more beautifully kept, and the time never more opportune. They also said that much more delay would make a dedication a decidedly empty proceeding, bordering on the ridiculous.

The Harding Memorial Association at its annual meeting at Marion, O., last Tuesday adopted a resolution to drop for the present all plans for the dedication of the tomb. The members went on record as opposed to any step that might "give a political atmosphere to the ceremonies," and for this stated reason voted disapproval of the recent action of the Ohio Republican convention in selecting a committee to arrange for the dedication. The resolution was offered by Harry M. Daugherty.

'The Lady' Versus a Battling Wet in Illinois Election

on himself or the audience. Such was the case, and in such words he might have described it. But did he? Listen—this is what he actually said:

"On yesterday, under the necessity of making a large number of speeches in most inclement weather, I was so unwise as to expose myself, with the result that my body got very wet, and now I am paying the penalty of my imprudence. And yet, my dear friends, if you will bear with me but a moment, I flatter myself I shall not distress you."

Polished, But a Fighter.

Bruce Campbell, prominent East St. Louis attorney, who presided at this meeting, adopted the conventional political gesture of introducing the speaker as "the next Senator from Illinois." Chairmen always do that when introducing candidates. Did J. Ham fail to respond? Without a moment's hesitation he replied:

"I am grateful to the chairman for his flattering allusion to myself; I trust it has the merit of prophecy. But whatever my own fortunes may be, ladies and gentlemen, I make bold to say that I have had the honor and the privilege of being presented to you by the next Governor of Illinois." So far as is publicly known, Campbell is not running for Governor or anything else. He has a large law practice. That wouldn't matter to J. Ham. He was willing to nominate Campbell on the spot, simply out of courtesy and the goodness of his heart.

I have spoken of the danger of conveying a false impression. Doubtless, by recounting the foregoing charactertistic incidents, I have increased it. The fact is, nevertheless, that under all this foppery is a born fighter, willing at all times to match his jeweled rapier against the heaviest broadsword. Under this refulgent raiment is a man of inflexible purpose and iron determination. Behind those pink whiskers, now turning white, is a brilliant and scholarly mind. No adversary who knows Lewis ever makes the mistake of taking him lightly. From the topmost red ringlet to the tip of his patent leather shoes, he is all hickory and steel—and wise, very wise, in the ways of the game of politics.

Handling "The Lady."

Throughout the campaign, in which he has delivered more than 100 speeches at the rate of five and six a day, his technique in dealing with his principal opponent has been a delight to connoisseurs. "The lady," he calls her. Sometimes he varies it with "the charming lady," or "the estimable lady." Observing the sanguinary nature of her tactics against the Nye committee, editors have felt constrained to dub her "Ruthless Ruth." Columnists have alluded to her often as "the Widow McCormick," and "Mark Hanna's Daughter." But although her methods may fill him with distress, and her lack of convictions with indignation, to James Hamilton Lewis she is always a "lady," as he is always a gentleman.

We find him discussing the prohibition issue before a large audience, composed chiefly of working men and their families. Never has his diction been loftier or his periods more stately.

"It is said that I am wet," he observes. "I am not sure I comprehend the precise meaning of the term as it is used. I am imperfectly aware of where the point of saturation begins. But I will be frank. What I desire is not the restoration of the saloon, but the restoration of the Constitution. I am unalterably opposed to any government that assumes such dictatorial powers over the private lives of its citizens as to prescribe what they shall eat and drink, what they shall wear, how they shall rear their children. I deny the right of a Federal Government, 1500 miles distant from a man's home and ballot, to control the intimate affairs of his life and family through officials over whose selection he has no voice. I pronounce it tyranny."

They can understand that. He pauses, and there is a terrific salvo of applause. He pats the pinkish gray whiskers daintily with a bordered handkerchief, and continues.

The Wet and Dry Issue.

"I turn now to"—an almost imperceptible pause—"the lady."

It is the first time he has alluded to her since the evening began. A snicker ripples through the hall. Slowly the conglomerate face of the crowd resolves itself into one broad, delighted grin. It is prepared to enjoy what will follow. There is no hostility in his tone, no sourness in his manner, just a faintly satirical dignity as he contemplates the spectacle afforded by the maneuverings of "the lady."

"Where does she stand? Ah, my friends! The answer of today is not the answer of yesterday, nor, I fear, will it be the same tomorrow. Once, as we all recall, the lady announced just where she stood, and she was dry—personally, practically and politically. But the lady is by way of being a chameleon. Presently she was dry personally, and only partly dry practically and politically. Then she was wet practically, but partly dry and partly wet politically. Then wet practically and politically, but still dry personally, in the sense, as she explained, that she is a mother. Now she is wet-dry or dry-wet, or what have you—meaning she is willing to be any way that anyone can think of, providing she can get a few more votes."

By this time the audience is roaring with laughter, and the speaker cannot forbear to laugh, too. The antics of "the lady" are just too amusing. And it is all so good-humored that nobody feels the slightest rancor. There is entirely too much fun all around for anyone to sense malice in the sharper allusions that follow.

Typical Lewis Badinage.

"The lady, my friends, is a politician — the daughter of Mark Hanna. She is the sort of politician who retains five or six private detective agencies all over the country to inquire into the private lives of the Senators who have been regularly appointed to investigate her vast campaign expenditures—the inference being that if something derogatory to the reputations of those gentlemen can be dug up, they may thereby be persuaded to be more indulgent in the case of the lady."

This, too, has been said in the jolliest mood imaginable. The audience is still laughing heartily; it is not angry with "the lady"—it is merely "wise" to her and her methods. But suddenly the speaker's face becomes grave. Into his tone there creeps a solemn note, more of grief than indignation. In the hush that ensues he goes on:

"We all regret that such methods have been employed in the State of Illinois; still more do we regret that they have been employed by a woman. How much more deeply would we regret it if a lady who employs such methods should become known to the world as the first lady of our State!"

Again the cheer, but this time it is unmixed with laughter. The deft, dancing rapier has gone home. The crowd has tasted blood. The fact that it is the blood of a "lady" does not matter. This particular lady, the crowds seems to feel, is getting precisely what she deserves. And so the satirical note of the speaker's voice becomes more pronounced as he proceeds.

He dwells briefly on the referendum through which "the lady" expects to discover what her convictions are on the prohibition issue. It was the idea, he says, of the City Hall Gang in Chicago. The City Hall Gang has to be wet, but, for "practical" reasons of its own, it desires to support "the lady," who is dry. It conceives the idea of the referendum as a way out of the dilemma.

Among Farmers and Miners

"It is," Lewis explains, dryly, "a sort of political necromancy—a form of 'presto! change!'—with the City Hall Gang furnishing the presto and the lady furnishing the change."

One might make the mistake of supposing that Lewis would find it difficult to be at home among the rudely-garbed farmers or grimy miners of the little towns. The contrary is true. Alighting from his automobile before the old red brick Courthouse, he advances gravely upon the men grouped on the lawn.

"My name is Lewis," he says, without hesitation, extending a hand to the first person he reaches. Two things should be remembered: First, that he is acquainted with someone in every Illinois hamlet with a population of more than 500; second, that no matter how humble the situation of the American farmer or workman, he likes his statemen to look and talk like statesmen. There are inquiries about the crops, about the number of days the mine is working, much shaking of hands. Presently he looks about.

"Well, boys, let us go in," he says. "I would like to have a little word with you. It was good of you to come out to meet me; I shan't disappoint you. We'll have a little word together before I move on."

To these small crowds he talks easily, in a conversational tone. It is all very intimate. He may not speak their language in the literal sense, but he makes it quite plain that they all have the same things at heart. And what are these? A job for the man who wants to work. An end of the sort of government that "takes tribute from us of the West for the benefit and profit of the swollen magnates of the East." Farm relief that will place the farmer upon an equality with the tariff-protected manufacturer from whom he buys. A return to "the good old days when the poor man, after his day of toil, could sit down with his family and his neighbors in a garden, with a little beer on the table, and enjoy the simple pleasures that made life worth living."

Chicago to Decide Result.

It is good, sound, campaigning, by an old hand at the business. Mrs. McCormick, despite her formidable battery of strategists, press agents, statement-makers, advisers and "practical men," has made some mistakes. Not long ago an audience in East St. Louis came away puzzling over a speech it had heard her deliver. Perhaps three-fifths of the workers of East St. Louis are employed by the railroads, the aluminum plant, the steel foundry and the packing plants. It is one of the most completely industrialized communities in the State. She had talked to this audience for an hour on farm relief!

The outcome of the election is likely to be decided in Chicago. If the Thompson organization can "deliver" for Mrs. McCormick, the chances are she will be elected. Although dry in the past, she must have a large part of the wet vote to win. That, of course, explains her present strategy of abiding by the outcome of the referendum. A cynic has said: "In politics, God is on the side of the heaviest campaign fund." If that is true, there cannot be much doubt as to the result — Lewis cannot match the combined Hanna and McCormick millions. But experience has demonstrated it is not always true.

Mussolini Views Depression as Readjustment

regular operation of these great organizations is affected. This enhanced public interest imposes greater government control, not to hamper it because it is an industrial organization, but to help and aid it in the interest of the public. The interference of the Government should originate in a constructive purpose and not be influenced by often pronounced prejudices against industrial corporations. The Italian Government has approached all these problems from that standpoint and has not hesitated to step in where its help could be extended to carry industry through difficult seasons.

From the present world crisis industry must learn its lesson. Industrial progress has always had to adjust itself to the new economies which progress make. In the period of convalescence from the shock, we can reflect on new remedies for the elimination of such crises. Just as we have successfully solved many of the agricultural and financial questions which once brought panic and disaster, so we can face the problem of industrial crises and solve it.

ONE-MAN CARS PLACED ON THE SOUTHAMPTON LINE

Forty Cars Rebuilt and Equipped With Electric Heaters and Leather Seats.

The Public Service Co. today began the operation of one-man street cars on the Southampton line. For this service 40 cars have been rebuilt and equipped with electric heaters and leather-faced seats.

Witr the increase in number of cars the schedule has been changed to reduce the time between cars to one and a half minutes in the evening rush hours and four and a half minutes in the non-rush period.

The cars are equipped with foot-operated brakes and various safety devices used on one-man cars. The doors cannot be opened while the cars are in motion and the cars cannot start when the doors are open. Passengers leave by the center doors which open automatically when the car stops if passengers are standing on the treadle inside.

"My mother used California Fig Syrup with me, and when Peggy was a baby we decided to get some for her. It relieved her constipation immediately, sweetened her breath, made her bright and happy again.

"I have also used Fig Syrup for all her colds and upsets. It has kept her strong and vigorous. I have used it myself as a laxative, with splendid results."

For fifty years, wise mothers have been secure in the knowledge that a child's headachy, bilious, feverish or fretful spells can be quickly and safely overcome by California Fig Syrup. Physicians recommend the soothing aid of this pure vegetable product to keep the bowels clear in colds or children's ailments; or whenever unpleasant breath, coated tongue, listlessness or lack of appetite warn of constipation. California Fig Syrup helps tone and strengthen weak bowels—assist in building-up and energizing weak children.

PART SEVEN.

8 NEW HOMES TO BE STARTED IN LAKE FOREST

Residences in Subdivision on Clayton and Hanley Road to Cost $40,000 to $75,000.

$400,000 ALREADY INVESTED IN HOUSES

All Wires Are Underground — Ultimate Investment Estimated to Be Around $5,000,000.

By Berry Moore

Construction is to be started ithin the next 90 days on eight or 0 houses in Lake Forest, Clayton nd Hanley road, ranging in cost rom $40,000 to $75,000. Plans are ow being drawn for the new omes which are to be erected by ecent purchasers of sites in this ew residential park.

Eight houses costing a total of ore than $400,000 have already een erected or are under contruction in the addition. Forty-our lots have been sold out of a otal of 124 of 100 feet frontage r more, comprising the tract. Most of the lots have been purhased with plans for pretentious ouses. Restrictions exclude buildngs costing less than $25,000.

Proceeds of the sale of the lots t prevailing prices, it is estimated, ill aggregate $1,500,000 but before ost of surface and municipal improvements, and expense incidental o the marketing of the lots. The ract, embracing 60 acres, was a art of what was known as Gay Villa, owned by the late Mrs. ophia Mitchell Crow, from whom was purchased less than two ears ago. It was one of the reaining unexploited tracts immeately adjacent to the city. It is nderstood the subdividers paid round $5000 an acre, which was egarded as relatively low for a ract in the county eligible for igh-class residential purposes, virually within striking distance of he city.

Surface improvements, including ndscape work, together with intallation of public utilities, will ntail between $250,000 and $300,-00. These would include intallation of a street lighting system and an unerground system for electric light nd telephone wires. Subsurface elephone and light wires obviate he necessity of any overhead poles, which would tend to mar the eauty and disturb the tranquility f the addition.

The main transmission leads which will serve the addition are eing placed in conduits. From these, small lateral conduits lead o boxes set flush in the ground at alternate lot intersections. Electric connections to houses will be made direct to these through underround pipes. Construction of both projects are now well under way.

A park strip along the Clayton oad frontage will be a feature of he landscape planning, designed to mbellish the addition.

Shaw & Francis, sales agents for the lots estimate that when the subdivision is entirely built up on the scale contemplated, it will represent in residential, surface and municipal improvements, an investment of $5,000,000 in round figures.

The Lake Forest syndicate is composed of prominent business men, several of whom have reserved sites in the addition for homes.

HONIG COMPANY REPORTS TWO DEALS FOR WEEK

The Louis O. Honig Co., 614 Rialto Building, 220 North Fourth street, announces the closing of two leases last week.

The company represented both parties in each transaction, one involving a lease of the two-story building at 2218 Pine street to the Dunne Printing Co., now located at 2122 Pine street, and the other to the Bearman Shoe Co., for the storeroom known as 236 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, Ill. This is the third store to be opened in the Bearman chain.

RECENT TRANSACTIONS BY BELLIS REALTY CO.

Bellis Realty Co. reports the sale last week of two new bungalows, one at 6214 Bradley avenue to Charles Bird and the other at 6230 Bradley avenue to William F. and Elizabeth Wendt; vacant property fronting on Market street just west of Grand to Richard Teich for A. H. Parks; 1225 St. Ange avenue, an eight-room residence, to John Kohmann for E. I. Seever; 741 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, a six-room bungalow to Robert Starr for A. J. Jungbluth.

8 NEW HOMES TO BE STARTED IN LAKE FOREST

Residences in Subdivision on Clayton and Hanley Road to Cost $40,000 to $75,000.

$400,000 ALREADY INVESTED IN HOUSES

All Wires Are Underground —Ultimate Investment Estimated to Be Around $5,000,000.

By Berry Moore

Construction is to be started within the next 90 days on eight or 10 houses in Lake Forest, Clayton and Hanley road, ranging in cost from $40,000 to $75,000. Plans are now being drawn for the new homes which are to be erected by recent purchasers of sites in this new residential park.

Eight houses costing a total of more than $400,000 have already been erected or are under construction in the addition. Forty-four lots have been sold out of a total of 124 of 100 feet frontage or more, comprising the tract. Most of the lots have been purchased with plans for pretentious houses. Restrictions exclude buildings costing less than $25,000.

Proceeds of the sale of the lots at prevailing prices, it is estimated, will aggregate $1,500,000 but before cost of surface and municipal improvements, and expense incidental to the marketing of the lots. The tract, embracing 60 acres, was a part of what was known as Gay Villa, owned by the late Mrs. Sophia Mitchell Crow, from whom it was purchased less than two years ago. It was one of the remaining unexploited tracts immediately adjacent to the city. It is understood the subdividers paid around $5000 an acre, which was regarded as relatively low for a tract in the county eligible for high-class residential purposes, virtually within striking distance of the city.

Surface improvements, including landscape work, together with installation of public utilities, will entail between $250,000 and $300,000. These would include installation of a street lighting system and an underground system for electric light and telephone wires. Subsurface telephone and light wires obviate the necessity of any overhead poles, which would tend to mar the beauty and disturb the tranquility of the addition.

The main transmission leads which will serve the addition are being placed in conduits. From these, small lateral conduits lead to boxes set flush in the ground at alternate lot intersections. Electric connections to houses will be made direct to these through underground pipes. Construction of both projects are now well under way.

A park strip along the Clayton road frontage will be a feature of the landscape planning, designed to embellish the addition.

Shaw & Francis, sales agents for the lots estimate that when the subdivision is entirely built up on the scale contemplated, it will represent in residential, surface and municipal improvements, an investment of $5,000,000 in round figures.

The Lake Forest syndicate is composed of prominent business men, several of whom have reserved sites in the addition for homes.

HONIG COMPANY REPORTS TWO DEALS FOR WEEK

The Louis O. Honig Co., 614 Rialto Building, 220 North Fourth street, announces the closing of two leases last week.

The company represented both parties in each transaction, one involving a lease of the two-story building at 2218 Pine street to the Dunne Printing Co., now located at 2122 Pine street, and the other to the Bearman Shoe Co., for the storeroom known as 236 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, Ill. This is the third store to be opened in the Bearman chain.

RECENT TRANSACTIONS BY BELLIS REALTY CO.

Bellis Realty Co. reports the sale last week of two new bungalows, one at 6214 Bradley avenue to Charles Bird and the other at 6230 Bradley avenue to William F. and Elizabeth Wendt; vacant property fronting on Market street just west of Grand to Richard Teich for A. H. Parks; 1225 St. Ange avenue, an eight-room residence, to John Kohmann for E. I. Seever; 741 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, a six-room bungalow to Robert Starr for A. J. Jungbluth.

Architect's drawing of Mothers' and Babies' Home, Darst road and Hartnett avenue, Ferguson, Mo., for which a building fund of $200,000 is now being raised. The cornerstone laying ceremonies of the first unit will be held this afternoon at 2:30.

BARTHOLOMEW WRITES FOR REALTY ANNALS

In New Edition He Discusses City Planning and Blighted Urban Areas.

New methods which adjust real estate practice to the changes which business generally has undergone in the last year, changes which call for resourceful adjustments to keep abreast of fluctuating conditions, and new and improved standard forms which supply the realty dealer and his client a clear-cut and definite picture of their agreements and preclude foggy misunderstandings, are being prepared by the National Association of Real Etate Boards for publication hext month in its yearly edition of "The Annals of Real Estate Practice."

The 1930 edition of the annals will be a volume of approximately 1000 pages.

The compilation includes standard forms for the outline of data for use in creating, selling or appraising a long-term lease, a standard apartment lease form, a standard office lease form, a standard management agreement, a loft lease form and standard extension of lease form, all of which have been approved by the brokers and property management divisions of the national association.

The relation between real estate practices and city planning is emphasized in an article discussing the rehabilitation of blighted urban areas, which Harland Bartholomew, St. Louis, contributes to the volume. Additional articles on the subject of city planning are: "The Subdivider and the City Planner," by Jacob Crane Jr., Chicago, and "City Planning and Street Widening," by Mark Levy, Chicago.

The tax problem and ways for obtaining relief for property from its excessive tax burden are discussed in two articles, "The Taxation of Real Estate," by Judge Arthur J. Lacy, Detroit, chairman of the National Property Owners Division, and "Tax Problems and a Tax Program for Real Estate," by Prof. Simeon E. Leland of the University of Chicago, tax consultant for the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

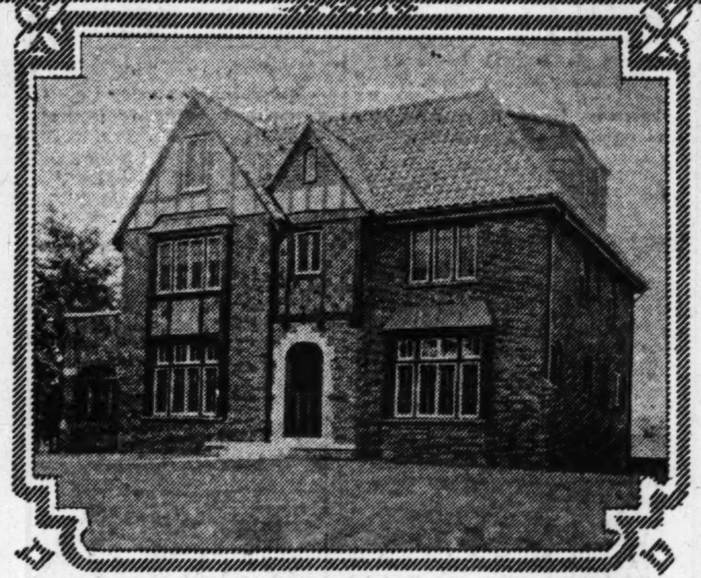
Special attention is given to all sides of the problem of real estate financing. Robert F. Bingham writes on "New Methods of Financ ing Real Estate;" Walter S. Schmidt discusses "Safeguarding Real Estate Securities;" Harold J. Betty contributes a paper on "How to Safeguard Real Estate Investments," and A. Lawrence Brown tells how to help finance the purchaser of real estate.

Real estate advertising comes in for its full share of attention. Improvement of subdivision advertising, how the property manager can advertise to the owner, and how to use brochures in advertising co-operative apartments are all discussed in detail.

How to make appraisals of farm lands, how to build a farm prospect list, the relation between farm land values and farm incomes and bookkeeping and accounting for farmers are discussed in that section of the Annals devoted to specialization in farm lands real estate.

GEORGE C. KARR SELLS FOUR IVANHOE PARK BUNGALOWS

Of the seven bungalows recently erected in Ivanhoe Park by George C. Karr four have been sold and the three remaining are ready for inspection. They are at 6711 to 6719 Oleatha avenue, which is 3500 south on Watson boulevard. Ivanhoe Park has all streets, etc., made and the homesites are restricted to a 50-foot building line, making a space of 160 feet between the homes on the north and south side of Oleatha avenue.



Residence at 7200 Kingsbury boulevard, in University Hills, purchased by Mrs. Russell A. Richardson through the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co.

NEW FOOD STORE CHAIN IS STARTED

George B. Wearen Leases Quarters From Edward M. Thornhill.

Leases are being closed, through Edward M. Thornhill, real estate agent, for chain stores to be headed by George B. Wearen, former managing director of the Piggly-Wiggly stores in St. Louis and former president of the Missouri-Illinois Stores Co. The stores will be run on the self-service plan and will carry groceries, meats, vegetables, fruits and delicatessen articles. They will be known as "Wearen Food Shoppes."

The first two stores of the chain have been opened in Webster Groves, at 102 West Lockwood avenue, and in Kirkwood, at 104 North Kirkwood road. Leases for a store in Maplewood and one in Old Orchard have been taken, and the management plans to have 25 stores in operation in the city and county within a short time.

LAUNDRY BUYS BUILDING AT 4576 MANCHESTER AV.

Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. announce the sale of the one-story building at 4576 Manchester avenue to The Laundry. This property was owned by Linford Investment Co.

The Laundry was formerly located in the 7300 block Manchester avenue in Maplewood, but the building there was destroyed by fire in July. The new building has been improved extensively. The adjoining property to the east, formerly owned and occupied by Hubert Kinsey, has been purchased. All parties in the above transaction were represented by the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co.

INVESTMENTS MADE IN GAS STATION SITES

Realty Firm Acquires Corner Properties Leased to Oil Firm for Clients.

Negotiations have been concluded through Jack Dubinsky for the sale of corner sites at Thekla and Wren avenues, Meramec street and Ray avenue and Delor street and Ray avenue, now under lease to the Sinclair Oil Co. The real estate firm of Eugene J. Altheimer, Williams & Calmer made the purchases as investments for clients. The purchases were made subject to leases, which place the property on an attractive investment basis.

Dubinsky also announced the sale of the southeast corner of Hanley road and Dale avenue, the northwest corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Olive boulevard and a 15-year lease on the northwest corner of Twenty-first street and Washington avenue.

The negotiations were handled in connection with Jacob J. Cohen of the Dubinsky office.

WORK BEGUN ON ANOTHER RESIDENCE IN BEL-NOR

Construction of an English residence containing seven rooms, two baths and a two-car garage was begun this week on Glen Echo drive, Bel-Nor, for Claude B. Rader, secretary of the Merchants' Exchange. Most of the 20 homes started earlier in the year have been completed and occupied. There are now 130 residences, a public school and more than eight miles of fully improved residential property in this subdivision. Bel-Nor is at 8200 Natural Bridge road, between the Bellerive and Normandie Golf Clubs. It is being developed and sold by the Knickmeyer-Fleer Realty & Investment Co.

SERVICE FIRM BUYS FRANKLIN AV. STATION

L. C. Wilderman Co. Acquires Building Occupied Under 10-Year Lease.

The L. C. Wilderman Lubricating Co. has purchased, for $140,000, the building at the northwest corner of Seventh street and Franklin avenue, on which it held a 10-year lease. The property has 127 feet front on Franklin by a depth of 110 feet on Seventh. The sale was made by Duffner & Stecker, general contractors, and the purchaser and seller were represented by Harry Newman, Inc.

This is the second site acquired by the Wilderman Co., which owns the property occupied by it at the southwest corner of Kingshighway and Lotus avenue. The two properties are occupied for gasoline and service station purposes, and the Franklin avenue building includes a 50-car garage.

EGGERS REALTY CO. SELLS 80-ACRE COLONIAL HILLS

The Eggers Realty and Investment Co. reports the sale of Colonial Hills, on the Spoede road, to the Spoede Road Improvement Co., which plans to develop the property along the lines reported some time ago. Ground has been broken for the erection of a residence of the Colonial type, and each home will be, in as great a measure as possible, a reproduction of one of the famous residences of 150 years ago.

The residence under construction, the first of 15 to be erected, will be similar to Montpelier, the home of James Madison, fourth President of the United States, located near Orange, N. J., and the estate will comprise six acres of land on the second highest point in St. Louis County. The cost of residence and ground will be in the neighborhood of $70,000, while modern plumbing, light and water systems will be used these houses, the mass and silhouette and general form of the historic models will be followed. Colonial Hills consist of 80 acres on the Spoede road equidistant from Mary Institute and Villa Duchesne, having a frontage of half a mile on the road and rising many feet above the surrounding country. The Hercules Contracting Co. has the contract for the building, and La Beaume & Klein are the architects. The Eggers Realty and Investment Co. has been appointed agent for the sale of the estates in Colonial Hills. Not less than five acres will be sold for a home and no residence may cost less than $30,000.

AGREEMENT MADE ON PRICE OF FEDERAL BUILDING TRACT

Peper Heirs, Oreon E. Scott and Other Owners Are Ready to Sign Papers and Will Wait for Courts to Allot Money.

John C. Dyott, special counsel for the United States Government in negotiations for the new Federal building site, announced yesterday that an agreement had been reached on all points necessary for transfer of the tract to the Government, and that papers would be signed, probably this week, by all the parties interested.

The site, which faces Memorial Plaza, is bounded by Twelfth, Market, Eleventh and Walnut streets. Two-thirds of the area, and the much more valuable portion, is claimed by the Peper heirs and by Oreon E. Scott, realty dealer, in litigation with them. The Peper heirs and Scott, and the owners of the remainder of the block, are ready to sign all necessary papers, Dyott said, and will wait for the courts to allot the money to be paid by the Government and placed in escrow.

Dyott said the price agreed on was about $7000 more than the one recently fixed by viewers, appointed by Judge Faris. The viewers fixed the price of the entire block at $1,055,395. The building is to cost $3,500,000.

Site to Be Reduced in Size.

The block, as it now stands, is to be reduced in size by the removal of a 40-foot strip for the widening of Twelfth street, and a 40-foot strip for the widening of Market street. The city has paid into court the balance due the owners for the Twelfth street widening.

The balance of damages for the Market street widening is $62,623.50, but the benefit assessments against the block, for Memorial Plaza and the Gravois avenue and North Twelfth boulevard widenings is to large as nearly to offset this, are so large as nearly to offset this, will owe the owners less than $1500.

To cover this claim, Dyott said, the city has agreed to place $10,000 in escrow, and if there is difficulty in striking a balance of damage and benefit claims, the owners can sue the city for any amount up to $10,000.

Another Specification.

It also is to be specified in the transfers that, if for any reason the 40-foot strips are not used for street purposes, the title in them will revert to the Government, and not to the present owners of the block. This is necessary, Judge Faris said yesterday, to prevent any possibility of seeing a hot-dog stand or other commercial establishments between the Federal building and the Plaza.

One of the parties, the guardian by Federal Court appointment of a minor heir of the Peper estate, has not thus far joined in the stipulation, being obliged to wait for an order of court.

PREDICTS CHANGES IN BUILDING INDUSTRY

Secretary of Producers' Council of Architects Institute Says It Must Keep Pace.

The building industry if it is to prosper must keep pace with the general advance in business thought and practice, declares F. S. Laurence, executive secretary of the Producers' Council, in a statement made public by the American Institute of Architects, with which the council is affiliated.

The nation looks to the architect for leadership in the great era of construction which is to come, asserts Laurence, pointing out that vast changes impend in the building industry.

"These changes," he says, "do not consist simply in new methods of construction which have grown up nor in changes in architectural design brought about by these and by the development of our zoning laws.

"Business thought, business conceptions, business ethics and business methods have all marched forward tremendously in the past 20 years. The construction industry is a part, and an important part of the general business fabric, and its thought, its conceptions, its ethics and its methods must keep abreast with this general progress, if the industry itself and individual units in the industry are to prosper equally.

"Today, enlightened employers in big business are going to considerable pains to find out and to respect the customer's point of view in their production and methods of advertising, selling and rendering service. It is the cardinal point of policy in the formation and work of the Producers' Council and has been found to pay handsomely."

Spurt in Chicago Building.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Building construction in Chicago during September reached its highest volume of the year, according to a survey issued by Straus & Co. today. The September volume was $13,381,500, a 75 per cent increase over August this year and 18.2 per cent gain over September, 1929.

KANSAS CITY BOARD FOR PROPOSITION NO. 5

Realty Men Believe St. Louis and County Should Work Out Own Problems.

The Kansas City Real Estate Board at a meeting held Friday formally indorsed Proposition No. 5, the constitutional amendment to be voted on Nov. 4, which will permit St. Louis and St. Louis County to adopt a charter providing for a metropolitan government, according to word received by the Citizens' Metropolitan Committee of 1000, which is sponsoring the proposition.

The exchange's action was taken after a full consideration of the measure, according to Frank Hilmes, member of the board. It was the feeling of members of the board, Hilmes said, that St. Louis and St. Louis County should have the right to work out their own problems and that no obstacles should be placed in the way of the city and county in attaining greater development.

Proposition No. 5 is merely an enabling act. It gives St. Louis and St. Louis County the constitutional authority to vote at later elections to be held separately in the city and county, on a charter providing for a co-ordinated form of government. The election, according to present plans, will be held in both the city and county in the spring.

In announcing the action of the Kansas City Real Estate Exchange, Hilmes said that members of the board felt that every encouragement should be given the city and county in their move for greater progress.

"We feel that St. Louis and St. Louis County should be given every opportunity to work out their mutual problems," Hilmes said. "The State of Missouri has never denied its cities and towns an opportunity to grow, and we saw no reason for deviating from this course. We're happy to lend our indorsement to this great constructive measure, and we wish you every success in your efforts."

Housing Accommodations Good in Tri-Cities' Area

Communities in St. Louis Industrial District Interested in City Planning and Zoning and Regional Development.

The problem in the years ahead is not alone to find sites for factories and mills, but to see to it that adequate provision is made for residential districts to house the workers and for their recreation, as was pointed out not long since by J. L. Rogers of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in an address before the Granite City Chamber of Commerce.

Of this problem the leadership of the East Side district is acutely conscious, according to Harry F. Porter, managing director of the Industrial Bureau of the Granite City Illinois District, Inc. Porter says this conviction accounts for the present interest in city planning and zoning and also in regional planning by all the communities of the district.

He pointed out that the Tri-Cities, like St. Louis, have grown haphazard up to the present time, with the result that many awkward situations have been created. While correcting some of these mistakes as best we can, we are aiming to avoid more of the same in the future by developing a master plan and governing our further expansion in accordance."

Housing and living conditions, he said, are rather better in the Granite City district (Tri-Cities) than might be expected of a community so highly industrialized. "As compared to other similar industrial centers, the workers enjoy considerably better housing and civic environment. Most of the streets of our communities are of standard width and well paved. They are lined, moreover, with trees of a rapidly growing variety which each year show up a little better. Most of the dwellings are of the single family kind, many of the smaller cities having yet to enter upon the apartment stage, and the majority are of brick construction. There is no really poor residential areas, as one knows them in and around Pittsburg, Youngstown, Akron and other highly industrialized centers of the East.

On the contrary, there are many areas which do not compare unfavorably with the finer residential sections anywhere. In the Wilson Park neighborhood of Granite City the development is especially noteworthy. Nameoki, to the north and east of Granite, is exclusively residential and a great deal of the development is very recent and good. Nameoki doubled in population in the last decade. In Madison, too, there is a surprising amount of high-grade development.

A Prophecy.

One scarcely needs the gift of prophecy to picture the development ahead, Porter said. "Industry will spread out along the numerous rail radiants and the community will flow into the between sectors until the entire American Bottoms is a teeming hive of industry and related enterprises. The whole will present a spectacle of more than ordinary satisfaction to the eye, because development has been according to a well-reasoned master plan. Beyond — on the scenic slopes of the encircling bluffs—I expect to see ensue a suburban development not inferior to that in St. Louis County. The setting is right and soon portions of these bluffs will have the advantage of electric rapid transit to downtown St. Louis on the Illinois Terminal Railroad system. The necessary highways to make this area accessible are also in the process of being realized. There is now close to 300,000 people in the East Side portion of the St. Louis Metropolitan area."

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT HAS GOOD CLIMATE

Building Operations Experience Few Checks or Delays on Account of Inclement Weather.

The climatic advantages of the St. Louis District find practical expression in its everyday life, and constitute a distinct asset, according to George C. Smith, president of the St. Louis Industrial Club.

Because of its unusual year-round livability, the climate of this whole region makes for continuous and sustained activity, regardless of the season.

Due to the mild weather conditions here, it is possible to carry on outside operations throughout most of the year.

Building operations, great and small, are here stasted and brought along to completion during every month, few checks or delays being experienced on account of inclement weather.

Ordinarily, the St. Louis winters bring but little snow. The occasional light snowfalls that do occur usually disappear within a day or two.

There are few blizzards, long-continued cold waves, or instances of costly traffic paralysis caused by deep snow or heavy sleet storms, such as are common to the winter climate of more northern, eastern and western cities.

Workmen and factory operatives seldom encounter any difficulty in reaching their places of employment, nor are factory shipments delayed and congested through transportation breakdowns.

The high percentage of crisp, cheerful, sunlit days, even throughout the winter, here offers a striking contrast to the long periods of dismal, gloomy weather so depressing to mind and body in many other sections of the country.

Winters are generally mild and summers warm; spring and autumn are delightful.

Average yearly precipitation is 39.53 inches. The average annual relative humidity is 63.4 per cent, decreasing to 58 per cent for July.

The clear days during the year average 38 per cent; partly cloudy, 34 per cent; and cloudy, 28 per cent. Only one month of the year has less than 50 per cent of the possible amount of sunshine, the annual average being 62 per cent. Only nine days a year experience dense fogs.

STOCK PRICE INDEX OFF TO 3-YEAR LOW DURING WEEK

Market Has Its Long-Expected Selling Climax During Week, After Coasting Downhill for a Month, Review Says.

FRIDAY'S NET GAINS CUT INTO YESTERDAY

Reaction Due to Week-End Realizing Is Not Surprise in View of the Amount of Stock Taken on First Upturn.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—After coasting down hill for a month the stock market had its long-expected selling climax this week, resulting in a general house cleaning of weakly held stock, and considerable reckless dumping of holdings by investors.

Not until the standard statistics weekly price index of 404 stocks had touched the lowest level in three years did the market rebound decisively, and bears rush to cover.

Veteran Wall street observers said that the market was merely following the pattern of previous periods of depression, going to extreme depths as stocks are dumped overboard by holders who have lost their sense of value, as marginal accounts are weakened and jettisoned, and bears make use of the general confusion to reap profits.

President Whitney of the stock exchange helped to still considerable agitation which arose over short selling. In an address in Chicago he pointed out that reports of bear raiding are usually exaggerated in times of depression. He explained that short selling provides the impelling force of recovery.

Selling Climax Friday.

The selling climax, coming on Friday, was aggravated by failure of a large commission house, the previous day, although attorneys stated that creditors would probably be paid in full. It gave the market a 6,000,000-share day, the third largest of the year. This climax carried stocks up so swiftly, as shorts suddenly found themselves pinched, that a substantial secondary reaction developed today, although it left prices above the bottom levels which represented the turning point.

A combination of factors, such as a slackening of steel mill operations, political unsettlement abroad, and fresh declines in the leading commodity markets, aggravated the selling movement in stocks. The money market was firmer, although call loans did not rise above 2 per cent.

Trend More Normal Saturday.

Stock trading returned to a more normal basis in today's market. Week-end realizing in a quiet orderly market just about eliminated Friday's net gains, but such a reaction was not surprising in view of the amount of stock that had been taken on yesterday's upturn.

With the market closed next Monday, traders who had bought at or near the bottom were anxious to make sure of their profits.

Turnover was relatively light until the last half hour, when it became apparent that additional short lines were being laid. After the close there was an unusual bustle to borrow stock and a long list of issues loaned flat, which meant that the short interest was still considerable.

The market was noticeably calmer, for the violent about face Friday afternoon soothed the jaded nerves of the speculative community and enabled it to view the situation with more composure. Some of the day's declines exceeded the net gains of the previous session, but United States Steel and American Can retained about half of their improvement. Only in scattered instances were the Friday's lows even approached. Sales totaled 1,727,940 shares for the two hours, a marked reduction in activity.

Grain Prices React.

Grain reacted rather severely to the Government crop estimates. Although the indicated corn crop is the smallest since 1901, the prospective increase of 4,000,000 bushels above the Sept. 1 figures brought in selling and futures closed about 3 cents lower. The Oct. 1 forecast on wheat, representing virtually no change from the previous report, was also con-

STOCK PRICE INDEX OFF TO 3-YEAR LOW DURING WEEK

Market Has Its Long-Expected Selling Climax During Week, After Coasting Downhill for a Month, Review Says.

FRIDAY'S NET GAINS CUT INTO YESTERDAY

Reaction Due to, Week-End Realizing Is Not Surprise in View of the Amount of Stock Taken on First Upturn.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—After coasting down hill for a month the stock market had its long-expected selling climax this week, resulting in a general house cleaning of weakly held stock, and considerable reckless dumping of holdings by investors.

Not until the standard statistics weekly price index of 404 stocks had touched the lowest level in three years did the market rebound decisively, and bears rush to cover.

Veteran Wall street observers said that the market was merely following the pattern of previous periods of depression, going to extreme depths as stocks are dumped overboard by holders who have lost their sense of value, as marginal accounts are weakened and jettisoned, and bears make use of the general confusion to reap profits.

President Whitney of the stock exchange helped to still considerable agitation which arose over short selling. In an address in Chicago he pointed out that reports of bear raiding are usually exaggerated in times of depression. He explained that short selling provides the impelling force of recovery.

Selling Climax Friday.

The selling climax, coming on Friday, was aggravated by failure of a large commission house, the previous day, although attorneys stated that creditors would probably be paid in full. It gave the market a 6,000,000-share day, the third largest of the year. This climax carried stocks up so swiftly, as shorts suddenly found themselves pinched, that a substantial secondary reaction developed today, although it left prices above the bottom levels which represented the turning point.

A combination of factors, such as a slackening of steel mill operations, political unsettlement abroad, and fresh declines in the leading commodity markets, aggravated the selling movement in stocks. The money market was firmer, although call loans did not rise above 2 per cent.

Trend More Normal Saturday.

Stock trading returned to a more normal basis in today's market. Week-end realizing in a quiet orderly market just about eliminated Friday's net gains, but such a reaction was not suppirising in view of the amount of stock that had been taken on yesterday's upturn.

With the market closed next Monday, traders who had bought at or near the bottom were anxious to make sure of their profits.

WAGNER ELECTRIC LEADS TRADE OF WEEK ON 'CHANGE

New Low for 1929-30 Is Recorded, the Stock Selling at 17 7-8 — National Candy Is Down — Shoe Range Is Narrow.

An increased volume of business was transacted on the St. Louis Stock Exchange in the week just closed but the enlarged aggregate was due largely to Wagner Electric. Sales of this issue made up more than 30 per cent of the week's total business. Prices on the whole, like those on the New York Exchange, were lower, though not radically so.

Wagner Electric was traded in to extent of more than 4300 shares between 17⅞ and 19½. A new 1929-30 low was recorded by the stock. Much of the issue came from one house.

International Shoe, Rice-Stix and National Candy were others of the comparative more active shares of the week. The shoe issue declined to 53¼. The candy stock ranged down a point. Rice-Stix was unchanged to fractionally higher, about 1400 shares selling at 10.

Missouri Portland dropped 2½ points and Laclede Steel 2½ points. Southwestern Bell preferred declined over a point. Bentley was up a fraction.

Mercantile-Commerce and First National led in bank share activities, the first named selling between 245 and 223, the bottom price representing a decline of 24 points. On Thursday there was a decline of 17 points to the low for week on a small lot offering apparently "at the market." The stock rebounded 5½ points subsequently. Franklin-American and Mississippi Valley lost about 5 each on sales of about 50 shares each.

strued bearishly and losses of around 2 cents developed. Cotton, on the other hand, was up 12 to 13 points.

Weekly bank clearings showed the familiar declines from a year ago. Copper stocks on hand Sept. 30 were up nearly 16,000 tons, but this increase was smaller than in the preceding month, which seemed to denote progress in the direction of production curtailment.

The momentum of the Friday rally in shares carried over to the opening, which saw a narrow upward movement. There was an effort to bring forward U. S. Steel as the leader of a further advance and the stock touched 151, a point and a half net higher, but the market turned dull and then began to decline when profit-taking became a factor. Steel closed a point lower.

General Motors Down.

General Motors developed considerable heaviness and dropped to the new low on movement of 35¼, where it finished, down 2 points. Westinghouse and American Telephone were among the leaders to lose more than their Friday gains, declining 4⅞ and 3¾ respectively. Bethlehem Steel dipped 2½, National Biscuit 2, Woolworth 1, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Electric Power & Light and America & Foreign Power 3 to 4, and American Water Works 5. United Corporation and North American lost 2, but Western Union was up more than a point. Youngstown Sheet & Tube rallied 3. Allied Chemical went down 9.

Motion Picture shares were again heavy. Loew's dropped 5 points, Fox 2 and Paramount 1. Warner Brothers closed unchanged. There were wider declines in some of the rails, Union Pacific falling 6 and New York Central 5. Pennsylvania and Atchison yielded about a point.

Irregularity in the foreign exchanges was relieved by the steadiness of sterling which held at $4.85⅞. The Spanish peseta once again weakened and the demand rate touched a new low at 10 cents.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Total stocks of refined and blister copper increased 15,962 tons during September to a total of 597,785 tons Oct. 1, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. Surplus of finished copper at refineries in North and South America showed an increase of 12,962 tons to 360,650 tons Sept. 30. Production by United States mines during the month was 56,584 short tons, against 56,136 in August and 79,402 in September last year. Smelter production of the United States, Canada and Mexico aggregated 85,580 tons in September, against 84,560 in August and 84,426 in July. Export shipments of refined copper in September totaled 37,873 tons, against 38,319 in August and 45,921 in September last year. Domestic shipments totaled 65,169 tons, against 56,810 tons in August and 98,043 tons in September, 1929.

The Rubber Exchange of New York was closed today, to reopen next Tuesday. Members who had rubber to deliver, however, kept their offices open today in accordance with the action of the exchange board in granting a petition to close the exchange.

WEEKLY COPPER REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Demand for copper tapered off toward the close of the week after both domestic and foreign producers had purchased large tonnages at the 10-cent level for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley. Buying from abroad was checked to some extent by recent easiness of the London market and there also may have been some disposition to await the appearance of the September statistics. Producers continued to quote at the 10-cent basis, although there were rumors of offerings at slight concessions by second hands.

Lead price was reduced. Weakness at London caused easier tone here.

Zinc was easier. A large increase was reported in stocks for September. Consuming demand was moderate.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

Orders, factory productions and other business items, compiled daily by Standard Statistics Co., Inc., New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Refined copper stocks increased 12,962 tons further during September to largest total since March, 1921. Oct. 1 surplus stock was 360,650 tons, compared with 88,400 tons a year ago. Production during the month again exceeded shipments.

Associated Gas & Electric September Electric output up 0.8 per cent; 12 months 2.8 per cent above year ago. Gas output in September declined 0.6 per cent.

Equitable Office Building earned $1.13 common share in five months to Sept. 30, vs. $1.15 in 1929 period.

Kelvinator Corporation, September sales 11 per cent ahead year ago.

National Baking earned 60 cents common share in year to June 30, vs. $1.31 in previous year.

National Electric Power, September, Electric output up 3 per cent; 9 months 7 per cent above year ago.

Radio Corporation of America subsidiary reduces Radiogram rates to Porto Rico 10 cents a word.

Simmons Co., September sales (excluding subsidiaries), off 30.3 per cent; 9 months 17.8 per cent below year ago.

United States of America Treasury accepts bids amounting to $102,525,000 for 62-day Treasury bills at cost 1.85 per cent, on bank discount basis.

L. A. Young Spring & Wire earned approximately 51 cents common share in third quarter, vs. $1.34 in 1929 period; 9 months $3.13 vs. $5.03.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER AT WEEK-END SESSION

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—An opening advance in cotton today was followed by reactions under realizing promoted by the weakness in stocks, but prices firmed up again later on renewed covering and trade buying. New December, after selling off from 10.52c to 10.43c, advanced to 10.53c and closed at 10.52c, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 12 to 13 points. Spot was steady, middling 10.45c.

The opening was steady at an advance of 11 to 14 points on overnight buying orders and a scattering demand which was evidently promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and the steady opening of the stock market. The advance to about the 10½c level for December and 11c for May seemed to meet a little more Southern hedging, however, and prices reacted some 7 or 10 points from the best during the middle of the morning under a continuation of this pressure, combined with realizing.

There may also have been some reselling by early buyers owing to the renewed weakness of the stock market, but after easing off to 10.94c for May, the market steadied on continued covering. This appeared to be combined with some trade buying, while the Southern selling was somewhat less in evidence late in the morning. May sold up to 11.01c or even with the early high point and closing prices were at the highest of the day on most positions.

A considerable part of the trading was attributed to evening up of accounts for over the week-end and the holiday of Monday. This may have been promoted by some uncertainty as to just what might develop in connection with the meeting of the cotton trade in New Orleans on Monday and which might possibly find a reflection in Liverpool before the resumption of business here on Tuesday morning.

Liverpool cables said the market there had been influenced by trade calling, covering and continental buying, and reported a shortage of contracts. The Southern selling reported in the local market was in comparatively small volume, but was a little more active than recently, and persisted during the greater part of the morning. The amount of cotton on shipboard at U. S. ports awaiting clearance at the close of business yesterday was estimated at 139,000 bales, against 168,000 bales last year and 123,000 two years ago.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN FOREIGN BOND LIST

Market's Efforts to Regain Its Equilibrium Is Moderately Successful.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The bond market made an effort today to regain its equilibrium in a very active two-hour session, with a moderate degree of success.

Declines were generally modest compared with previous sessions. The domestic section held fairly steady on evening up transactions preparatory to enjoying a holiday over Monday.

Improvement was most pronounced in the foreign section where the rally of some South American issues that have been under steady pressure throughout the week bore some semblance of a change of trend. Obligations of the Brazilian Government rallied 1 and 2 points; Chilean issues 2 and 3, and Argentine, Peruvian, Colombian, Uruguayan and Bolivian issues were generally up from 1 to 3 points.

Brazil 6½s of '26-'57 gained 1⅝ and the 8s advanced 2 points. Chile 6s of 1961 gained more than 3 points; the 6s of 1960 were up 3, and the 6s of May, 1963, advanced 2¼. Bolivian 8s showed the largest gain in the issues of that country, up 4½. Argentine 6s of May, 1961, soared 5½ on few sales. Peru 1st 6s of 1960 registered a 2½ point advance. Uruguay 6s of 1960 were up 2⅞ and the 6s of 1964 gained 1¼. Colombia 6s of October, 1961, were up 7 points from their bottom price.

The most marked change in the European section was in German bonds—Government, municipal and industrial. Nearly all registered advances. The 5½s rallied 1½. The 7s gained ⅞.

Among the best grade domestic issues gains and losses were evenly divided. Railroad issues suffered more than utilities from the selling. Some issues of communications companies staged a rally. Western Union 5s gained 2 points. Postal Telegraph 5s advanced 5⅞ from the 1930 low. International Telephone issues rebounded, the debenture 5s and convertable 4½s gaining a point or more. American Telephone issues sold off slightly. Selling continued in American and Foreign Power 5s. The company has South American holdings. The bond dropped 3 points.

Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg 4½s, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Rutland Construction 4s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s, Seaboard All Florida 6s were among rail bonds losing a point or more. Southern Railway General 6s, West Shore 4s, and Northern Pacific General 3s were strong. Prime issues generally showed small change.

Stock privilege issues were irregularly lower. U. S. Governments were steady and dull.

BUSINESS NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—At the conclusion of its fall fur sale, the New York Auction Co., Inc., reported a total business of $1,200,000. Prices were virtually unchanged from previous sales.

The American Glass Review says today that marketing conditions in several branches of the flat glass industry continue to reflect the gradually improving seasonal trends of recent weeks with both shipments and sales somewhat larger. The greatest increase has been the demand for window glass.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Total sales amounted to $6,010,000 compared with $19,660,000 yesterday; $5,814,000 a week ago and holiday a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 were $2,184,496,000, compared with $2,294,572,400 last year and $2,386,003,000 two years ago.

Quotations on all Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar. That is, for instance, a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar, and not $99.24.

Following is a complete list of bonds traded in on the New York Stock Exchange today, giving sales, highest, lowest and closing prices. In sales, 000 omitted.

MIXED TRENDS MARK SESSION ON CURB

More Active Shares Run Into Hangover Selling—Sales Aggregate 453,100 Shares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Trends on the curb market were mixed today, as the recovery was continued in shares which failed to participate in the upturn yesterday, and the more active issues ran into hangover selling. Trading was fairly active for a Saturday, with sales aggregating 453,100 shares.

Most of the utilities lost ground, although the utilities power and light issues were firm. The class B shares jumped four points. Hydro electric securities gained more than a point. Electric bond and Share closed at 55⅝, off 3⅝, and American Gas and Electric lost 2 points. Other losses were narrow.

A buoyant feature of the industrials was National Screen Service, which bounded up more than 9 points to 24¼. Aluminum Co. rallied 3 points more. Most of the Aviation issues made small gains, Irving Air Chute closing a point higher. Changes in the industrial group generally were narrow.

Natural gas issues were irregular. Natural Fuel Gas rose a point, while United Gas declined ⅜. Oils in the main were steady. Cities Service lost a fraction, and Gulf a full point, but Indiana and Humble were unchanged at the close. Indian Territory B gained 3 points in a moderate turnover.

Investment Trust and holding company issues encountered mild selling pressure, with Goldman Sachs and United Founders recording declines of major fractions.

BOERSE OPENS FIRM BUT IS WEAK AT CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—The Boerse, after opening firm, failed to maintain its optimiam and the list slumped, closing weak with losses from the highs of about 11 points.

CORN PRICES LEAD DOWNTURN ON THE LOCAL EXCHANGE

Increase in Corn Crop Estimate Published by Government Credited With Bringing About Decline.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 11.—Grain futures closed substantially lower at the week-end session on the local market, corn leading the decline following increase of 64,000,000 bushels in estimate of crop. Comment on some husking returns was without effect. Lack of export demand for North American wheat exerted influence. Report of improved crop prospects for Argentine and Australian wheat also proved factor. Liverpool wheat closed unchanged to ¼d higher.

December wheat opened at 78⅞, May wheat 84½, December corn 82½ and May corn 85.

In the cash grain market soft wheat was down 1c to up 1c. Straight grades showed recession of ½c to 1c, while garlicky grain was steady to 1c higher. There was a little more wheat on sale anda fair shipping demand was reported, with select milling grades and garlicky stuff clearing readily. Dark, flinty types, however, moved slowly. Sales of No. 1 were on a basis 11½c to 12c above the Chicago December figure. Garlicky discounts under straight grades ranged from 2c to 2½c for light to 3c to 3½c for medium and 4c to 4½c for heavy. Hard wheat was steady to ½c higher. Offerings were a little larger and the demand was fair. Sales of No. 1 were on a basis 2c to 3c above the Chicago December and No. 2 at 1c above. There was a pretty good volume of sales reported from store. Corn was steady to ½c lower. The basis as compared to futures was unchanged. Offerings were light and there was a good local demand, with mills and industries taking the bulk of supplies. Oats were ½c and 1c lower. There was a fair demand from local mills and feed trade.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Sales of cash grain made on the exchange Saturday were as follows: Wheat—No. 1 red winter, 89c; No. 1 red garlicky, 85@87c; No. 1 hard, 80@80½c; No. 2 hard, 79c; sample grade mixed, 76c. Corn—No. 4 new, 78@80c; No. 1 yellow, 88½@89c; No. 2 yellow, 87½@88½c; No. 3, 87½c; No. 4 yellow, 81@87½c. Oats—No. 2 white, 37c; No. 3 white, 36¼c; No. 1 mixed, 36c; No. 3 mixed, 36¼c; burt, 40¼c.

WHEAT—No. 1 red winter, 89@89½c; garlicky, 85@87c; No. 1 hard winter, 80@80½c; smutty, 78½c; No. 1 yellow hard, smutty, 78c; No. 2 hard winter, 79c; No. 4 hard winter, 75c; sample grade mixed, 75 per cent soft, 76c.

CORN—No. 4 mixed, new, 78c to 80c; No. 1 yellow, 88½c to 89c; No. 2 yellow, 87½c to 89c; No. 3 yellow, 87½c; No. 4 yellow, 87c to 87½c; new, 81c.

OATS—No. 2 white, 36½c to 37c; No. 3 white, 36¼c; No. 4 white, 35¾c; No. 1 mixed, 36c; No. 3 mixed, 36¼c; No. 2 red, 40½c.

St. Louis Bran Market.

Wheat-feed was weaker. Demand was poor. A local mill quoted pure bran $21.50 and gray shorts at $25.50; and quotations (from the West, immediate) were: Standard bran, $21; pure bran, $21.50, and gray shorts, $24.50 to $25; standard middlings quoted at $21. Oatfeed priced at $8.50, and white hominy feed at $28. Sales reported were as follows: Two cars standard bran (immediate shipment), $21, one local and one to go out, and one car mixed feed, $24.50 to go out.

Flour and Meal.

The flour market was dull. Milling operations reduced for the week. A local mill reduced price 10c per brl on hard patent to $5.20 cotton and on soft patent to $5.45 cotton, another local mill priced hard 95 per cent $4.30 cotton and $3.60 jute given as a minimum price on Kansas 95 per cent. Sales reported were as follows: 2 cars soft patent (to the South) $5.65 in cotton and 1000 brls hard and soft and 2 cars hard by local mills on private terms.

Nominally, in new jute: Soft patents $4.50 to $5 (special brands in cotton from $5.45 to $5.65@6; straights, $3.65 to $3.75; 95 per cent, $3.85 to $4.25; clears and extra fancy, $3.50 to $3.75; low grades $2.90 to $3.25; hard 95 per cent $3.85 to $4.10; straights $3.75 to $3.90; high patent $5.30 in cotton, first clears $3.35 to $3.60; low grades $2.90 to $3.25; spring patents, $4.85; No. 2 Seminola, 2⅝c; special at 2¼c and No. 3 at 2¼c per lb.

RYE FLOUR—Quoted by mill in carlots in jute: White patent $3.60; medium $3.30; dark $3.05.

Corn meal quoted at $2.25 and standard meal $2.15 per 100 lbs.

St. Louis Hay Market.

No. 1 clover was quoted $21@23 per ton; No. 2 clover $17@20; clover-mixed, No. 1, $21 to $22; No. 2 $18@20; alfalfa hay, No. 1 to choice, $28 to $30; standard $24@26; No. 2 $18@20; oats and wheat $9@10; No. 1 timothy $22@23; No. 2 timothy $17 to $21; sample grade timothy $10@13; No. 1 prairie $18 to $19; No. 2 prairie $14 to $16; No. 3 prairie $11@12

ALL GRAINS GO LOWER AFTER CORN CROP ESTIMATE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Floored by official estimates that the corn crop would be 64,000,000 bushels larger than was forecast a month ago, all grain values went down today. Corn prices dropped in some cases 4c a bushel, and wheat 2½. Persistent absence of demand for wheat from North America contributed to wheat weakness, and so likewise did the depressing influence of a closing dip in the stock market.

Closing quotations on corn were unsteady, 3c to 3⅝c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Wheat closed nervous, 1⅝@2⅝c down; oats 1⅛@1⅝c off, and provisions varying from 17c decline to a rise of 12c.

Most corn traders had figured on some enlargement of the Government estimate of 1931 corn production, but were unprepared for anything near the official report. Although the total announced from Washington, 2,047,000,000 bushels was 567,000,000 bushels less than the moderate crop harvested last year, the immediate effect was to knock all important buying support out from under the corn market. An additional consequence was to force into operation numerous standing orders to sell corn future delivery contracts at various set limits in order to put a stop to holders' losses.

It was in vain, temporarily at least, that commission house called attention to husking returns reported which were at variance with the conclusions given in the Government crop report as to corn yields, and report that during former years the husking return have been the best late criterion of the crop. A Nebraska advice said corn acreage, that had been expected to make 20 to 25 bushels was showing but 10 to 15. Price rallies were only fractional, despite considerable evening up of accounts for the double holiday ahead.

Wheat, rye and oats went into reserve action with corn. Every grain on the list finished near the day's bottom level. A special dampening influence as to wheat was the fact that European markets had made but little response to yesterday's upturns in wheat values on this side of the Atlantic. Furthermore, there were reports of improved crop prospects for wheat in Argentina and Australia, with the Australian output this season unofficially forecast as 190,000,000 bushels, a total discounting recent uneasiness about damage by drouth.

COUNTY BUS PERMIT AGAIN DENIED P. S. CO.

State Commission Refuses Rehearing on Wellston-Overland Line Ruling.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—A motion by the St. Louis Public Service Co., for rehearing of a case in which the Missouri Public Service Commission last August refused to grant the company a permit for a motor bus line between Wellston and the Overland district, St. Louis County, and at the same time issued a permit for the same route to the Red Line Service, Inc., was overruled today by the commission.

While denying the street car company a rehearing, the commission stated in its order that it would have no jurisdiction over busses operated by the Public Service Co. over the proposed route and that the company could establish the proposed service, without an order from the commission, if it obtained the necessary local consent.

Such action by the company would result in bus competition on the route between the State permit holder, the Red Line Service, which is subject to commission regulation, and the Public Service Co., whose line would not be subject to commission control. This difference in control arises from a provision in the State bus regulatory law which excludes from commission jurisdiction all motor busses operated in a city and its suburban territory, which are a part of a transportation system, the major part of which is within the city.

Wants Jurisdiction Transferred

The street car company has made several attempts to compel the commission to assume jurisdiction of its bus lines, and thereby take regulation of its St. Louis busses away from the city, and place it under the commission, along with its street car lines.

The company likely will appeal. The company lost last May when it attempted to go direct to the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus to compel the commission to assume jurisdiction over one of its city bus lines.

In seeking a rehearing of the Wellston-Overland route cause, the Public Service Co. charged the commission with inconsistency, in that it had assumed jurisdiction of the company's application in that case, and rejected it on the merits, while it had declined to consider applications filed by the company for other bus permits on the ground of lack of jurisdiction.

Denies Showing Inconsistency.

The commission denies there was any inconsistency in its rulings. It pointed out that it previously had granted a permit for the Wellston-St. Charles bus line of the Public Service Co., on the ground St. Charles was not in the suburban territory of the city, within the meaning of the bus law. In the pending case the Public Service Co. applied for authority to abandon its St. Charles bus service and divert it to the Overland district, by way of Woodson Road and Lakeland avenue.

The commission ruled it retained jurisdiction of the St. Charles line and that the company's application in the pending case was not simply an application to operate busses in its suburban territory, but to begin an operation that was incidental to and contingent upon obtaining authority to abandon the St. Charles line, over which the commission had control. This consolidation of the application for a permit for a new service, with a proposal to abandon a service that was under control of the commission, gave the commission jurisdiction which it would not have held had the application been for the new service alone, the commission ruled.

CAUGHT WITH $22,000 LOOT

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—"Big Earl" Herbert, gangster, was surprised by detectives today as he sat, shotgun across his lap, guarding $22,000 worth of tobacco stolen from a Walgreen Co. warehouse last Sunday.

Detectives trailed the thieves' trucks yesterday to a poolroom in Summit, a suburb. Today they raided the place and found a garage in the basement where the loot had been unloaded. Herbert was arrested with three others.

MAYOR GIDEON DENIES LIQUOR MADE HIM ILL

Springfield (Mo.) Executive, Testifying in Own Behalf, Says Cigars Caused Sickness.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 11.—Mayor Thomas H. Gideon today testified before the Federal Court jury hearing the Government's charges that the Mayor, Lee Witherspoon, former Deputy Sheriff, and two bootleggers conspired to violate the prohibition laws.

Testimony was completed this afternoon and the case went to the jury tonight.

The Mayor specifically denied the accusations he had accepted money and liquor from leaders in the liquor traffic. He also told how he had been elected to the City Council in 1909, serving three terms of two years each, had then been elected Probate Judge of the county for two terms and in 1928 elected Mayor of Springfield.

Regarding a trip to Jefferson City by motor car made with his Chief of Police, G. C. Pike, now in Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Farris Nahon, a merchant, and Mose Keaton, a political appointee, the Mayor declared that Nahon had passed a box of cigars and they made him ill. Keaton, testifying for the Government, had said whisky was taken along on the trip, that all drank heavily and that in Jefferson City the Mayor became ill from its effects in a hotel dining room.

On cross-examination, W. L. Vandeventer, United States Attorney, sought to show that men convicted of law violations had been appointed by Gideon to the Police Department. The Mayor denied having known at the time that these men, some of whom he later dismissed, had criminal records.

SEA-DRIVEN POWER PLANT INVENTOR COMING TO U. S.

No Definite Plan for Cuban Station; Construction Would Take Two Years.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Oct. 11.—Construction of Prof. Georges Claude's thermodynamic power plant on the south coast of Cuba to supply the island with industrial power obtained from the sea would require at least two years, Andre Claude, son of the famous French scientist, said today.

The statement, with the comment that the plant might not be built in Cuba, came in answer to press reports that Prof. Claude probably would have a plant operating at Santiago de Cuba by Feb. 1.

"My father does not yet know if he will use Santiago as the site for his plant, nor is he even positive that he will build one in Cuba," Andre Claude said. "If he does, the planning and construction of the special machinery would require at least two years, perhaps three."

The Associated Press learned that the professor plans to go to the United States Oct. 31. It is thought he will visit Washington and New York.

AUNT OF PRESIDENT DIES

Mrs. Anne Heald, 88, Succumbs After Long Illness.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Oct. 11. — Mrs. Anne Heald, 88 years old, maternal aunt of President Hoover, died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. G. Rench, in East Palo Alto. She had been ill several months.

Mrs. Heald had resided in Palo Alto more than 30 years, coming here from Santa Cruz after the death of her husband, Hiel Heald, farmer and lumber dealer. She was born in Toronto, Ont., but spent the greater part of her life in the United States. Mrs. Heald lived in West Branch, Ia., at the time of President Hoover's birth in that small settlement.

BURGLARS GET $400 FROM SAFE

Rob Seventh Floor Offices of Chamber of Commerce.

Burglars broke into a safe in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce, seventh floor, 511 Locust street, Friday night, and stole about $400, including $250 in receipts from the sale of National Dairy Show tickets. It is not known how the robbers got into the offices.

Several weeks ago desks and papers in the offices were disturbed by intruders on two successive nights, but nothing of value was taken.

POSTPONEMENT OF FISHING BOATS' RACE DUE TO WIND

Schooners Unable to Make Prescribed Speed After Passing Halfway Mark.

By the Associated Press.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 11.—The second race in the international series for the fishing schooner championship of the North Atlantic between the Gertrude L. Thebaud of this port and the Canadian defender Bluenose, was postponed shortly after the schooners passed the halfway mark this afternoon because of lack of wind.

The decision to abandon the contest because of the apparent inability of the schooners to finish inside the fixed limit of six hours was made when the wind fell to a velocity of five miles or less.

Thebaud had led from the beginning and at times stretched a distance of more than four minutes between itself and the big Lunenburger. Bluenose caused some surprise when, on the second six-mile leg, it cut two minutes from the Thebaud's lead, but after the 12-mile mark the Gloucesterman drew steadily away again.

National Tea Company

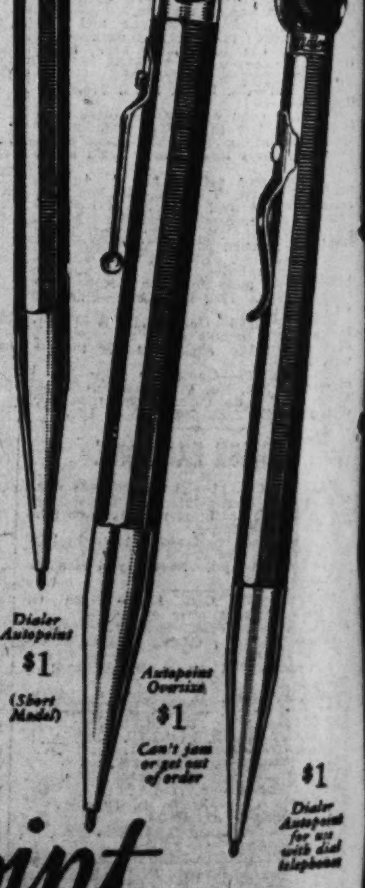
Buy your Pencil the way Big Business does

THOUSANDS upon thousands of Autopoint Pencils are purchased by business firms to be used as "remembrance" advertising. Autopoint is used in this way more than any other pencil!

Autopoint makes friends because it is the best balanced, the lightest, the most attractive pencil made. Its mechanism is the simplest. It has but one moving part—hence nothing to get out of order.

Autopoint barrels are of Bakelite. This handsome, onyx-like material is light in weight, but strong. Drop an Autopoint—it won't break.

Examine Autopoint at your stationer's. He has a wide range of styles and models in color combinations to suit your fancy. Prices from 50c to $4. If you have any trouble finding Autopoints, write us.



Dialer Autopoint $1 (Short Model)
Autopoint Oversize $1 Can't jam or get out of order
$1 Dialer Autopoint for use with dial telephones

IN MEMORIAM

CARTER—In memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Carter, passed away Oct. 13, 1929.

Sadly missed by her children.
ROSE, BESSIE, FRANCIS, GERTIE AND CELIA. (c)

COLLINS—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Collins, passed away Oct. 12, 1928.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear mother,
It is sweet to breathe thy name,
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
ALEXANDER COLLINS AND FAMILY.

EBELER—In loving memory of Charles J. Ebeler, who passed away Oct. 12, 1929.

Asleep in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair;
Sometime, some day when our task is done,
With joy we shall meet you there.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, SON, FATHER, BROTHERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

FLACHS—In memory of my darling husband Albert A. Flachs, who departed this life Oct. 8, 1929.

Sadly missed by WIFE. (c)

FUHRMANN—In loving remembrance of Emil Fuhrmann, who died suddenly Oct. 9, 1929.

One year ago he passed away;
We grieved when he departed.
Time was too short to say farewell,
To those he knew and loved so well.
We miss his coming footsteps,
We miss him everywhere.
Home is not what it used to be,
Since Emil is not there.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN, SISTERS, RELATIVES AND FRIENDS—

GILMORE—Mrs. Lena C. Gilmore:

One year has passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
DAUGHTERS AND SONS.

GORGENS—In loving memory of my dear aunt, Christian Gorgens, who departed this life Oct. 14, 1929:

Though suffering, she breathed not a murmur,
For the Comforter stood by her side,
And whispered: "Fear not, I am with thee:
With Me shalt thou ever abide."
On the river a pale boatman hastened,
She heard the soft dip of his oar;
Then from earth and sorrow he bore her
Across to that beautiful shore.
Sadly missed by her niece,
MRS. MINNIE KUECHENMEISTER.

HANKINS, LAURA—In memory:

One year has passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away.
God took her, it was His will.
But in or hearts she liveth still.
MR. AND MRS. NIEDENHOFEN and Family.

HAYNES—In memory of our dear husban and father, Benjiman Haynes, who dieu Oct. 14, 1929:

Gone is the face I loved so dear,
Silent is the voice I loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember, him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND LOVED ONES. (c)

HESS—In loving remembrance of my wife, Catherine Hess, who departed this life Oct. 12, 1927.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just in memory sad and true;
Just a love and sweet devotion
Of one who thinks of you.
Sadly missed by husband,
ARTHUR HESS, 3632 Phillips. (c)

HOLSTE—In memory of our dear son and brother, Edwin Holste, who passed away Oct. 13, 1918:

We think of you in silence,
No eye may see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER AND BROTHER-IN-LAW. (c)

HUNNIUS—In memory of Clara Hunnius (nee Weaver), who departed this life three years ago.

The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But love for you who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, MOTHER AND SISTERS.

MERKEL—In memory of La Verne Merkel who died Oct. 12, 1920:

Dearest darling you took the lead,
And shown us the way.
We will meet you up in heaven
With the will of God some day.
Sadly missed by
MR. AND MRS. A. MERKEL AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

NEAL—Odis Lee Neal, departed this life the fourteenth day of October, 1 year ago:

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER AND GRANDPARENTS, MRS. O. A. NEAL.

NICHOLSON—In loving memory of our dear son, Michael Nicholson, who departed this life suddenly Oct. 12, 1929:

We cannot, Lord, by purpose see,
But all is well that's done by Thee.
Sadly missed by
HIS PARENTS, SISTER AND BROTHER.

REINERT, MARGARET—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Margaret Reinert, who died Oct. 10, 1929:

What grief we have felt since your departure;
Yet how sweetly your memory lives on.
We loved you in life so dearly.
PAUL F. REINERT,
MRS. FRANK WESTERMAN.

RISLEY—In loving memory of our dearly beloved daughter and wife, Frances Risley, who departed this life Oct. 10, 1929:

No one knows how much we miss you;
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you;
Life will never be the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Frances,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by your MOTHER AND HUSBAND. (c)

SCHLOEMER—In loving memory of our dearly beloved son, brother and nephew, Harry B. Schloemer, who departed this life Sept. 29, 1925.

Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered;
Sweet, happy memories cling 'round your name;
True hearts that loved you with deepest affection,
Always will love you in death just the same.
So sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND AUNT, AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

SCHMITT—In memory of Joseph J. Schmitt, our dear brother, father and husband, who passed away Oct. 9, 1930:

Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In the midst of our joy we are blue.
With a smile on our face we have heartaches
Thinking of you.
Sadly missed by
BROTHER AND SISTER.

SEITH—In loving memory of my dear son, Private John H. Seith, who gave his life for his country Oct. 13, 1918.

Sadly missed by lonely mother,
LENA STRATHMANN. (c)

SPOHRER—In loving memory of our beloved son, Russell, who departed this life three years ago, Oct. 15:

Nothing but memories as we journey on,
Longing for a smile from our loved one gone.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, DAD and All Who Loved Him

WEITKAMP—In loving memory of our dear brother, Louis Henry Weitkamp, who departed this life suddenly Oct. 12, 1929.

Sadly missed by his SISTERS. (c)

WOTLI—In loving memory of our father, Louis T. Wotli, who departed this life Oct. 12, 1929:

Oh, what would we give to clasp his hand,
His dear, kind face to see;
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
That meant so much to us.
We often sit and think of him,
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Sadly missed by his CHILDREN.

MISS INGALLS AND BOY FLYER LAND AT ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.

Youth, 16, Slightly Ahead of St. Louisan in Elapsed Time in West-East Flight.

By the Associated Press.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 11.—Fighting snow, rain and fog, which caused suspension of traffic on transcontinental air lines to the West, Robert Buck and Laura Ingalls, flyers seeking cross-country records, halted here this afternoon in their race across the United States. Both will remain overnight.

Miss Ingalls has seven hours 11 minutes' flying time since she hopped off from Glendale, Cal., yesterday at 6:13 a. m., she reported. Buck's compilation shows he is 39 minutes ahead of his competitor, with elapsed time totaling six hours 34 minutes.

Miss Ingalls, 25 years old, of St. Louis, holds the world's record for executing 714 consecutive barrel rolls. Earlier in the week she established an east-west transcontinental flight record for women of 30 hours and 27 minutes elapsed time. She is seeking to better this time on an west-east flight.

Buck, 16-year-old aviator of Elizabeth, N. J., a few days ago broke the junior east-west record with a mark of 28 hours 33 minutes. He is attempting to better the junior west-east record.

Chancing to plan their return flights east at the same time, the youth and the woman said they were agreeable to a friendly race, and so far have been timing their take-offs a few minutes apart.

MAJ. FRANCO, SPANISH FLYER, HELD FOR PLOTTING REVOLT

Government Begins Roundup of Agitators; Police Raids Extend Throughout Country.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Oct. 11.—Menaced by the extremes of dictatorship or revolution, Spain today discovered that the Berenguer Government had begun to make good its warning of last Thursday that it no longer would tolerate political or labor movements having the avowed object of bringing about revolution.

A systematic roundup of agitators, both political and laborite, was begun, one of its most prominent victims being Maj. Ramon Franco, hero of Spain's air forces for his trans-Atlantic flight to South America in 1926. Franco was lodged in the military prison. Official circles said the aviator, who recently joined the Republicans, had been charged with attempting to organize a subversive movement.

Gen. Mola, Director of Public Safety, stated that in his opinion the movement was unimportant, but that in order to prevent possible disturbances several arrests had been made among the most dangerous of the agitators.

The police raids today were extended throughout the country. They were specially thorough in Barcelona, Spain's great industrial center, which is a hotbed of social unrest and the center of the Catalonian separatist movement.

Prosecutor Seeks to Connect Bertini's Disbursement With Receipts for Equal Amount.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Examination of the bank accounts of General Sessions Judge Amedeo A. Bertini has disclosed disbursements of $30,000 which Special Prosecutor Todd and his assistants are trying to connect with receipts for equal amount found in the bank records of a Tammany district leader, it was learned today.

The new clews were developed, it is understood, when the Attorney-General's investigators took up the trail of the $100,000 in bonds Bertini withdrew from his brokerage accounts in the period covering his appointment to succeed Francis X. Mancuso and his subsequent election to a full 14-year term.

HOW THE LA FOLLETTE FAMILY HAS EDUCATED THE VOTERS OF WISCONSIN

Phil La Follette's Nomination to the Governor's Chair — With the Virtual Certainty of Being Elected—the Latest Effect of a Campaign That Started Forty Years Ago.

By M. W. CHILDS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

MADISON, Wisconsin.

A LA FOLLETTE has occupied one of the major political offices of this State, either the Governorship or the United States Senatorship, without a single interruption, since 1900. The voters decided the other day that there should be La Follettes in both these offices.

When Philip Fox La Follette won the Republican nomination for the governorship by an overwhelming majority —virtually equivalent to election in Wisconsin, where the division is not between Republican and Democrat but between Progressive and Conservative—reactionary papers, wincing under defeat, spoke with faint disparagement of the power of "the La Follette dynasty," "the hypnotic name of La Follette." They referred to the widow of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette Sr., as "the Queen Regent," who had again dictated the political fortunes of the State through her youngest son, encompassing the defeat of the present Conservative Governor, Walter J. Kohler.

During the campaign, too, there were disparaging references to the "La Follette dynasty," to the fact that Young Bob had stepped into his father's shoes in the Senate and that now Philip, a young "upstart," proposed to rule the State as the elder La Follette had done for so many years. The Conservatives referred to the widow, Mrs. Belle Case La Follette, as the "counselor." They pictured her as weaving the devious threads of a political plot that would entrench the family in power. In a campaign that was unsparing of personalities, even the names of Fola La Follette, formerly an actress, now wife of George Middleton, the playwright, and Mary, wife of Ralph Sucher, a Washington attorney, were brought in.

All this, say the Progressive leaders, is merely bunk. Phil La Follette, they explain, carried the issues of the election to the voters in an old-time campaign that would have gladdened the heart of his father. He traveled thousands of miles, driving his own Ford; he made hundreds of speeches. He spoke in villages that hadn't heard a political speech in 20 years, not since the stirring days when the elder La Follette was fighting for the reform measures that are now part of Wisconsin's statutes. It was an old-fashioned campaign in more ways than one in this era of primaries costing hundreds of thousands. It cost only $3660.

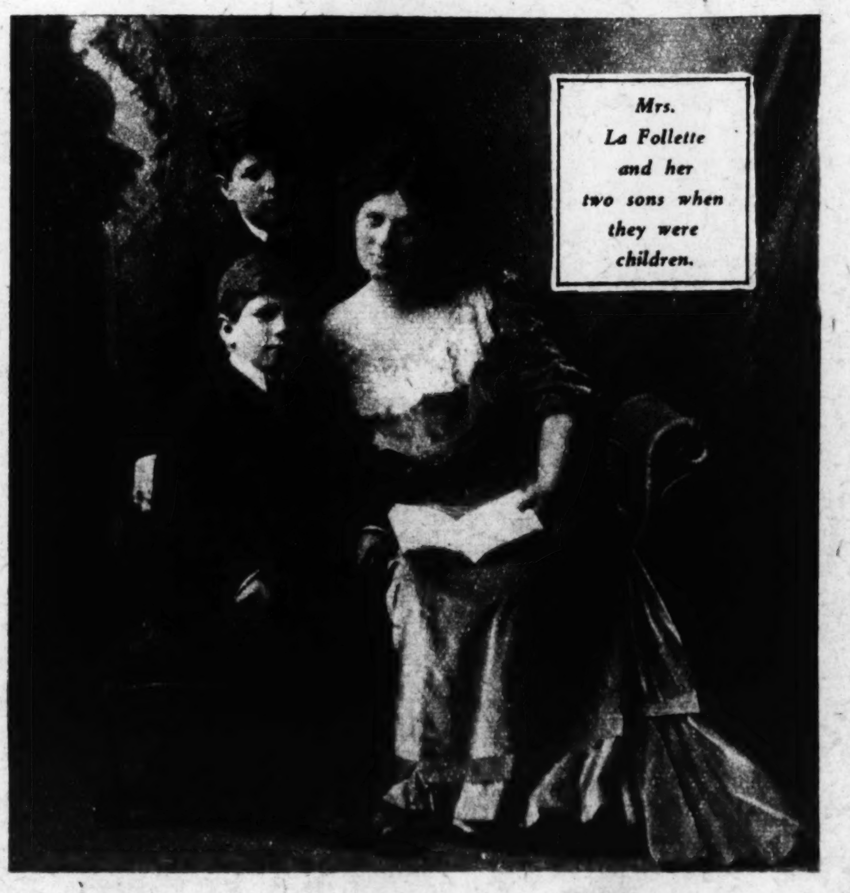
The late Senator La Follette, founder of the "La Follette dynasty."

And what if the La Follette boys, Young Bob, who is now United States Senator, and Phil, who is destined to be Governor, did inherit their father's name, his political sense, his integrity and courage? the Progressives ask. Is that any crime? They quote the telegram that Clarence Darrow sent to La Follette headquarters in the heat of the recent campaign: "More power to the La Follette dynasty. If only Senator La Follette had had more such sons."

I asked Fred L. Holmes, a leading Progressive and actively associated with the movement for many years, for a practical explanation of the La Follette success. He gave it in two words: organization and education. And by way of proof of the importance of organization as a factor he showed me what have come to be known about La Follette headquarters as "the black books."

The name is misleading. They should be called the gold-star books. Fat, loose-leaf notebooks, with leather covers, they contain the names of loyal Progressives, catalogued alphabetically, throughout the entire State, down to the most sparsely populated townships lost in the hinterlands of the cut-over country to the north. These books have been in existence in one form or another for more than 30 years, ever since the first La Follette made his first campaign. They are black books, indeed, to those on the other side. Many of the names in these books are marked by stars. These are the men, Holmes explains, who are A-1. They can be relied upon in any emergency, they will go to any extreme for the cause. Others are designated by red check marks and blue check marks, all part of a simple code that records the degrees of loyalty and zeal of an army of workers. From day to day in the thick of a campaign these books are kept up to date. Occasionally a name is stricken off, or another follower is added. In many instances the names of sons appear whose fathers were in their turn written down in the La Follette books as men of parts.

Throughout the campaign just over, this organization functioned as it has in the past. Say that Phil was to speak in a little community up in Door County, jutting out in Lake Michigan. Letters would go out from La Follette headquarters to a half-dozen leaders in that community, informing them of the meeting, asking them to make all plans, advising that they remain after the meeting for an organization conference. They never failed. I saw a number of these men at La Follette headquarters in the week that followed the campaign. They were bringing their sons and their daughters down to the State university to school, or they were on a little pleasure trip to the capital, farmers with tanned faces and sun-bleached hair, in square-cut clothes, and younger, smartly dressed men from the cities. It was with a note of pride that they spoke of the election. "Well, we did it," they said, drifting in, a little shyly, to congratulate Phil.



Mrs. La Follette and her two sons when they were children.

"You must remember," says Phil, discussing various phases of the victory, 'that these are not paid workers. We have never had a paid political worker. It is in no sense a machine. They are not officeholders. There are no spoils. Their only reward is a sense that they have had a share in the victory of a cause in which, for the most part, they have long been passionately and deeply interested. In the last election there were from 4000 to 10,000—possibly that isn't enough, possibly I should say 20,000—who gave anywhere from three days to six weeks of their time to the Progressive movement."

The La Follettes have always been strong on the education of the electorate. The elder La Follette from the very outset of his political career, took the most complex issues directly to the people, dramatized them, vitalized them, showed how they applied to the various local communities. It was in this way that he waged war against the railroads, fighting the free pass evil, the practice of freight rebates to large shippers, urging that the carriers be made to bear a just share of taxation. Similarly, he fought for the nomination of candidates by the direct primary, as opposed to the caucus and convention system, the injustices of which he himself had had occasion to feel. He dramatized statistics. In his famous speech at Fern Dell, in Sauk County, in 1897, he presented an enormous mass of facts and figures for more than three hours to show the power of corporations over the lives and destinies of the people. But so vividly and pointedly was it done that a large audience listened without a sign of unrest for the entire time.

IN EACH campaign the Progressives dumped tons of literature into the mails. In one of the most hard-fought battles they prepared a political pamphlet, 144 pages in length, discussing the campaign issues, presenting facts and figures to the voters. They never hesitated to take an issue, however complicated, to the people.

Looking back over the long series of political struggles in which the members of his family have been involved, Phil finds the nearest parallel to the tenseness, excitement and widespread interest of the recent campaign in that which his father waged in 1904 for his third term as Governor. Because of hostile legislatures, the elder La Follette had failed to pass any of the reform legislation which he had advocated. Too, there was strong opposition because of the precedent against a third term. La Follette traveled more than 6000 miles, using an automobile to campaign for the first time. It was called the "Red Devil." In each community in which he spoke he showed exactly how the vital issues at stake would effect that particular community. He grew weary as, day after day, the campaigning continued. His voice became hoarse. For days, weeks, his family never saw him. He slept on improvised beds, ate hastily prepared meals, rode all night over dust-choked roads to little hustings where the voters were gathered to hear him. But never once did he slacken or spare himself. For he knew it was a knock-down, drag-out battle, with the fate of the Progressive cause hanging on his personal destiny.

Dr. Philip Fox, for whom Phil La Follette was named, with the two La Follette boys.

It was in the same spirit that Phil La Follette waged the recent campaign. He is 33 years old; he looks even younger than that. With a wife and two children dependent upon his efforts, he had just begun to build up a law practice and was, besides, a lecturer on law in the University of Wisconsin. His father's estate had consisted of the old family farm across Lake Mendota from the city of Madison. Nothing else.

If Phil had been governed by his own wishes, he would not have run for public office at this time. He would have waited three or four years, until he had somewhat established himself in his profession. But it was not a question of what he wanted to do. The Progressives believed, and he came to believe, that only the strongest possible campaign and the strongest possible candidate would defeat Governor Kohler.

Kohler got into office two years ago by beating a Progressive candidate, Joseph D. Beck. He is a manufacturer of bath appliances, one of the largest manufacturers in the Bleak St. Kilda Deserted at Last by All Its Inhabitants

Lonely Island in the Outer Hebrides Has Been Populated Since the Days of the Vikings.

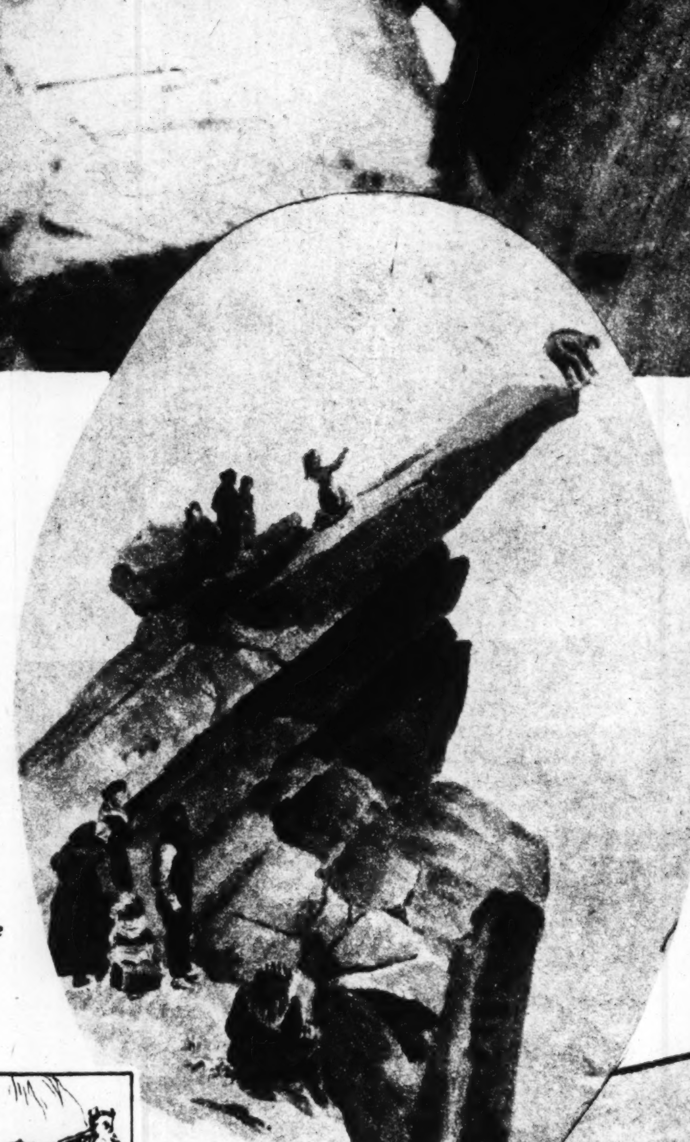
By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

GLASGOW, Scotland.

FOR the first time in a thousand years, the lonely island of St. Kilda, in the Outer Hebrides, is without a single human inhabitant. The only sound to be heard along its bleak shores is the pounding of the surf on the rocks and the cries of myriad sea birds. A few sheep and goats, left to become wild, roam at will over the island's interior. The squalid village on the south shore is now a ghost town. St. Kilda has been given over to the storms. Its human population—33 in all—gathered up their meager belongings a few weeks ago, swam their cattle to the two ships waiting offshore, and sailed away, never to return. They were taken to new homes provided for them by the British Government on the mainland of Scotland. St. Kilda will be but a memory and an occasional hunting ground. The Earl of Cassillis, who owns it, says he will never permit another settlement there.

It was by Government order that St. Kilda was evacuated. Its rigors were too great for human-kind to endure. From the very beginning of habitation, at a date now lost in antiquity, life has been a struggle for the island dwellers. Isolated by stormy seas and entirely cut off from civilization for eight months out of every year, they have had to fight their fights alone and wrestle every winter with severe cold, disease and food shortages. More than a few times they have been near starvation. The rocky soil would not produce a living. So last winter the Government decided that to purge the island of disease and fit it to sustain human life was a hopeless task. The evacuation was ordered for this summer, and late in August it was carried out.

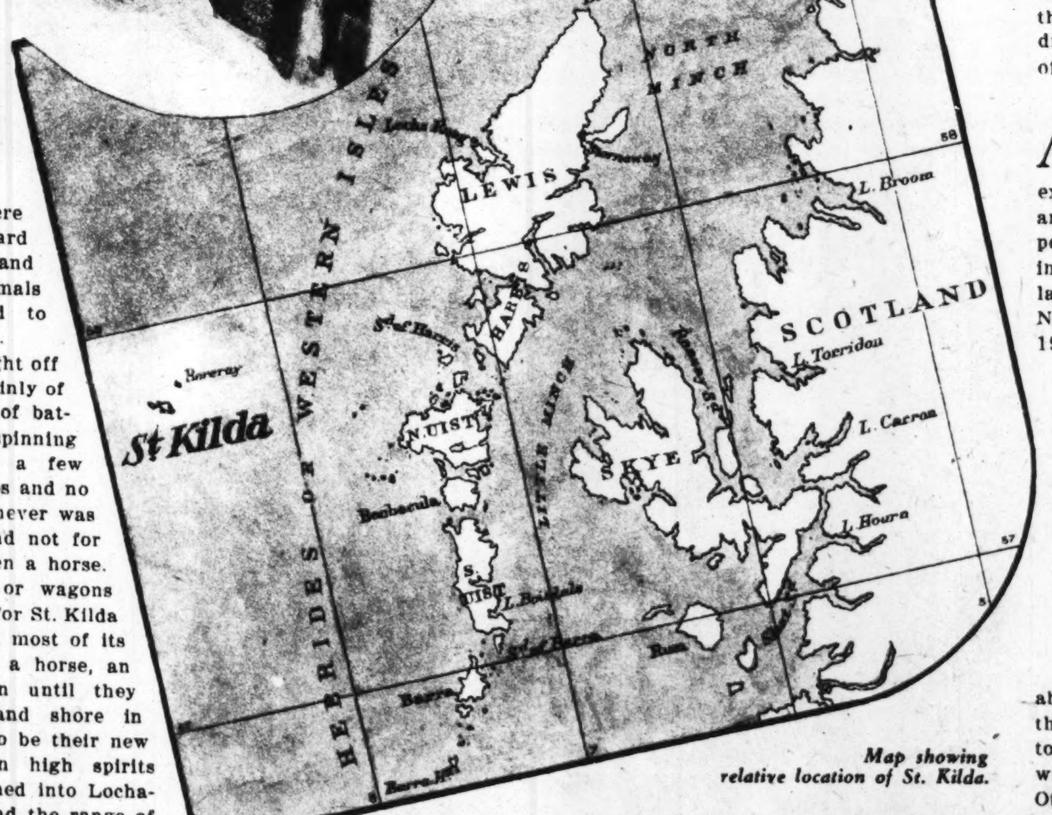
Two ships, the Admiralty sloop, Harebell, and the steamer, Dunara Castle, served as moving vans. They were unable to approach closer than half a mile from shore and anchored in Village Bay while the islanders and their belongings were brought off shore in small boats. The process of loading presented an engaging spectacle, for among the belongings brought aboard were some 500 head of sheep and goats and 10 cows. The sheep and goats were carried out to the ships in row boats, but there was no such service for the cattle. Tied behind the boats with halters, they were led into the water and forced to swim out to sea, where they were hauled aboard with much bellowing and struggling. Only animals which were too wild to catch were left behind.



The Lover's Stone on St. Kilda—a spot to which a picturesque legend is attached.

Other property brought off the island consisted mainly of wooden chests, pieces of battered furniture and spinning wheels. There were a few dogs, too, but no horses and no cats. They say there never was a cat on the island and not for 50 years has there been a horse. There were no carts or wagons or automobiles either, for St. Kilda has no roads. Indeed, most of its inhabitants never saw a horse, an automobile or a train until they landed on the Scotland shore in Argyllshire, which is to be their new home. They were in high spirits when their ships steamed into Lochaline Bay, pleased beyond the range of their vocabularies at the sight of trees and fields of grain, for trees and fields of grain are two more items in the long list of things which St. Kilda hasn't got. It has never had a tree or even a shrub.

The newcomers received a rousing welcome from their future neighbors of Argyllshire and were quickly hauled around and shown all the amazing sights, including cats and horses. They think they are going to like it on the mainland. They expect to get a little more bread to eat and less fish. Also more hens' eggs and fewer of those fish-flavored eggs of sea birds. But there will be other readjustments to make, too. St. Kildans will be expected to wear shoes in summer as well as in winter, to speak English instead of Gaelic and learn something about the value of time and money. Out there on St. Kilda, where they bartered for their supplies and never did anything in one day that could be stretched over two or three, they learned very little about such values.



Map showing relative location of St. Kilda.

Travelers have been visiting St. Kilda for more than 200 years and bringing back interesting accounts of the picturesque land and its more picturesque people, but still St. Kilda is little known, and because of its remoteness is invested with its bit of romance. Two of its more notable visitors were James Boswell and Dr. Samuel Johnson, who stopped there in the autumn of 1773 while on a tour of the Hebrides. Both mentioned it frequently in their later writings. One of the earliest records of the island is that supplied by Dean Monro, who visited the place as High Dean of the Isles toward the end of the seventeenth century. Monro relates that the natives were "scarce learnit in aney religioun," and that a steward of the MacLeods came every year in midsummer to baptize any children who had not previously been baptized. On one occasion the steward brought with him such utensils as would enable him to prepare "ane maske of malt," but, Monro relates, the inhabitants, men, women and children, stayed by the brew until not one of them could stand on his feet.

A MISSIONARY named Martin also visited St. Kilda in the early seventeen hundreds and wrote extensively about the island, its people and its legends, but nobody, it appears, has done much toward recording the island history. Irked by the lack of published information about it, Norman Heathcote journeyed there in 1900 and later published a volume in which he retold some of the old legends and made many observations as to the character of the inhabitants and bird life of the islands, but his work, too, is far from satisfactory, consisting in the main only of fragments. Apparently, nobody knows when St. Kilda was first inhabited. Its history is almost as vague and as shrouded with legend as is that of ancient Troy.

Along its desolate shores is found abundant evidence that man has made the place his abode for centuries. As to why he did so or should have wished to do so, there is no saying. Of all the world's dismal spots, none probably is less inviting as a place of residence than any one of the group of rocky prominences which rise out of the sea some 50 miles west of the main chain of the Hebrides. St. Kilda is the name applied to the group and generally to the largest island. Anciently, the group was called Hirta, and some geographers still call the largest island Hirta, which means Death or Gloom. The other islands, none of which has been inhabited for any length of time, are Soay (Sheep Island), Boreray and Dun (Fort). St. Kilda, or Hirta, is roughly three miles long and two miles wide and comprises 1575 acres. Boreray has 244 acres, Soay 190 and Dun 80. Very little of this land is fit for cultivation for the islands are of volcanic origin and are rugged and barren to a formidable degree. Huge black cliffs tower precipitously from the water's edge all the way around the shore lines except for a few inlets. The Bay of Hirta, usually called Village Bay, on the southeastern side of St. Kilda, is the only reasonable landing place.

IT IS CHIEFLY around this bay that the island dwellers have made their homes since the earliest times. Circles of stone are to be found, indicating that the Druids once inhabited the place, and there are altars and relics of later Pagan peoples. Several underground houses may still be seen. One of these, near the village, has been excavated and found to contain earthenware vessels and spearheads identified as belonging to the Viking Age. This is taken to indicate the island was inhabited at least a thousand years ago. On Dun, which is a separate island only when the tide is in, there are the remains of a prehistoric stone fort.

One of the legends told by Martin is that the St. Kilda islands were not always separate islands, but were connected with the larger islands of the Hebrides, and a woman known as the "Warrior Queen" held dominion over all the region, using the more remote part of her domain as a deer hunting ground. The St. Kildans of Martin's time tried to prove this by pointing out a pair of deer antlers found buried on the hill back of the village and by showing him the Queen's "house", situated near the "Well of Virtues" at the bottom of the "Female Warrior's Glen." The story is that once while the Queen and a party of men and women attendants were on a deer hunting expedition the sea rushed in and marooned them on an island, where they were forced to spend the rest of their days, as there was no wood on the island with which to build boats. According to this legend the Warrior Queen, whoever she was, and her attendants comprised St. Kilda's first population.

Another legend told by Martin relates that when St. Kilda was still uninhabited, there was a boat race between the inhabitants of Uist and Harris (two of the main islands of the Hebrides) for possession of it. The race was a desperate one, it seems, and the rival parties, rowing frantically, kept abreast for most of the distance. Then, just before they reached the shore, the Uist boatmen pulled ahead and it became apparent they would land first. Whereupon the leader of the Harris faction chopped

Mrs. Van Clief, as she appea with her son.

WHAT has been called an act of grim but poetic justice was done to Mrs. Frances Kirkwood Van Clief, who, two years after she was acquitted of the charge of killing her second husband, was herself killed by her third husband, Eugene Van Clief. Here is a strange story, that of a woman who for 10 years was a model wife and mother, until she reached her thirties, when suddenly the restraints of respectable domesticity disappeared and she became a creature of wild passions and jealous insane furies.

She divorced her first husband for the expressed purpose of marrying her second, a young veterinarian several years her junior. Two years later, after a heated quarrel, in which she accused him of infidelity, Dr. Glenn Kirkwood was found stabbed to death. Mrs. Kirkwood contended that she had picked up the knife with the intention of killing herself. Kirkwood, she said, tried to take the knife away from her and in the struggle fell and wounded himself fatally.

Mrs. Kirkwood, at the time of the trial, was 32 years old, had blue eyes, red hair, a pretty face and an attractive figure. The jury wept with her as she tearfully gave her testimony, and brought in a verdict of acquittal.

Then she married her third husband, Eugene Van Clief. Soon they began to quarrel. They became mutually suspicious of each other. Possibly she had come to doubt the fidelity of men in general, and she began to accuse him of affairs with other women. On the other hand, Van Clief, only too familiar with her past, had a genuine fear of what she might do to him in the course of her jealous rage. Whenever their quarrels threatened to become violent, he would pick up and leave home for several days at a time. To his wife this was sure evidence of affairs with other women. So matters steadily progressed from bad to worse, until Van Clief, infatuated with his wife's beauty but mortally afraid of her jealous passions, concluded that life was unendurable with her or without her. On the night of August 28 they were found dead in the bedroom of their home. Van Clief had shot her and killed himself.

Frances Nottage (Mrs. Van Clief's maiden name) was not quite 20 when she married her first husband 15 years ago. He was John McAvoy, a textile designer, now in Manhattan. They had one son, Lee, now in his teens. For years Mrs. McAvoy seemed all that a

So matters steadily progressed from bad to worse, until Van Clief, infatuated with his wife's beauty but mortally afraid of her jealous passions, concluded that life was unendurable with her or without her. On the night of August 28 they were found dead in the bedroom of their home. Van Clief had shot her and killed himself.

Frances Nottage (Mrs. Van Clief's maiden name) was not quite 20 when she married her first husband 15 years ago. He was John McAvoy, a textile designer, now in Manhattan. They had one son, Lee, now in his teens. For years Mrs. McAvoy seemed all that a married woman should be, a faithful wife and a devoted mother.

In time they acquired a home in Sunnyside Gardens, in Queens, Long Island. Indeed, at the time, not far from where the McAvoys were living, was the home of another suburban family, the domestic tranquillity of which was so soon to explode into the now famous Snyder - Gray case.

The Sunnyside Gardens home of the McAvoys was large and comfortable. It had a spare bedroom. Although the McAvoys were not in need, they decided in 1926 that it would be a prudent thing to add to their budget by renting that room. The man to whom they rented the spare room was Dr. Glenn Kirkwood, an attractive, 28-year-old veterinarian, half-owner of a dog and cat hospital nearby.

Some months later a particularly spicy variety of neighborhood gossip began to flourish in Sunnyside. It linked the names of Mrs. McAvoy and the handsome young doctor who was living at her house. There was, to be sure, nothing definite in the gossip, just whispered comments and exchanges of opinion among the respectable housewives of the neighborhood, usually accompanied by knowing winks, to the effect that the young veterinarian somehow managed to find plenty of time to spend at home when McAvoy wasn't there. This gossip was soon nourished by more tangible events, for Mrs. McAvoy was arrested one afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct. She had, according to the records of the Flatbush Magistrate's court, unexpectedly visited Dr. Kirkwood's dog and cat hospital and assaulted one Dorothy Vickers of Elmhurst, a girl 10 years her junior, whom she had found there. By this time neighborhood gossip no longer had to confine itself to innuendoes and guesses, and the housewives had it that the pretty, red-haired Mrs. McAvoy had become violently jealous because of what she regarded as the veterinarian's attention to the girl. Mrs. McAvoy was fined $25 on the disorderly conduct charge and severely lectured by the Judge for allowing her temper to get the better of her.

Eugene Van Clief, who killed his wife and himself.

The domestic affairs of the McAvoys were now in the open and matters proceeded at a faster pace. Mrs. McAvoy went into Supreme Court, Brooklyn, and sued her husband for a divorce. He obligingly stood aside and did not contest it. In fact, he seemed heartily in favor of the proceedings. And then, in June, 1927, she and Dr. Kirkwood were married. Theirs was far from a serene and uneventful married life, it was later rerevealed. But there were no audible explosions and the police didn't have to come in, at least not for a year.

But one week-end early in August, 1928, the veterinarian and his wife went on a camping trip to Lake Ronkonkoma, Long Island. It was a strange week-end. With them was McAvoy, the ex-husband, and a lady to whom he was then attentive, an unusual quartet. One morning while at the camp Mrs. Kirkwood received a mysterious letter. From whom the letter came was never made clear, but its contents nevertheless served to throw Mrs. Kirkwood into an instant flareup of wild, jealous rage.

She seized her husband by the collar, so it was later testified in court, and, half-dragging and half-pushing, forced him into the woods nearby, shrieking abuse and epithets and accusing him of infidelity. The doctor stood by and took it helplessly, venturing no more than an occasional feeble protest to stay her anger. Still burning with fury, Mrs. Kirkwood broke up the party, insisting that her husband return home with her immediately. The camping trip came to an end, and the Kirkwoods went back to the house in Sunnyside, from which the first husband, McAvoy, had moved.

The quarrel continued and reached its climax on the morning of August 7.

"I knew Glenn was lying about other women," Mrs. Kirkwood later declared. "At last I wrung admissions from him that he had been having affairs with other women. I got the carving knife, intending to kill myself right in front of him. I stood before him with the knife. He tried to wrest it from me, and in the struggle he fell and cut himself."

THE police, obtuse, refused to believe that the doctor's death was quite as accidental as pictured by Mrs. Kirkwood. Accordingly, she was put on trial, on an indictment only for first-degree manslaughter, because the prosecutor felt that in the absence of witnesses a first-degree murder charge would be difficult to prove. As it turned out, even the manslaughter charge seemed groundless to the chivalrous gentlemen who sat on the jury. They accepted her version of the killing as an accident, and she was promptly set free.

In the meantime Mrs. Kirkwood had met Eugene Van Clief. They first met while she was out on bail, before her trial for manslaughter, after Kirkwood was killed. Van Clief was running a roadhouse then in Valley Stream, Long Island, and she used to go there often with her attorney, who was an acquaintance of Van Clief's. As Van Clief later declared, he used to sit with them at their table while they had drinks and would discuss the forthcoming trial. She and her attorney would rehearse the evidence as they discussed the details of the defense that was later to convince a jury that Kirkwood's death had been an accident.

After her acquittal she continued to visit the roadhouse, and by that time Van Clief was infatuated with her. When the pretty Mrs. Kirkwood gave evidence of more than ordinary interest in him, Van Clief eagerly responded. Soon she began staying at the roadhouse several days at a time, and eventually she remained.

MRS. KIRKWOOD'S marriage to Van Clief was announced by her parents last October, but there is some doubt still as to the actual facts in the case. Van Clief's parents disapproved of her, and he told them that he hadn't married her. However that may be, they lived together as man and wife—Mr. and Mrs. Van Clief—and when the roadhouse closed for lack of business they opened a curio shop in Jamaica, Long Island. It turned out that the greatest curiosity the shop had to offer, at least in the eyes of the public, was Mrs. Van Clief. People would pass by the shop, peer through the window in an effort to catch a glimpse of her, and continue on their way. The business was a failure.

Then Mrs. Van Clief's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nottage, who had stood faithfully by her during all her trouble, again attempted to come to the rescue by turning over to their daughter a furnished house they owned in Brooklyn which she and Van Clief might use as a rooming house.

By this time Van Clief and his wife were beginning to have frequent quarrels. On three occasions this past summer he left the house in anger after violent quarrels, in which she accused him of being interested in other women. They had one such quarrel less than a week before the curtain was drawn on their affairs.

It seems on that occasion his wife had threatened his life, for Van Clief went to Magistrate Sabatino, at one of the Brooklyn courts, and asked for a summons for her. He didn't want her sent to jail, he declared at the time, but he wanted her put under some sort of bond to restrain her from harming him. He admitted that he was afraid of her. The Judge informed Van Clief that a summons was inappropriate to the occasion, and that there were other legal means by which the situation should be handled.

Van Clief stayed away from home several days. He spent his time at a boarding house, apparently trying to come to some decision about his tangled affairs. Then on the night of August 27, around midnight, he returned home. Immediately they began to quarrel. They retired to their bedroom. Roomers in the house heard nothing more and assumed that the quarrel had been amicably settled. The next day, when knocks at their door failed to elicit any response, the door was broken down. And they were found dead together on the bed. Van Clief had shot her and killed himself.

HELEN KANE —Boop-Poop-a-Doop— in "Bankrupt Love"

Why the Receivers for Her Admirer's Bankrupt Dress Company Are Trying to Collect $50,000 From the Lisping Comedienne..

Helen Kane, as she appears in various guises.

NEW YORK.

HELEN KANE, the boop-poop-a-doop artist, who baby-talked her way into fame and fortune, is giving a number of public recitals these days which are not included in her movie and vaudeville contracts and to which the public is being admitted without any charge whatsoever. Making a number of appearances by special request, Helen is playing the principal feminine role in a little legal skit, called "Bankrupt Love," and though moving picture and vaudeville companies pay her as much as $5500 a week for her lisping accents, these free public appearances are bringing her not only no remuneration, but may actually cost her something to the tune of $50,000, not to mention some $20,000 worth of jewelry.

The explanation lies in the simple fact that the special request for her appearance has emanated from a group of hard-boiled business men, receivers in bankruptcy, who want Helen to explain certain intricate financial dealings she had with her big cloak-and-suit boy-friend, Murray Posner, whose Bond Dress Company failed for several hundred thousand dollars. And the reason why these recitals are free to the public is because they are being managed by Referee in Bankruptcy Peter B. Olney.

It seems that Mr. Posner gave the plump little lisper several checks totaling $50,000, drawn from the Bond Dress Company's account. Following these payments the company closed its doors and announced to its creditors that there was only about $200,000 in the cash box with which to settle the $325,000 due them. Whereupon the receivers, with no sense of delicacy whatsoever, wanted to know what Helen did to earn that fifty grand, and wanted to know further why that sum shouldn't be taken from her to be added to the other assets.

It is to answer these questions that the famous boop-poop-a-dooper has been giving her recitals in Referee Olney's chambers. She says those checks represent the repayment of money which she loaned Posner personally. The receivers, always a sceptical lot, have their doubts and are now threatening to sue Miss Kane for the money plus the jewelry which they say was bought with the defunct dress company's funds. It is up to Helen now to convince them that they really aren't being boop-poop-a-duped out of the dough.

It seems that Helen Kane, plump and pretty, if you see the right photographs, who gives her age as 25, became friendly with Mr. Posner about two years ago. Mr. Posner, a gay soul and a big spender, was co-partner with another in a successful dress manufacturing business. Helen at that time was just beginning to capture the great heart of America with her baby accents and lisping, childish patter. She was, in fact, in the first stages of her meteoric rise to wealth and celebrity. As plain Helen Schroeder of the Bronx, she had, back in 1923, fallen in love with Joe Kane, $50-a-week clerk in a cloak-and-suit shop on Union Square. Kane was a year older than Helen. At that age it is a very easy matter to plan out a budget, so they got married. Helen was so happy that she began to sing and boop-poop-a-doop so much at home that friends began requesting her presence at parties and entertainments. Next she appeared in a radio broadcast, and first thing you know she was not only making $1200-a-week, but had also achieved a position where a husband was superfluous. Joe Kane wouldn't give her a divorce, but they separated and went their respective ways, Joe to rise in the world to his present position of buyer for the cloak-and-suit shop, and Helen to become originator and famous exponent of boop-poop-a-dooping.

Helen met the big cloak-and-suiter, Posner, and they became fast friends. Posner now declares that they were practically engaged and that it was understood between them that they were to be married when, and if, they could persuade the little cloak-and-suiter Joe Kane to give his famous spouse a divorce. That is Mr. Posner's version. On the other hand Helen now indignantly denies that there was ever any talk of marriage between them. And that is Miss Kane's version of it. The reader should not be surprised at such contradictions. For now that Murray Posner's dress business is bankrupt, it seems that his standing with Helen Kane is in a similar state, which is not to be wondered at, seeing how carelessly Mr. Posner mixed business with pleasure.

NOW one of the things that made Mr. Posner so attractive to Helen Kane was the fact, admitted by her on the stand, that he was a very liberal spender. Mr. Posner himself, with a slight suggestion of regret in his voice, admitted the same, estimating that his devotion to the lady cost him between $75,000 and $100,000 last year alone. They were together almost daily. They toured night clubs together. Posner said that he spent between $40 and $100 a night, making whoopee with the lisping lady at cabarets, restaurants and theaters. And when they hired an automobile, which was not infrequently, his day's expenses would jump another $40.

Miss Kane, photographed in court with her attorneys.

All this was fine in the early days of the romance, when it was his own money he was spending. But as time passed and the dress company's golden earnings grew slimmer and slimmer, Mr. Posner on numerous occasions found himself without ready funds. Helen, however, with her $5500-a-week movie and stage contracts had plenty of money, and so Posner would borrow from her.

It was a wonderful system for Helen. She loaned Posner the money that he promptly spent on entertaining her. And even if he would never pay her back, it would simply have meant that she was showing herself a good time, and so she just couldn't lose in the long run.

Last year when Helen was booping 'em cold on the Hollywood movie lots at five thousand a week, Posner went out to California to visit her. He brought with him a $6500 bracelet as a gift. Since he was to be a house guest for several months, Posner decided to share the household expenses. Helen rented the house and paid the servants, while he paid for food, telephone, day-by-day automobile hire and entertainment. Altogether Posner's share of the expenses came to $3200. But the proceeds from his business were a little uncertain at that time, so he had to borrow that money in varying sums from time to time from Miss Kane.

Then, apparently to simplify the bookkeeping, Posner decided that he ought to eliminate his indebtedness to her. She possessed $20,000 worth of jewelry he had given her. He asked her if he might not borrow this jewelry to pawn. Helen generously loaned him the jewelry which he pawned for $4500. Being a man of honor, Mr. Posner promptly took $3200 of that sum and immediately repaid Helen the $3200 he had previously borrowed. But January was approaching and Helen was very eager to wear that jewelry at a New Year's Eve party. Posner was equally eager to oblige her. So he promptly borrowed $4500 from her and took the jewelry out of hock and gave it back to Helen.

Then it was that Mr. Posner decided that Helen ought to invest her surplus earnings in some sound securities. Helen agreed, but insisted that she didn't know anything about investments. Posner suggested that she leave that part of it to him, whereupon Helen gave him $40,000. Just what he was to invest the money in seems somewhat hazy, although Helen insists that it was understood he was to buy liberty bonds for her and keep them in his safe deposit box. Posner's testimony, on the other hand, indicates that the money was loaned to him personally, with the understanding that it was to be invested in his dress company, which was beginning to show definite symptoms of financial undernourishment

In March, about the time she had to pay her income tax, Helen received

NEW YORK.

ALAIN GERBAULT, France's most versatile and daring adventurer, is about to embark on another ambitious undertaking, the creation of a paradise in the Pacific by developing a super-race of South Sea Islanders.

A yacht is now being constructed for him in France, and as soon as it is completed, the 36-year-old Frenchman plans to sail to the South Seas and acquire the island on which his Garden of Eden is to be cultivated.

"I will sail from Havre to Panama," Gerbault declared recently while on a visit to New York, "through the canal to the Pacific and then head for Samoa. What I want to find is an uninhabited island in the South Seas about a thousand miles east of Samoa. France has a protectorate over some of these islands and I would like to select one of those.

"Here I will settle down for the remainder of my days, bringing my own natives from other islands. I will select the youngest, strongest and handsomest—and they are a handsome people—and start a super-race of natives. We will live an harmonious life and I will try to raise a new standard of art and culture in that far away land. It shouldn't be hard for us to support ourselves there. We can raise the native products and trade with other islanders."

Although this scheme of Gerbault's sounds highly impractical and is beset with obvious difficulties, those familiar with this young man's past achievements find themselves compelled to hesitate before they prophesy its ultimate failure. Indeed, if they have doubts they are inclined to render the benefit thereof to Gerbault, and are forced to admit that if anyone could carry out such a difficult program with success, it would be none other than this slender, sinewy Frenchman, whose remarkable accomplishments even now earn him rank with such daring adventurers as Lawrence of Arabia and Lindbergh.

Born into a wealthy French family—his uncle is the Count de Chalais—Gerbault was completing his education when the war broke out. As a youth of twenty he enlisted in the air force. He became one of the French aces, serving through six major campaigns and winning two citations. He was known in the French trenches as a most daring aviator, who did not hesitate to dash off alone in his plane against three or more German flyers. Officially credited with bringing down four enemy planes, men who served with him say that he brought down at least another half dozen that were not credited to him for lack of official observation.

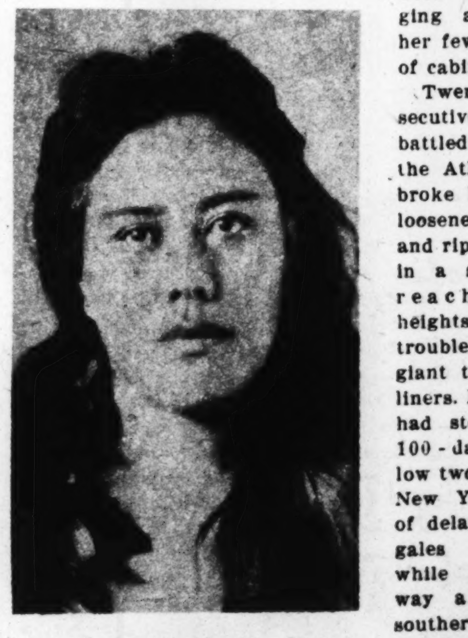
Besides gaining a reputation at the front for his fighting qualities, he also won recognition as an unusual personality. Silent, sensitive and reserved, he was never a boon companion. When not flying he was always to be found with a book, and even amidst the wildest bombardments he would be seated somewhere in the din calmly reading Poe, Keats, Shelley, Baudelaire or Verlaine. His knowledge of English, incidentally, is perfect. He actually speaks the language with an Oxonian accent. Only the rapidity of his words and the spontaneity of his gestures suggest the Frenchman beneath the blond hair and blue eyes.

Soon after the war ended Gerbault appeared before the public in a new role, that of an exceptional tennis player. He became a member of the French Davis Cup team and represented his country in matches with Belgium, Spain and Denmark. In mixed doubles he was most frequently paired with Suzanne Lenglen, then at the beginning of her phenomenal career, and together they won many victories. He was her preferred partner. They spent much time together and on several occasions rumors were current of a forthcoming engagement between the two stars.

THEN early in 1923 Gerbault suddenly abandoned tennis and was no more to be seen at his usual rendezvous. He had in the meantime purchased a sailing yacht and now he was spending most of his time on the boat alone, sailing about in the Mediterranean. Some attributed this isolation to disappointment in his suit for Suzanne's hand. Others said that it was not disappointment in love, but bitter disappointment at having failed in the entrance examination to the French Naval Academy.

All his friends knew that Gerbault had long nourished a love for the sea, and that he had become an omnivorous reader of Conrad, Melville and others who wrote of the sea. Whatever might have been the causes of his growing devotion to sailing in the Mediterranean, the fact is that Gerbault was preparing for a daring feat, nothing less than to sail around the globe alone in his little boat.

On September 17, 1923, a tiny, 30-foot boat battered by waves and torn by winds crawled into Long Island Sound. It approached the docks at City Island, near the Bronx, and a slim, barefooted young man, clad only in sweater and trousers, called out in English to those on shore: "May I berth here? I'm just in from France and I'd like a place to tie up."



The winner of an Hawaiian beauty contest—a type such as Gerbault plans to assemble on an island for the purpose of starting a super-race.

That young man was Alain Gerbault and his little craft "The Firecrest," arrived after 142 days crossing the Atlantic, one of the most daring and unusual feats in the annals of the sea. No other man is known to have crossed the Atlantic alone in a small boat with only the wind to drive him.

That crossing of the Atlantic had been a titanic struggle. Ninety-seven days he was out of sight of land, tossed about on mountainous waves in a boat whose deck dipped water when as few as four men stepped upon it. In the course of that voyage he lay for 48 hours sprawled in the bunk of his tiny cabin unconscious from a fever which struck him down during a gale which battered the little craft, sweeping her deck clean of rigging and flooding her few square feet of cabin space.

Twenty-four consecutive days he battled the fury of the Atlantic, which broke his bowsprit, loosened his mast and ripped his sails, in a storm which reached cyclonic heights and proved troublesome even to giant trans-Atlantic liners. Provisions he had stocked for a 100-day trip ran low two weeks from New York because of delay by terrific gales encountered while beating his way across the southern portion of the Atlantic. Two-thirds of his water spoiled and was cast overboard, poisoned by the wood of the newly-made casks. A liner sighted him and offered to pick him up. But Gerbault only took on fresh water and provisions and continued on his way alone.

"During the height of that 24-day storm," said Gerbault on landing, "my mast was battered loose, my bowsprit broken, and I was drenched to the skin, which brought about the fever, but I always figured if the worst should happen—the mast toppling—I'd rig up something with a sail and put in for the nearest land, Bermuda. On the twenty-fifth day of the storm, about the middle of July, things calmed down and I continued for New York. I rebuilt the bowsprit, tightened the mast, mended the rigging and sailed on. I knew I'd reach New York somehow. It really wasn't as dangerous as you might think. If you handle your boat like a sailor should, you'll always pull through somehow."

Gerbault on his return to Havre.

Leaving his tiny boat in New York, Gerbault returned to France to look after some matters of family business. Although he had formerly been refused admittance to the French Naval Academy, he now had the satisfaction of being decorated, at the proposal of the Minister of the Navy, with the ribbon of a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. While in France he wrote a book on his adventures called "Alone Across the Atlantic." Then in November, 1924, he returned to New York, boarded the gallant little Firecrest and set out to execute his audacious plan to complete his circumnavigation of the globe.

He sailed down the coast of the United States, across the Gulf of Mexico and through the Panama Canal. Then he entered the solitude of the Pacific. Headed southwest, he steered for the Galapagos Islands, then for the Gambier Archipelago. His seamanship, his knowledge of the winds and tides proved almost flawless. When storms approached he would lower his sails, enter his cabin, close the hatch and stretch out with a book until the storm was over, much in the same way he had conducted himself during the storms of lead at the front. He followed no set program, but took his rest whenever calm seas and a steady wind would allow him to set his sails and lash his helm. From the Gambier Archipelago he sailed northwest to the Marquesas, Tahiti, and the Walker Islands.

A serious accident to his boat, which had scraped off part of its metal keel on uncharted rocks, caused him to lay up in the South Sea Islands for some time, and it was then that he came to know the natives and to love the dream-like atalls they inhabited.

"It was then," Gerbault recently observed, "that I said to myself I will return and spend the rest of my life here."

WHEN his boat was repaired, after a long stay at the South Sea Islands, Gerbault put out to sea again. He reached Australia. He crossed the Indian Ocean after a stop at Reunion Island, went around the Cape of Good Hope at the southernmost tip of Africa, and up the Atlantic. He was wrecked at St. Vincent, one of the Cape Verde Islands. He almost lost his life here, but finally managed to reach shore and to beach his yacht safely. He withdrew to a lonely nook on that inhospitable island, built himself a cabin and began to repair his boat. The job took him several months, and then he stayed in that secluded spot to write an account of his crossing of the Pacific, later published in a book called "In Pursuit of the Sun." He finally left St. Vincent, stopped for a time at Horta, in the Azores, and then set out for France.

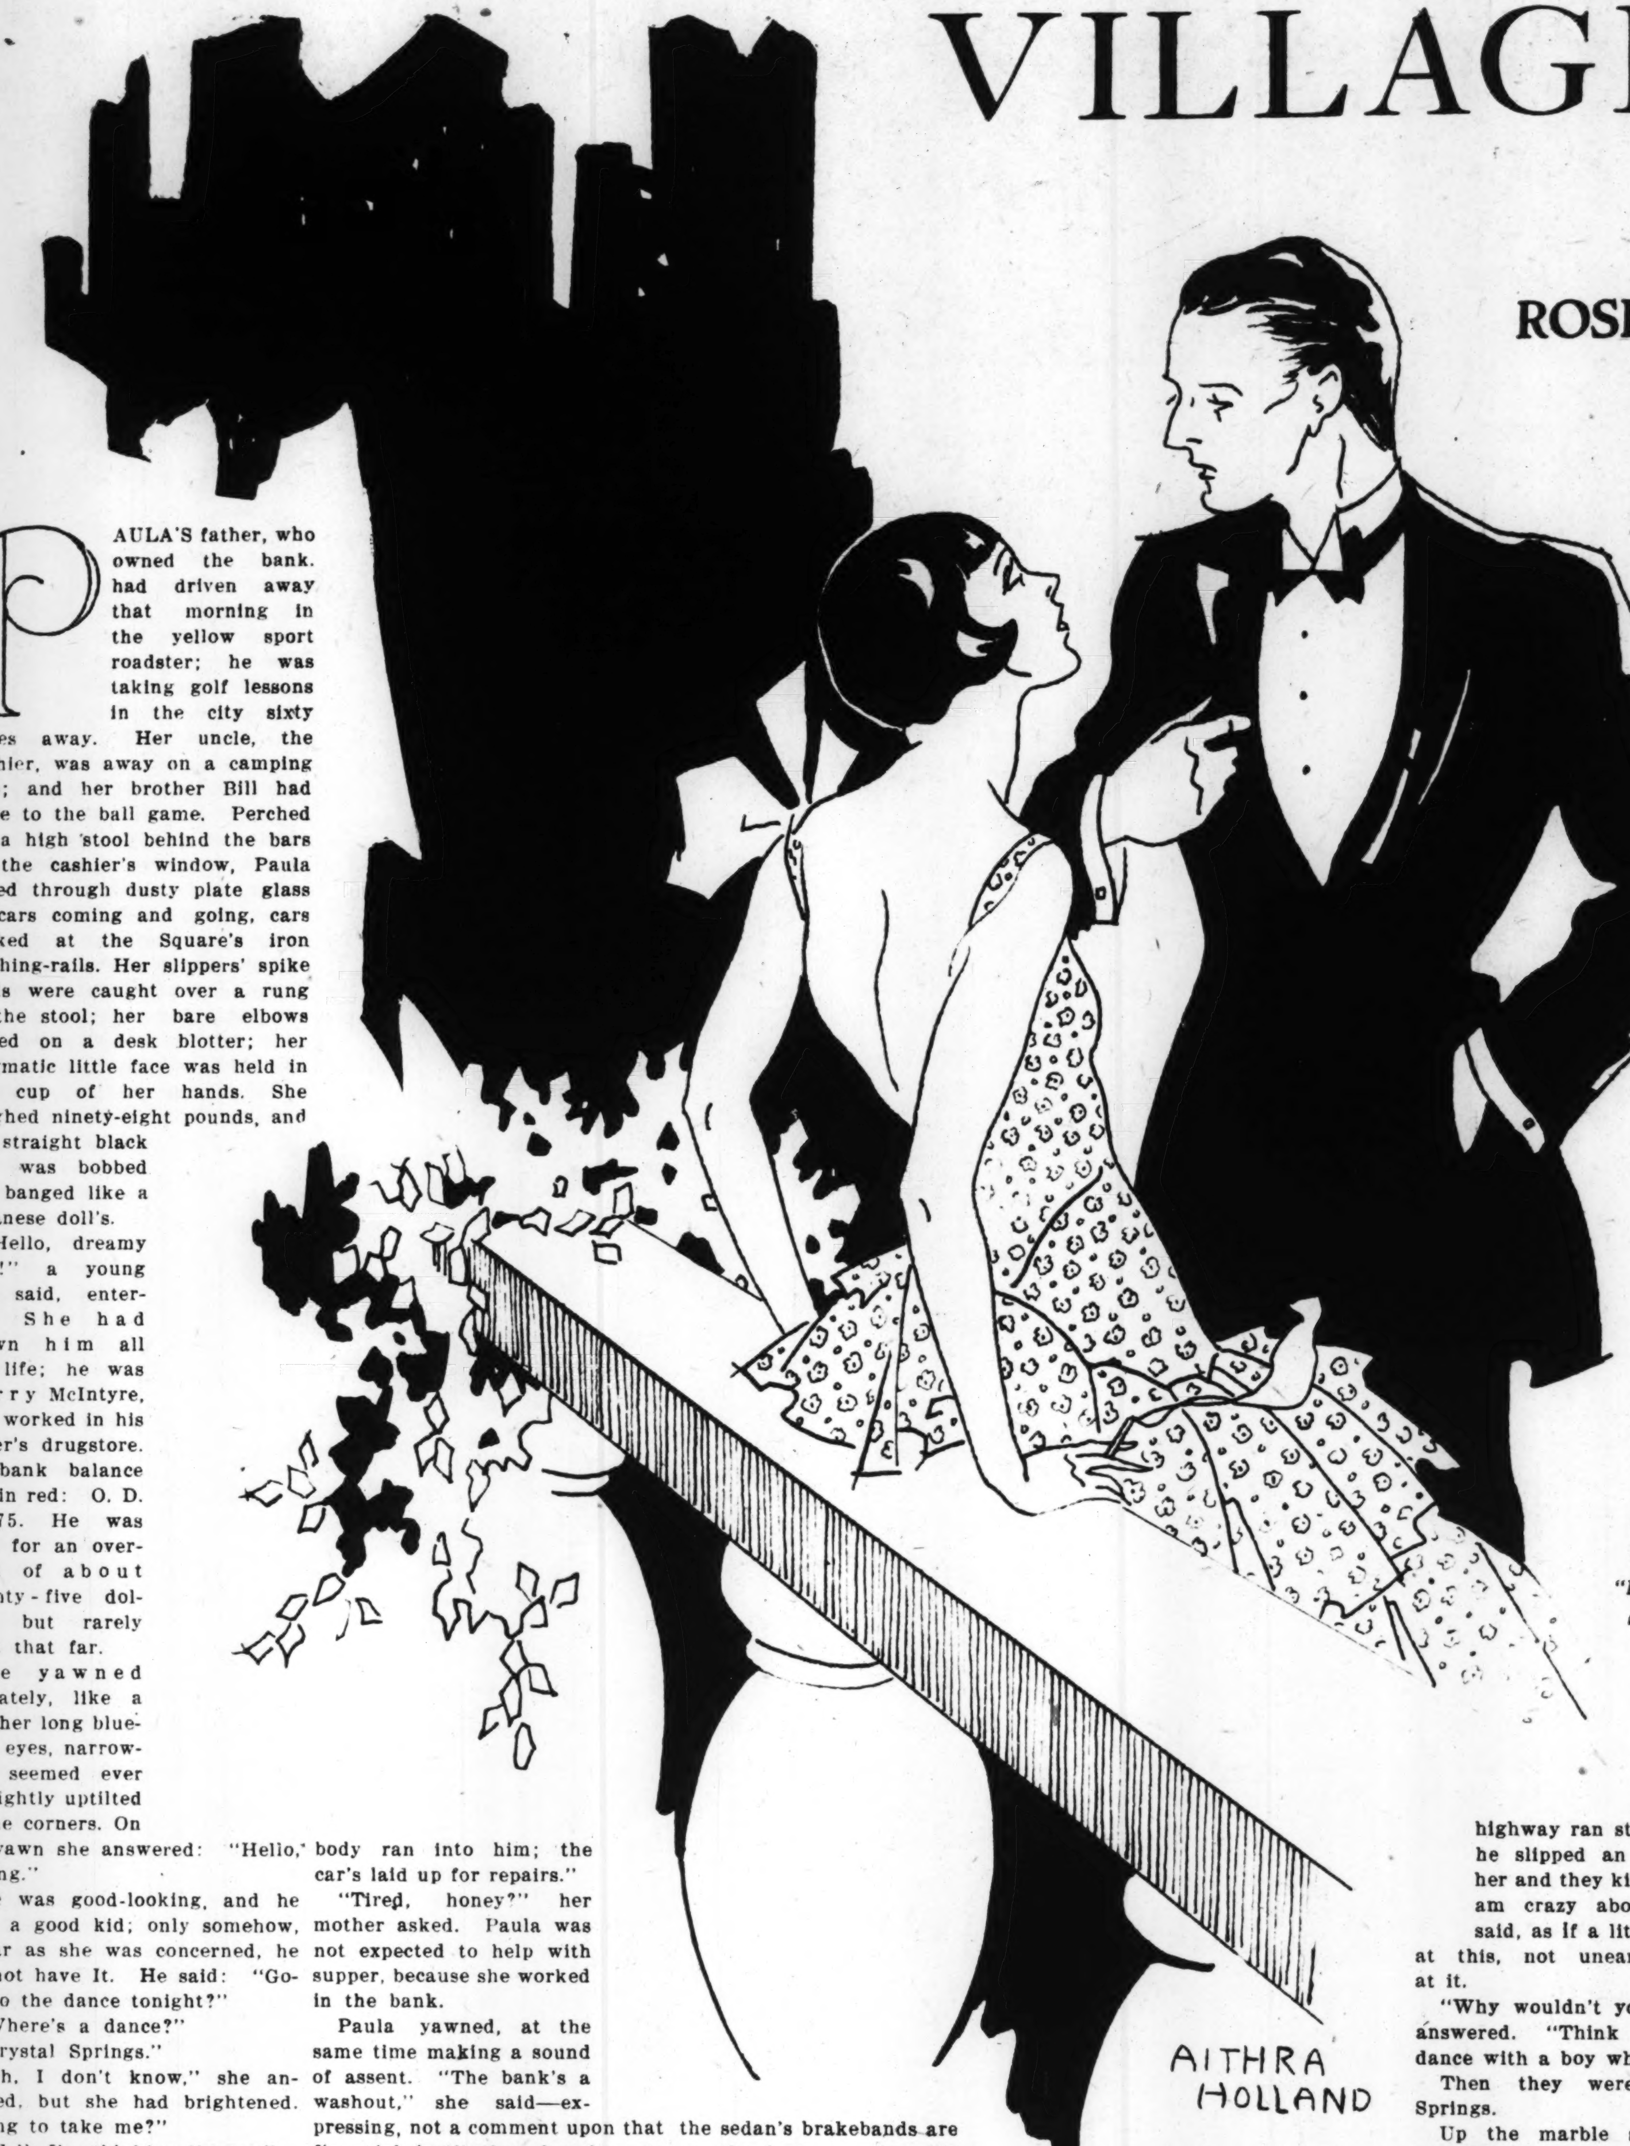
In the late afternoon of July 27, 1929, Alain Gerbault entered the harbor at Havre, from which he had first set out on board the Firecrest six years earlier. His arrival at Havre, however, was not the sudden unexpected thing his arrival at New York had been. The French had learned of his coming, and this time the harbor was crowded and the quays were packed with spectators eager to do honor to the intrepid adventurer. Their admiration turned to awe when they saw that the boat in which he had battled the storms of the Seven Seas was a tiny craft, hardly larger than the life-boats and tenders carried as auxiliaries by the larger vessels in the harbor. Public dinners, receptions, testimonials and medals followed. He was promoted to the grade of Officer of the Legion "because of his magnificent qualities of seamanship, endurance and fortitude."

And now hardly more than a year after the completion of that magnificently hazardous adventure, when Gerbault announces his plan to establish a South Sea Eden, only the most hardened sceptics would be bold enough to prophesy failure.

VILLAGE MAIDEN

By

ROSE WILDER LANE



"Look," he said, "I'm going to marry you."

PAULA'S father, who owned the bank. had driven away that morning in the yellow sport roadster; he was taking golf lessons in the city sixty miles away. Her uncle, the cashier, was away on a camping trip; and her brother Bill had gone to the ball game. Perched on a high stool behind the bars of the cashier's window, Paula gazed through dusty plate glass at cars coming and going, cars parked at the Square's iron hitching-rails. Her slippers' spike heels were caught over a rung of the stool; her bare elbows rested on a desk blotter; her enigmatic little face was held in the cup of her hands. She weighed ninety-eight pounds, and her straight black hair was bobbed and banged like a Japanese doll's.

"Hello, dreamy eyes!" a young man said, entering. She had known him all her life; he was Harry McIntyre, who worked in his father's drugstore. His bank balance was in red: O. D. $32.75. He was good for an overdraft of about seventy-five dollars, but rarely went that far.

She yawned delicately, like a cat; her long blue-gray eyes, narrowing, seemed ever so slightly uptilted at the corners. On the yawn she answered: "Hello, darling."

He was good-looking, and he was a good kid; only somehow, as far as she was concerned, he did not have It. He said: "Going to the dance tonight?"

"Where's a dance?"

"Crystal Springs."

"Oh, I don't know," she answered, but she had brightened. "Going to take me?"

"Well, I'm thinking it over."

"All right," she said. "You win."

He leaned on the edge outside the bars and pushed his hat back. "You darn' little kid!" he said. "Sometimes I think I'm crazy about you."

She smiled, her teeth very white against the flexible line of bright rouge. I wouldn't worry about that," she told him comfortably. "Think again."

He laughed.

WITH the noise of a threshing machine an ancient car covered with ancient mud drew to the curb and stopped. Old man Latimer, the richest farmer in the county, swung out of it and came right into the bank. "Righto!" said Harry. "See you tonight."

There were no more customers after the farmer. The bank was supposed to be open until six o'clock; but at half-past five, having posted the day's business, Paula turned over the sign hanging inside the glass door, so that from without it read: "Bank Closed."

It was a walk of four, long blocks, for the Blake house was quite at the edge of town. Two cars stood under the elms in the side yard; Paula looked at them and knew she would find her married sisters in the house.

Paula walked into the large, cluttered living-room and dropped onto a divan. "Hello, Mary," she said. "How's the world, Anne? What's the matter with the infant?"

"Teething," Anne replied briefly.

"We'll just have a pick-up supper," Mrs. Blake said. "C. L. telephoned he won't be home tonight." She always referred to her husband by his initials. She said cheerfully: "Seems somebody ran into him; the car's laid up for repairs."

"Tired, honey?" her mother asked. Paula was not expected to help with supper, because she worked in the bank.

Paula yawned, at the same time making a sound of assent. "The bank's a washout," she said—expressing, not a comment upon that financial institution, but her attitude toward work in it.

"Supper's ready," Mother said. "Switch on the lights, will you, Paula, and you girls wash up if you're going to."

In the bathroom Paula gazed intently at her eye-brows. No, they did not need the tweezers. Her face emerged from cold cream and skin tonic looking oddly naked without its make-up. She colored and powdered it again quickly, and with anxious care drew the bright curves of her mouth. She brushed her lacquer-shining hair, and clipped an infinitesimal raggedness from the edge of her bang. Others might let their hair grow long and wear it in a bun; that did not suit her type. She drew a perfume-moist finger along her eyebrows and behind her ears, polished her nails again on the balls of her thumbs. "Paula!" they kept calling to her. "Paula, hurry up!" She heard Bill washing his hands at the kitchen sink.

He grinned at her from the supper-table when she appeared. "Hello! Who's the lucky gink tonight?"

She and Bill liked each other, if they did fight a lot. She said. "Harry. Dance at Crystal Springs."

"Why don't you come along, Bill?" Paula suggested.

"Maybe I will," Bill said. He looked strong and handsome, getting up from the table, hitching at his belted trousers, sauntering to the telephone. Paula, eating her salad and two wedges of angel-food, heard him kidding Margaret.

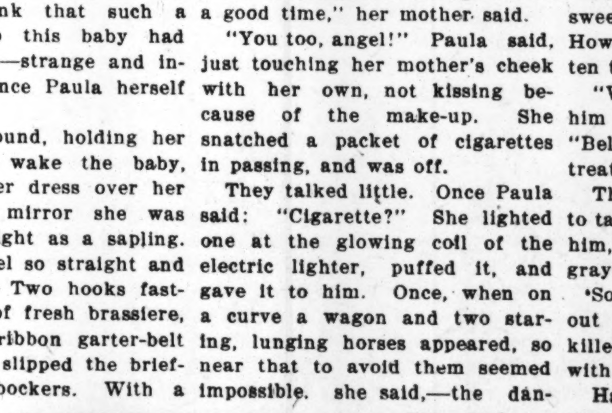
"Hello, Margot! . . Well, you didn't call me did you? . . . Sure I have. Listen — going to take me to the dance tonight at Crystal Springs? . . . Guess you'll have to. Dad's smashed the roadster; Mother's using the coupé, and the sedan's brakebands are on the bum. . . Aw, it's only fifty miles; that bus of yours'll make it in under an hour 'n' a half . . . Well, why else? I can't walk. . . Oh, be your age, honey! . . . Sure, at the drugstore. . 'By." He put on his hat, saying: "All fixed up. I'll run along and lay in the cigarettes."

The screen door slammed behind him, and he went down the sidewalk whistling "Carolina Moon."

Anne's things were scattered in Paula's room, and the baby lay asleep on the counterpane. Paula bent over her. The formless mouth was open, showing the hot swollen gums and one emerging tooth.

IN HER sleep the baby squirmed, screwed up her face, made protesting movements with her uncertain hands. Strange, to think that such a little time ago this baby had not been at all—strange and incredible, that once Paula herself had not been.

Without a sound, holding her breath lest she wake the baby, Paula pulled her dress over her head. In the mirror she was round and straight as a sapling. She loved to feel so straight and slim and free. Two hooks fastened the wisp of fresh brassiere, two more the ribbon garter-belt over which she slipped the briefest of knickerbockers. With a rustle like a sigh the chiffon dancing frock slid silken and light over her shoulders, down over her light and happy body. Barefoot, she ran downstairs, carrying stockings and slippers.



Paula said: "Mamma, you're simply beautiful: I love that shade of rouge on you." She sat down and began to draw the pale sheer stockings on. "I think I've got good legs, don't you?"

"Yes, Paula, you have lovely legs," her mother said. "Are you going to that dance at Crystal Springs?"

"M'h'm—with Harry."

"I do like Harry," her mother said.

"Oh, Harry's all right," said Paula.

She buckled her garters as fast as she could, and stepped into her slippers. Harry's horn was honking. She snatched up vanity-case, comb, chiffon handkerchief, and hurriedly gave her mother's shoulders a hug. "Have a good time," her mother said.

"You too, angel!" Paula said, just touching her mother's cheek with her own, not kissing because of the make-up. She snatched a packet of cigarettes in passing, and was off.

They talked little. Once Paula said: "Cigarette?" She lighted one at the glowing coil of the electric lighter, puffed it, and gave it to him. Once, when on a curve a wagon and two staring, lunging horses appeared, so near that to avoid them seemed impossible. she said,—the danger past — "Some driver!" Gruff with anger, Harry exclaimed: "Damned fools! They ought to make 'em carry a light." Sometimes when the highway ran straight ahead, he slipped an arm around her and they kissed. "Kid, I am crazy about you," he said, as if a little marveling at this, not uneardy to laugh at it.

"Why wouldn't you be?" she answered. "Think I'd go to a dance with a boy who wasn't?"

Then they were in Crystal Springs.

Up the marble steps to the mosaic-floored lobby Paula went, with already something of the dance in her light feet. The blare and whine and blood-throb beat of the music came from an upper floor; the lobby had a festive air, with groups of men and girls passing through it, all strangers. Paula and Harry went up in the elevator, and Harry got the tickets while she renewed her make-up and smoothed her hair in the dressing-room.

SOME other girls were there; they said it was a swell dance. In a corner one girl was crying; as fast as she wiped the tears from her black-streaked cheeks, more tears flowed. She should have known better than to wear mascara, or better than to cry, Paula thought, asking: "What's the matter wtih her?"

"She's had a row with her sweetie," someone said. Charley Howard's treated her simply rotten tonight."

"Well, why doesn't she make him weep?" Paula demanded. "Believe it or not, if any boy treated me mean!"

The girl flared: "Oh, it's easy to talk!" she wailed. "I—I love him," and dabbed with her wet gray ball of handkerchief.

Someone else said, "Oh, snap out of it, Leslie! Love never killed anybody." Paula agreed with that.

Harry was waiting for her in the red-carpeted hall. Beyond him wide doors were open, and there was a blaze of light on moving heads and shoulders. The orchestra was playing "Carolina Moon." "Carolina — moon is—shining, shining on the—one I love the—best." Life was just too beautiful. Paula began to hum, just a little inaudible hum in her throat; she couldn't help it. Others were humming, were singing, all in the big bright room full of dancing, full of happiness, enchanted by the music of the violins. "Carolina—moon is—shining"—— Then she saw him.

He came straight toward her, out of the maze of dancers which seemed to part to let him through and close like a curtain behind him.

"Where have you been all my life?" he said. She had never seen him before. He had come straight to her, and she was glad. She was glad when he put his arms around her; she had forgotten all about Harry, waiting there for her to turn to him.

She danced as though she were the music itself, as lilting, as sure. She danced with a grave little aloofness, her head turned ever so slightly from him, lashes drooping, her smile altogether for herself, as though her lips held a secret. Her hand was light on his sleeve, his arm light about her. She did not think at all.

"The orchestra played "Way Down on the Ohio," while they stood on the balcony and talked. Crystal Springs was not far from this hotel; the stream ran in its rocky banks almost below this balcony.

Below it, too, there were rustling tree-tops and flower beds that smelled sweet. Paula leaned against the balcony railing and smoked a cigarette. She smoked slowly, nonchalantly, tilting her head to blow little clouds of smoke, like kisses, toward the stars. After a few puffs, he had thrown his cigarette away.

"Look," he said, "I'm going to marry you." Paula laughed.

"I love your line," she answered.

"You didn't need to speak a word to get me."

"Lots of girls do, I bet."

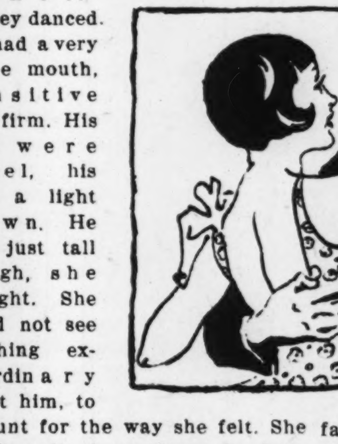
"Marry? Sure thing. Let's."

"No—love your line."

"Oh, I've got several," he said. "This is a new one. I've never tried it before."

She laughed again, and he said lightly: "Believe it or not. Dance?"

They danced. He had a very nice mouth, sensitive and firm. His eyes were hazel, his hair a light brown. He was just tall enough, she thought. She could not see anything extraordinary about him, to account for the way she felt. She didn't quite know how she happened to be standing before a woman about as old as her mother, a dark-eyed woman in pale gray georgette.



"Mother," he said, "here's the girl I'm going to marry. Isn't she a knock-out."

His mother smiled fondly at him, and very charmingly at Paula. "Do you mean me to take you seriously?"

"Well," he said, "if she will, you can."

Paula didn't know what to do. She was so afraid she was blushing that she was furious with him. She laughed, and said: "Do girls usually take him seriously?" Her heart was beating like anything; she hoped her voice sounded natural. Other people came up; the music started, and they danced again. They kept on dancing together.

When the dance was ending, at three o'clock, he insisted on taking her home. She protested that she must go with Harry, but he said he'd attend to that. He brought Harry to her, where she was standing with Margaret, and Bill in the lobby, and when she saw Harry's sullen eyes she said what she hadn't intended to. "You won't mind, will you Harry? she asked sweetly. Harry said he certainly didn't.

All the Tracy cars came quite slowly along the highway.

"Why shouldn't we get married?" he argued. "I never saw a girl I'd ask before. You're the only one I've ever wanted to marry. I'm not so bad, either, when you get used to me. All you've got to do is fall for me about half as hard as I've fallen for you, and we'll make a go of it. I know we will. Anyway, why not try it? It's a sporting proposition."

She took a deep breath. Her voice was small and steady. "Well—I don't want you to think I'm selfish, or—or peculiar, or anything. But when it comes to marrying, I think it's pretty important to know how much money there'll be, and what the prospects are. I don't want you to hate me, but that's the way I feel about it. My mother eloped with Papa when she was about my age, and he had only $10, and that's romantic and everything but I think it's stupid."

"SO DO I!" he almost shouted. "Didn't I know you were a brainy kid, the minute I saw you?" He hugged her exultantly, then drew her comfortably against his shoulder. "Now let's talk this over. Don't get it into your head I'm asking you to marry me tomorrow. I wouldn't do it. Next August, I think, would be about right, or maybe September. We'll get acquainted a little better, though I don't think that's so important. The only way we'll ever know how we'll hit it off, married, is to get married and see." He was silent an instant, while a car with undimmed headlights swept straight at them, swerved at the last second and was gone in a passing roar. "That the way you look at it?"

Paula nodded.

"Well, say August or September. By that time I'll have a house built for you, furnished and all paid for, and there'll be some money in the bank. I'm not doing so badly; don't think I depend on promoting dances."

"Oh, do you promote dances?"

Sure he did, he said; he had promoted that evening's dance. Not for the money in it—he cleared only around twenty-five dollars, after paying expenses — but to liven things up some. "You cute little tike, didn't you even know I was running that dance?"

She murmured, a little surprised: "I don't even know your name. What is it?"

"I can answer that the first time," he said. "Charley Howard."

"Now, baby," he said, his arm warm around her again, "what's your name?"

"Paula Blake," she told him; "my father's C. L. Blake."

"Gosh!" he said. His father was dead, and he supported his mother. He owned a half-interest in the Crystal Springs Electric Company, and was making a deal to buy out his partner.

He smiled down at her. "It's all set, then?"

"I guess—so."

"Give me a real kiss."

She did. "Kid," he said, huskily, "I—I'm crazy about you. Gosh, I—feel like bursting out crying."

THEY both made an effort, then, to take this as though it were nothing extraordinary. They both spoke at once, stopped, laughed unsteadily. He said: "Want me to hang around till your folks are up, and give 'em the jolt?"

No, she said. No, she'd tell them. Didn't he have to be at his electric plant? He remembered then that he couldn't get away to come to Tracy again that week, on account of that deal with his partner, and the inventory. He'd telephone. "Well, so long."

"Same to you," she replied gayly. She didn't wait to watch the car speed away, but went into the house, walking lightly as though she didn't care. . . .

She did not say anything, even to her mother, until after telephoning her three times, he sent her the plans for the bungalow. Any changes she wanted, he said, he would put in. The plans were

HOW THE LA FOLLETTES EDUCATED WISCONSIN'S VOTERS

State. He owns the whole village of Kohler and has worked out there an ideal housing system for his employes. Nonunion employes, the Progressives are quick to point out. No breath of scandal touched the Kohler administration, other, of course, than the charge that he had far exceeded the $4000 limitation fixed by the corrupt practices act of the State, in securing the election. Most of the Progressives to whom I talked respect him as a man. But, they add hastily, he does not stand for progressive government. If the Progressive movement was to survive, it was essential to regain control of the State Government. Therefore the campaign.

Phil was aware from the first of the enormously difficult job that he faced. It is said that he was inclined to be dubious as to the possibilities of success. After all he was a very young man. The only elective office he had ever held was that of District Attorney of Dane County in which the Capital is situated. Kohler was a man of long experience. He had built up a large and prosperous business which he managed, within the range of his social philosophy, very humanely. He makes an impressive appearance. Virtually all the business interests in the State were behind him.

But one fact became apparent in those early weeks in July when Phil first started to tour the State in his Ford: he had, unmistakably, his father's campaign presence, the sense of the dramatic, the force, the drive, the warm human qualities. Old friends of the family agree that Phil takes after his father, while Young Bob, the Senator, resembles his mother.

He hammered the issues of the campaign at the crowds that grew larger and larger as he moved through the State—public competition in the generation and distribution of electric power to check the Power Trust, opposition to chain banking, indorsement of the Wagner unemployment program, reforestation, increase in the gasoline tax. And he never passed up the small towns. In fact, he made the opening speech of his campaign in a village called Plane that almost no one had heard of. It was 15 miles from a railroad. He made an important speech at Cassville, on the Mississippi, where, literally, no political speaker had been for 26 years. Often he spoke out of doors.

Again and again there were the most remarkable demonstrations of feeling. The citizens of Cambridge, a small town, entirely on their own volition, hung a banner across the main street that read "Vote for La Follette. He Won't Forget."

THE allusion was to Governor Kohler's testimony that he had forgotten many of the details of the expenditures in his successful campaign of two years before. The truck drivers' union in Milwaukee adopted this slogan and emblazoned it on banners which they hung on their trucks whenever they were not forbidden to do so by their employers. Phil's presence on the platform and the fact that he bore the La Follette name evoked many striking demonstrations. Old men came up afterward, wrung his hand. "Just like your dad, boy," they said. "I'd of swore it was him again." Gray-haired women embraced him.

The crowds grew larger and larger. It was apparent that whichever way the election was to go, there would be an enormous vote. Two days before the primary Phil addressed a crowd of 10,000 in the Milwaukee armory. There were 5000 more outside who listened to speeches by Young Bob and United States Senator Blaine. In Madison on the following night, election eve, 8000 persons heard the same speech.

The last two weeks of the campaign were not happy for Kohler. Although the conservatives were confident of victory up to the moment that the election returns began coming in, the Governor was harassed and somewhat unnerved during the last final struggle. On two or three occasions when he was heckled, he lost his temper. "Are you friend or foe?" he shouted at one heckler. "Do you realize you're breaking up this meeting? I'll call the wagon as I did last week." Three persons were arrested at Kohler meetings. Phil and other Progressive speakers quickly made capital of this and when they were heckled by Conservatives pointed out most emphatically that it was entirely against Progressive beliefs to arrest hecklers.

Only two newspapers in the State, the Capital Times at Madison and the Manitowoc Times, supported Phil. All the others were in opposition, with varying degrees of bitterness.

Immediately after the election, which never from the first hour that the returns began coming in was in doubt, Phil and his wife retreated to Northern Wisconsin for rest, accompanying Young Bob and his bride. I talked to Phil on his return. He was still a little hoarse but a week of fishing and loafing in the sun had done much to erase the lines of weariness which the campaign had brought to his face.

"How large a part do you think the La Follette name played in your election?" was one question put to him.

"It is difficult to say," was his answer. "In this election, as in every election, there were so many elements involved. People are always determined, of course, to have personalities. A number of men were associated with my father in the inception of the Progressive movement. He was, I suppose, the centralizing force.

"His name is a symbol of progressive government in Wisconsin. That is the significance of the La Follette name. I firmly believe that if someone else had made the campaign which I made he would have been nominated. Not by such a large majority, perhaps, but I am convinced he would have won. I tried to take the issues to the voters, county by county, township by township. It was the nearest possible approach to the New England town meeting.

"And I believe a similar campaign would be successful in other Middle Western states. Although it is important to remember the perspective here in Wisconsin—a background of 40 years of the Progressive movement. And then we have a loyal following, built up through numerous campaigns."

"Do you think your father might have achieved the same reforms and built up the same movement in another Middle Western State?" was another question.

"I most certainly do. After all, the population elements are virtually the same in Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio and, for that matter, Missouri. In fact, in Missouri you had a much larger influx of that fine German '48 movement than we had in Wisconsin. It is true that the Scandinavian element is important in Wisconsin. The Norwegian and the Swede both take naturally to politics.

"The makeup of Wisconsin is not so different from Missouri. We have large manufacturing areas around Sheboygan and Milwaukee. And we have a large conservative element. But our conservatives are less conservative than yours. They have been constantly pushed farther and farther by the Progressives. So that a Conservative in Wisconsin might seem a Progressive elsewhere.

"And our Conservatives take their politics seriously. A number of leading manufacturers spoke in behalf of Kohler during the last campaign. Every element in the State was aroused by the campaign. There is very little apathy or cynicism with regard to politics. I drew very large crowds. But the Kohler crowds were very nearly as large. We knew there was to be an enormous vote but we couldn't tell which way it was going, really, until the day before when we telephoned all our workers.

"The fight, of course, has just started. Monopoly control is tightening here as elsewhere. Important progressive legislation is to be introduced into the Legislature at the next session."

Phil tried throughout, he says, to make it a campaign of issues, not personalities. He scoffs at references to the La Follette dynasty as conservative propaganda.

Mrs. Belle Case La Follette, his mother, took no part whatsoever in the campaign. She was in Washington during the entire time, where she is engaged in writing an extensive memoirs, which will probably extend to two volumes, on the life of her late husband. She has never, it is said, taken an active part in politics.

AS FOR Fola La Follette, it is pointed out that her dominant interest has always been the stage. For many years she has lived outside Wisconsin. And Mrs. Ralph Sucher, the youngest daughter, is busy rearing a family in Washington.

Young Bob, of course, aided his brother to the utmost of his ability. His bride, too, whom he married the day after election, was an active worker at La Follette headquarters. She was formerly Miss Rachel Wilson Young and was for several years his secretary.

What the old Senator so often said during his life was recalled as the returns came pouring in. "I have no money to leave my children. I shall leave them only my name. And I hope they will be satisfied with that."

The Conservatives have been very, very subdued since the election. They were so confident of victory that the returns stunned them. As the Capitol Times pointed out, the editorial columns of the opposition papers have almost entirely been given over to sunsets, beautiful autumn leaves and the opening of the hunting season, since the fateful primary day. There has been little attempt at explanation or apology. Nor are references to the La Follette dynasty taken any too kindly. For the Conservatives are reminded that Phil has two fine, strong children. Is it to go on for another generation? they ask.

Bleak St. Kilda Deserted at Last

The cattle had to swim out.

off his right hand with an ax and flung it over his rivals' heads to the shore, thereby winning the race by being first to lay hand on the island.

Whoever the original inhabitants may have been, there is no probability that the recent St. Kildans were descendants of them. The population has varied considerably from time to time. Martin found 180 islanders and Macaulay, a hundred years later, found 88. At the time of the first Government census in 1851 there were 110, but by 1900 the number had fallen to 70. This was due largely to the fact that some 36 natives had emigrated to Australia in the interval. Until just before the outbreak of the Great War the population remained fairly stationary at 74 or 75. Since that time, the younger people have been discontented with life on the remote island and have drifted away by twos and threes until the evacuation now affects no more than 33 persons, more than half of whom are children or old folks. The surnames of those who have just left the island are Ferguson, Gillies, MacDonald MacKinnon and MacQueen. A document written 60 years ago shows that the entire population of St. Kilda was grouped under the same five surnames.

The fluctuation in numbers in earlier times may be accounted for by the fact that St. Kilda has been partially or completely depopulated more than once. Heathcote repeats an old St. Kildan tale of how two men named Dugan and Ferchar once plotted to kill all the inhabitants, lured them into a church by a ruse and set the building on fire. One woman escaped, according to the story, hid in a cave until a ship came, and then appeared and denounced the murderers, bringing about their execution.

Another instance of the depopulation of St. Kilda occurred early in the last century when the island was visited by an epidemic of smallpox. All the adult inhabitants died, it is said, except a few who had been left on Boreray when the malady broke out.

HEATHCOTE characterized the islander as deeply religious, very slow of motion and usually very filthy in his habits, a trait brought forcefully to the visitor's attention by the grimy native's insistence upon shaking hands on every possible excuse. The islanders he called the best climbers in the world, their proficiency acquired through constant scaling of the cliffs in quest of birds' eggs.

With so many formidable stacs and peaks available to test the climber's skill, it seems natural enough that climbing should have become a sort of national sport and that St. Kildan youngsters should have aspired to become expert climbers as youths of other lands aspire to be home-run hitters. The expert climber was an island hero and there were frequent contests in which the younger men engaged.

A long time ago, it is said, young men who wished to be married had first to pass a test known as the ordeal of the Lover's Stone. The Lover's Stone is a precipice of jagged rock, which hangs or juts out, some 600 feet above the rocks on the seashore. From the land side it rises as a peak and presents an exceedingly difficult climb. The man undergoing the ordeal had first to scale the peak and then balance himself in a crouching position on his heels at the brink. A fall forward would send him down 600 feet to the rocks below. A fall backward would send him rolling down an almost precipitous slope. It isn't recorded how many young men failed to pass the test. Heathcote is inclined to believe the story is a legend that originated somewhere else, for the islanders he visited in 1900, he says, had never heard of it.

Besides being good climbers and nest robbers, Heathcote found the St. Kildans were good fishermen and were exceedingly skillful at handling small boats in rough water. High waves and rocky coasts held no terrors for them. But they were poor farmers. Indeed, St. Kildans have never tried seriously to be farmers, because there is no land on the island fit for farming.

HOWEVER, St. Kilda has for a long time been famous for its sheep. They could graze in the narrow glens and valleys and required no other feeding. It is a strange fact that the islanders never sheared or clipped their sheep but plucked them like geese.

In their new homes in Argyllshire, the St. Kildans will have an opportunity to try their hand at farming and the Scottish Board of Agriculture is awaiting the outcome of the experiment with interest. There is some doubt that the St. Kildans ever can shake off their old habits of life and become industrious agriculturists, but they still have their sheep and fishing nets.

Village Maiden

for a double bungalow, divided into two houses of five rooms and six, with separate entrances. He wrote her he figured they could rent the five-room one for enough to pay taxes, upkeep and interest on the whole investment. She thought it an excellent idea, and that evening when she came from the bank she remarked:

"Well, mamma, I guess I'm going to get married."

Her mother was upset. She said she didn't want Paula to marry yet. Time enough later. "You're only 18, honey; it's too young."

Her father raged. He said he wouldn't allow it, he said it was absurd, preposterous, ridiculous. What did the fellow mean? Who was he, anyhow? What did she know about him? What was the world coming to, when a baby like her would see a stranger once, and decide to marry him? No, he absolutely would not allow it; that was flat.

Charley came on Sunday.

Her mother liked him; and after a long talk with him, her father retreated into grumbling. It wasn't that they objected to Charley; it was just that they objected to her getting married. But after the third Sunday he spent with her in his car, she was very sober all day Monday, and that evening she ran out of the bank as Bill was stepping on the starter, and climbed into the coupe beside him. "Go out the creek road a little way, Bill, will you? I want to talk to you."

Out on the creek road Bill parked the car under a willow, and they talked.

"You see, Bill, it's this way: Getting married means an awful lot to me. You don't know how I'd hate to make a fizzle of it. And yet, how can I tell? Anne says she's still crazy about Bob and would die if anything happened to the baby, but not to get married, whatever I do. She says marriage is a trap. Well, I don't think it's marriage; I think it's being in love that's a trap. And—I can't help that. Because—because, Bill, it's—got me." With a small, unconscious gesture her hand went to her breast, and suddenly her eyes glistened.

"And so, Bill this is what I thought: I don't know much about him. If I'm not going to marry him, I'd like to know it right away. I'd rather quit now than later. Bill, will you look him up for me? Will you find out all about — everything?"

"I sure will," Bill said.

Bill came back from Crystal Springs the next night; it was the second time he had driven down there.

"Like to take a ride, sis?" Bill said when he came in about ten o'clock.

As soon as they were out of town, Bill let the car idle along at twenty miles an hour. "I might as well give it to you straight," he said. "Financially, he's sound as a nut. They think he's the white-haired boy, in Crystal Springs. He'll be a big man before he's through. But he's tricky with the girls. I couldn't dig up any innocence betrayed or any of that rot. But he's the gay philanderer. He seems to be a bear-cat at it!

"DON'T take it too hard, sis," Bill said. "But maybe you'd better forget it. There's a girl named Leslie Gray; she's sobbing all over the place now. And before that—well, a long list of 'em. Getting engaged and getting out again seems to be his long suit.

"You're a darling, Bill, you really are," Paula said, when the car stopped at home.

At seven o'clock next morning she was shaking his shoulder. "Get up, wake up, you old bum!" She rumpled his hair, while he blinked and yawned; then he sat up suddenly. Bright-eyed, rouged, with her perfectly painted mouth smiling, she stood dressed in her smartest sport-clothes—pleated skirt, tuck-in-blouse, gray sweater, jaunty hat. "Get up, honey; you're taking me to Crystal Springs. This is important," she told Bill.

"Well, but what are you going to do?"

"I don't know, silly! That's why it's important." She was gay—a hard, gay little person. Just as they came into Crystal Springs she said in a businesslike tone: "The first thing's to find out where Leslie Gray lives."

Paula pressed the door-bell firmly. In an eternity or two the door opened, and she said with composure: "Hello; you're Leslie Gray, aren't you? I'm Paula Blake. May I come in?" No one could blame Leslie for the mascara, she thought. Without it, her lashes had no character at all; they were even paler than the pale fluffy hair. With her makeup on, she would have looked quite like a magazine cover. Her hands, offering cigarettes, were nervous and weak."

"No, thank you. I won't smoke," Paula said. "I want to ask you whether you were engaged to Charley Howard."

Leslie straightened in her chair. "What do you mean? What right have you got to ask me such a thing?"

"Well, I am thinking of marrying him myself."

"You"— Breathing rapidly, she stared at Paula. "Yes," she said sullenly, "I'm engaged to him."

"You are?"

"Yes, I am! I tell you I am, and I'd thank you"—

"Did he ask you to marry him?" Paula insisted. "Did he say it? Did he say: 'Will you marry me?' Did he?"

Leslie sprang to her feet. She was so angry that tears stood in her eyes; her cheeks were red. "I won't tell you one thing about it! It's my business, what"—

"Did he?"

"Of course he did! He did! He did! Now does that satisfy you?"

"Yes, it does," Paula said, rising too. "I don't believe a word of it. You wouldn't say it three times, if it were true." Suddenly she advanced on Leslie. "And I'll tell you exactly what happened: You're one of these girls that take boys seriously when they mean nothing of the kind. She stopped herself with a terrific effort. Her hands were shaking.

"I apologize," she said. She felt disgusted; Leslie was crying again. "But I don't feel as bad about you as I might, because you'll get over it. Good-by." Leslie didn't answer.

Paula's heels went click-click across the porch and down the walk to the car.

"It's all right," she said, getting in. She knew by Bill's eyes that she must look strange, and as the car rolled down that quiet, sunshiny street where sprinklers were whirling on lawns, she examined her reflection anxiously in the mirrored lid of her vanity case. It would be wearing, she thought, to be married to Charley, but you didn't get anything worth while without paying for it.

"You see," she explained to Bill, "he didn't lie to me. That's the only thing that matters; and he didn't, really, Bill. I don't think he will, ever, except the usual little unimportant lies."

She smiled shyly, sidewise, under her lashes at him.

"Well," she said. " I like him, and I'm going to keep him."

Boop-Poop-a-Doop

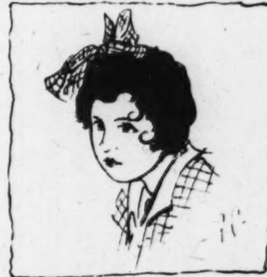
a note from Posner, testifying that he owed her $46,000. In the meantime, instead of buying Liberty Bonds with her $40,000, Posner had used the money to maintain distance between his weakening dress company and its creditors. But that wasn't enough money. The business steadily went from bad to worse. Posner needed more money. Helen Kane was playing in a Detroit vaudeville house at the time, so Posner took a train from New York and called on her to lend him an additional $100,000 to save his business.



In the meantime, Helen had discussed her financial dealings with members of her family. They seemed unanimously agreed that Helen should not only refuse to lend him any more money, but that she had better begin making efforts to collect the $46,000 he owed her. So when Posner called on her in Detroit, she didn't definitely refuse to lend him the $100,000 and she didn't definitely promise to, but she did intimate that she would be much more interested in the proposition if he would first repay what he owed her. Posner returned to New York and deposited one check for $10,000 to her credit at the Plaza Trust Company, and some weeks later another check for $40,000.

This money Miss Kane immediately had transferred to her account in a bank in Chicago. Then she had it converted into Liberty Bonds and deposited the bonds, under the name of Mary Marks, in a safety deposit vault of the Guaranty Trust Company of Chicago. Not long after this Posner made several trips west, two to Detroit and one to Chicago, where Helen was filling theatrical engagements. On the first visit he asked her for the loan of that $100,000. This was refused. On the second visit he asked her to let him at least have back the $50,000, as his creditors were hounding him for money. This, too, was refused and the meeting ended in a serious quarrel. On Posner's third strip west, Miss Kane had the house detective at the Drake Hotel eject Posner for annoying her. On the heels of that rebuff came Posner's creditors to throw his company into bankruptcy.

Now it happens that those two checks, one for $10,000 and the other for $40,000, which Posner paid Helen, were drawn from the Bond Dress Company's funds, and the lynx-eyed creditors are asking for an explanation. They want to know why Posner should have paid her $50,000 when the note which he gave Miss Kane states that he owed her $46,000. She says that the difference represents interest and a few odd loans of "$500 here and there." They also want to know why she shifted that $50,000 around so much and then concealed it in a Chicago vault under an assumed name. Helen says she did it for fear the Chicago racketeers would hold her up if they knew she had that much there. But if that was her reason, argue the creditors, why did she have the money transferred to a Chicago bank in the first place? And to this question Helen makes the coy answer, "I really didn't think of that."

BUT creditors are not a credulous lot. If Helen was able to get that $50,000 back from a cloak-and-suiter heading for bankruptcy, they are inclined to suspect the genuineness of her fear that she would lose it to the Chicago choke-and-shooters. Even if Helen is telling the entire truth, they insist that she is at best simply one of the creditors, that she was not entitled to being paid before the other creditors and that the $50,000 which Posner paid her out of the company's funds should be returned to the assets and divided with the rest of the assets among all the creditors. And the $20,000 worth of jewelry which Posner gave her, that, too, they say should be used in a similar fashion, for it was bought with the company's funds, which Posner himself admits to be the case.

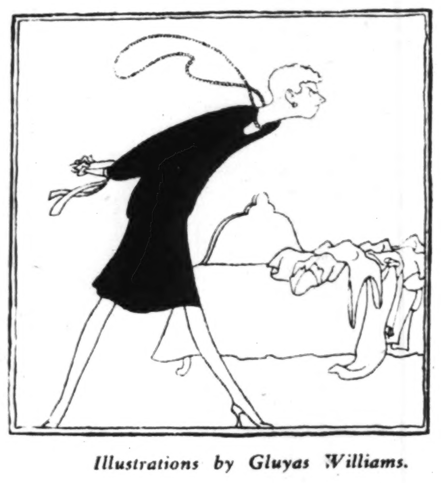
In short, the creditors have announced their intention to bring suit for the recovery of the jewelry and the cash. Helen isn't very cheerful about the prospect, but even if the creditors do recover the gems and the money she won't be left exactly destitute.

FABLES in SLANG

The Fable of the Edicts and the Addicts.

ONCE upon a Time a Benedict wandered back to the Love Nest and found Friend Wife about six inches ahead of an Epileptic Convulsion. She had a vast Assortment of flimsy Duds spread across the Beds and draped over Chairs. She was taking a mental Invoice and breathing Blue Smoke.

Mamma was sure peeved. Yes, ma'am! She had a baleful Glitter in the Eye and the Lips were closed together like a Steel Trap and she had the general Look of a het-up Lady who was just about ready to bite someone in the Arm.



Illustrations by Gluyas Williams.

Hubby had camped with Honey long enough to know the signs. He could see that she was nursing a full-sized Woof. "Spring the Sad Tidings," he said, as he observed the Directions in the Theater Program and stood near an Exit, so that he could make his escape by walking and not be compelled to run for it.

"Oh, drat and darn!" she exclaimed. "Dog-gone everything! Don't start anything with me just now unless you are hungry for a Battle, because I'm telling you that your little Tootsie is madder than a Wet Hen. Do you see that Mess of Wardrobe? To you it looks like Something to Wear.

"Well, there's nothing in the whole Kaboodle that I can put on without informing the Wide World that I am Gertie, the Lumberjack's Bride. I might as well wear Hoop Skirts and a Bustle and a Black Velvet Basque with a Cameo Brooch. All the Stuff I've bought for Two Years is no good for anything except to tear up into Strips and rub the Furniture with."

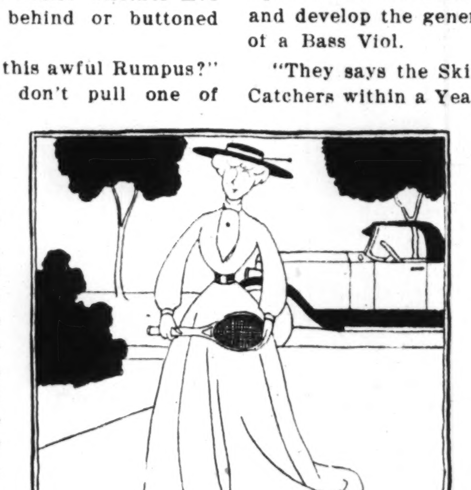
She was not entirely Grammatical but she was very dramatic.

"It looks all right to me," said her Life Companion.

"It would. If I came down to Dinner wearing Overshoes and a red Coolie Coat and Boxing Gloves you'd think I had on a Party Gown. You stand there and say to me that this junk is O K. Let me tell you that so far as Clothes to wear are concerned I'm in the same Fix that Eve was the morning she met Adam. I haven't got a stitch! I'm stripped down to Nothing. And I'm guessing that Adam didn't notice whether Eve was hooked up behind or buttoned down one Side."

"What started this awful Rumpus?"

"Listen! And don't pull one of those superior Lord-of-Creation Smiles unless you want to be crowned with an Alarm Clock. You know that when Short Skirts and the Boyish Bob arrived, I was the first one to stand up and give Three Hearty Cheers. I took one Solemn Oath that I'd never again step into a Skirt that flopped around my Ankles, and if anyone ever caught me with my Hair hanging down between the Shoulder Blades I'd be willing to go to the Foolish House and stay there. And you know, as dumb as you are, that I have put up a constant Fight against the Conspiracy to hide my Legs and the Nape of my neck. Now I have got to own up that I am licked."



"When did you make this important discovery?"

"This very Afternoon. I have been playing Contract Bridge over at Libbie's, trying to lay up a few Honest Dollars. I found myself entirely surrounded by a lot of old Tabbies who were diked up in Circus Regalia. They looked as if a High Wind had come along and blown some Clothes onto them, but they were Cocky, because they knew they were rigged out in the latest Modes. What they did to your poor little wife was a Plenty. They had it all over me like a Tent.

"After getting several Dirty Looks and observing the Elevated Eybrows I fell to the Fact that I was the only Female on the Premises who still wore a Shingle and was Ventilated below the Knees. Those hard-faced Lizzies looked stringy around the Ears and had these long Hickeys or puckered Grain Sacks hanging from the Floating Ribs all the way to their Shoes. They looked fierce, but they could give me the Ha-Ha because they were in Style and I was just Bertha, the Sewing-Machine Girl, trying to make good at the Ritz.

"Can you see me, endeavoring to be the Life of the Party, with not one of my Hips covered and no Fringe in front of my Shins? If ever a Gal was in Wrong! I beat it and came Home in the Car with the Curtains down and the Robe wrapped around me.

"After having a good Cry I began reading up on the Decrees of Fashion, and I learn that I am just Six Months behind the Parade. I figure that the only Thing for me to do is go and lock myself in the Bathroom until my Hair grows out and the Dressmakers can hurry up and give me something I won't be ashamed to wear outside of the House."

"It's nothing to worry about."

"Says you. You mean it's nothing for You to worry about. Why should you lose any Sleep because I have gone on the Rocks? Who am I? I'm just the unfortunate Female you dragged to the Altar. I am facing the Crisis of my Life and you are straightening your Cravat and trying to laugh it off. What a Help you turned out to be!"

"You are making a Mountain out of a Molehill."

"WHEN you pay the Bills for what I am going to order tomorrow you'll think it's some Molehill. Now if you will tell me that every Cloud has a Silver Lining and it's always Darkest just before Dawn, everything will be cleared up fine and dandy. I ask for Sympathy and get a Bromide.

"The Trouble with you is that you don't know the Half of it. Are you hep to the Fact that we must go back to Corsets? Just when we began to enjoy taking a Full Breath, we get orders to put on the Armor Plate and squeeze the old Gizzard out of Shape and develop the generous Curve Lines of a Bass Viol.

"They says the Skirts will be Dust-Catchers within a Year. Think of that, poor Trout, if you have anything left to think with. We are going back to the Dark Ages. We are all going to be Gibson Girls, wearing Belt Buckles and Sailor Straws and kicking Ten Million Germs every time we go trailing up the street. And the old Bean decorated with Gobs of Hair and Rats and a couple of Yards of Fish Netting! All the tough Breaks coming at once. Haven't you been on Earth long enough to find out that a Woman must wear what other Women are wearing or else be hooted right out of Polite Society? She can break one or all of the Ten Commandments and get away with it if she looks like those Pictures in the Back Part of the Fashion Magazines.

"If she reads What Milady is going to wear this Season, she can cut out Ludwig, Somerset Maugham, Booth Tarkington and Edna Ferber, and still be invited to the Best Houses. Me for the Indoors until I show those Cats that I'm there with the whole Ensemble."

"All of which is a sad Commentary on American Womanhood," said the Wise Husband. "You are a Daughter of the American Revolution, but you are still taking orders from the Old World. Didn't you ever hear of the Declaration of Independence? Huh? Are you going to let some Frog with V-shaped whiskers sit in his perfumed establishment on the Rue de la Paix and tell all the Women in Lowell, Massachusetts, and Muskegon, Michigan, what they shall put on every Morning and how many Ruffles are to be placed on the Articles that do not show?"

"You are using up Language, but you are not saying Anything," said the Wife, as she regarded the discards. "If you had the intelligence which is commonly given to Geese, you would know that it is better to be out of the World than out of the Mode.

"Being Ten Minutes behind the Fashions is just the same as being Ten Years behind them. I am in Dutch and I know it, and I am going to buy what the other Girls are wearing."

Only two evenings later she found him up in the Room indulging in a Brain Storm. He was standing in the middle of the Floor gazing at a Claw-Hammer Costume, alias Conventional Evening Clothes, alias the Complete Soup and Fish, somewhat resembling the Regalia worn in his Comedy Act by "Chic" Sale of Urbana, Illinois.

"Look at it!" he sputtered. "It is four sizes too small. It has been in the Camphor Balls for Five years. If I get into the Blame Thing it will bust at the Seams. I took a Vow that I would never wear the Thing again. A Dinner Coat is the only Sensible Garment for Evening wear. And now I've got to go back to the prehistoric Monstrosity known as the Dress Suit."

"Why?"

"I'll tell you why, you poor Ninny. It says in the Evening Paper that the Prince of Wales has decided that, at any Function attended by Ladies, only Formal Wear may be considered de Rigueur."

She did not say a word about the Declaration of Independence. She was a good Woman. She started to hunt up a White Tie for the Poor Worm.

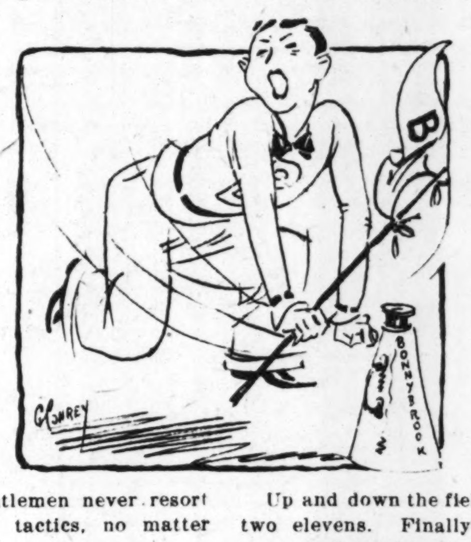
BONNYBROOK in FOOTBALL

Or the Slide That Won the Game.

BONNYBROOK versus Parsnip Normal! A half-hour before game time found the stands packed with a delirious mob of 68,000, which wasn't a bad crowd for Saturday. Not that anybody would want it, but there wasn't a square inch of space to be had in the entire stadium. What a classic—the Purple Landslide against the Green Tidal Wave!

In the dressing room under the ZZ section, Coach Chadwick was delivering his final exhortation to the group of determined young men who were to carry Bonnybrook's destiny on their stalwart shoulders.



"I realize," said the coach, "that you boys feel rather strongly against Parsnip as a result of last year's contest, when they nosed us out 37 to 0. However, I want you to lay off of the rough stuff. Remember that you're gentlemen and that gentlemen never resort to savage, brutal tactics, no matter if"——

From the stands was heard the deep baying of a Bonnybrook yell:

"Sick 'em! Soak 'em! Sock 'em!
Muss 'em! Maul 'em! Mash 'em!
Twist 'em! Toss 'em! Tear 'em!
Blast 'em! Bust 'em! Bash-'em!"

"As I was saying," resumed the coach, "gentlemen never resort to savage, brutal tactics, no matter if such abstinence will cost them the game. Play hard, but play cleanly. That's all, fellows."

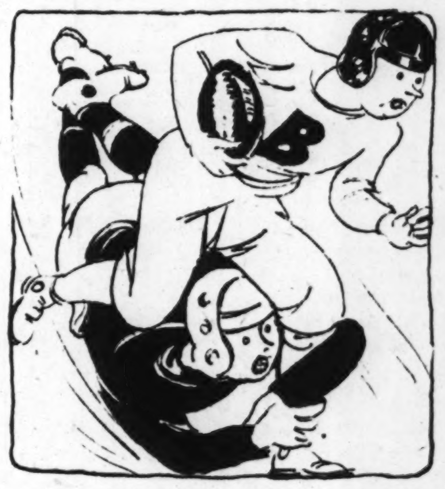
With a whoop the boys romped out to the field and the stands cheered madly.

"We've simply got to win this game, fellows," said Tom Merton, as the team raced up and down in various formations. "Bonnybrook hasn't beaten Parsnip in 44 years and it's time that the worm rotated."

"We'll win, all right," stoutly said his brother, Dick. "When we get through with the Green Tidal Wave, it's going to be a washout."

"Aye," chimed in Harry, the fun-loving Merton.

Despite the Beavers' valiant efforts, Parsnip succeeded in pushing over a touchdown in the first quarter and another toward the close of the second. Then Jorniezewski, the Parsnip quarterback, fumbled the ball on his own 45-yard line, and it was recovered by Hobuschdecker, the Bonnybrook end. A long pass, Ostrechussanowitz to Hobuschdecker was good for a tally. The extra point was made as the gun sounded and the half ended with Parsnip out in front by a score of 13 to 7.



"Well, fellows," said Tom, as the team slowly trudged to the dressing room, "I think we'll do better next half. The Tarpons took us by surprise with that puzzling quadruple reverse pass of theirs, but now that we're on to it we'll be able to stop them."

"Wait until Judson gets going," whispered Dick, nodding toward the giant fullback. "For the last three years, you know, he was Andrews of Butterworth College, and for the three years before that, Crandall of Marbletree Institute."

Near the close of the third quarter, Schneidewendler, the Bonnybrook center, hurt an old injury in his ankle when he tried to get out of the way of Crovanardis, the Tarpons' galloping halfback, and time out was called.

Quickly the coach's eyes traveled over the eager, waiting figures on the bench. Only an instant he hesitated.

"Bascom!" he called sharply.

The hearts of the three Mertons sank in unison. "Beef" Bascom was the very last man in the world they wanted to see substituting for Schneidewendler. Of course, it was easier on the cheer leaders, but Bascom had a base character. The stands, ignorant of this, yelled lustily. They didn't see the wicked gleam in his eye nor the horrid sneer on his face, nor did they know he had bet against his own team. This is the most contemptible thing a man can do, although it isn't always unprofitable.

"Hold 'em, Bascom!" shouted Tom warningly as the Parsnip team went into conference on its 40-yard line.

Bascom responded with a snarl, a grimace and a leer.

Up and down the field fluctuated the two elevens. Finally, in the fourth quarter, Bonnybrook got a break when Jorniezewski, the Tarpons' fumbling quarterback, again dropped the ball. The slippery pigskin—it had been raining steadily now for three hours and the field was a sea of mud—slithered out of his hands on his own goal line and the ever-eager Ostrechussanowitz fell on it for a touchdown. The score was tied at 13-all. Judson fell back to attempt a drop kick.

"EVERYTHING depends upon the try for point," said Tom, white-faced and tense. "There's five second left to play."

"Bascom, make this pass good!" shouted Dick nervously.

"Signals!" called out Kinkamoujyian, the Beavers' snappy quarterback. "18—12—54—37—92—110—whuff!"

The stands froze with horror as the despicable Bascom deliberately threw the ball clean over Judson's head. He was trying to end the game in a tie and thereby save the round, shiny dollar he had bet against his team.

The groan from the spectators suddenly changed to a roar of hope. Judson, who had no time to kick, picked up the ball and ran. The enemy thundered about him like a herd of buffalo. For a moment Judson hesitated and then, heedless of the damage he would cause his uniform, made a desperate hook-slide in the mud toward the goal line. It was the old alluvium play which Bonnybrook had been secretly practicing for the past three weeks.

As the crestfallen Bascom looked on, Judson, aided by a 30-mile tail wind, with eight fierce Tarpons clinging to his neck, skidded across the tape and full 17 feet on the other side. It was over and Bonnybrook had won, 14 to 13! Pandemonium reigned for the first time since 1886.

"Yee-ow!" shouted Tom.

"Whoopee!" screamed Dick.

"Hot soup!" yelled Harry.

Whereupon the three Mertons buttoned up their furry raccoon coats, adjusted their derbies and got up from their comfortable seats on the 50-yard line. Telling the girls to wait, they vaulted the railing and ran out to help carry the victorious team off the field.

RESULTS REWARD WOMEN WHO CHOOSE FACE POWDER ACCORDING TO SKIN TYPE

Thousands of women all over the world are enjoying marvelous new benefits from face powder because they are choosing powder that agrees with their own type of skin. Beauty experts are responsible for this because they have been advocating the use of the right kind of powder for each of three types of skin . . . oily, dry and normal.

Plough's three different face powders (one for each type of skin) make it easy for you to select your powder. When you do you will be delighted with its caressing fragrance, its long-clinging smoothness, its natural youthful-looking loveliness. And you will be amazed at its difference from ordinary face powders.

FOR OILY SKIN—choose heavy texture, Plough's "Incense of Flowers" Face Powder in the oval box 75c.

FOR DRY SKIN—choose light texture, Plough's "Favorite Bouquet" Face Powder in the square box 30c.

FOR NORMAL SKIN—choose medium texture, Plough's "Exquisite" Face Powder in the round box 50c.

Each Plough Powder comes in White, Flesh, Pink, Brunette and Sun-Tan tints and is sensibly priced wherever beauty creations are sold.

Plough Face Powders are keenly in step with today's economy trend as they are with Fashion's latest decrees. Finest quality, reasonably priced, made possible by Plough's enormous volume.

HOW TO GET 8 HOURS OF SOUND SLEEP WITHOUT DRUGS

The Kind That Gives You ALL-DAY ENERGY

You Can Start Tonight

The Way 20,000 Doctors Advise

DID you get "a good night's sleep" last night? Did you get to sleep quickly, sleep soundly and wake up teeming with life and energy?

If you did not—you will want to try this new way to insure sound, natural sleep. A way that comes from Switzerland—that is now used in 54 countries throughout the world, and that over 20,000 doctors are advising.

It is as free of drugs as the milk you drink or the bread you eat. And brings the three things that go with sound, natural sleep—sleep as soon as you go to bed, sound sleep for eight restful hours, and energy that lasts from daylight to dark. And it does far more than simply induce sleep. It actually rebuilds your wasted tissues while you sleep!

What It Is

It is called Ovaltine; a scientific food-concentrate developed in Switzerland by a scientist of world-fame. You take it in a cup of warm milk at bedtime; a super-delicious drink.

First, it induces sleep. You get sound, natural sleep a few minutes after taking it.

Then, while you sleep, its peculiar dietetic properties resupply your system with the energy lost the previous, active day. For it contains practically EVERY building element necessary to energy. And thus provides not only sleep, but the kind of sleep that rebuilds and rejuvenates!

You can take it night after night and not only not form a habit, as with drugs but actually build up your health! So you teem with energy every day.

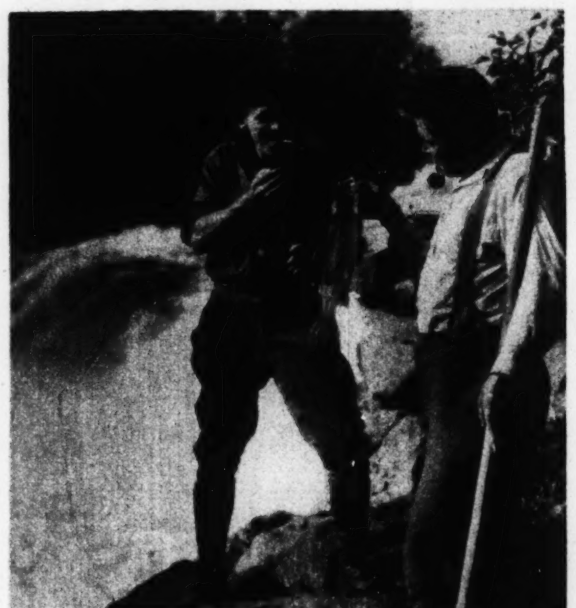
During the World War Ovaltine was included by the Red Cross and base hospitals as a restorative ration for convalescent and invalid soldiers. It marks one of the most important scientific findings of its time. Do you wonder then, that people everywhere are flocking to its use?

Try It Tonight

Doctors urge it not only for sleeplessness, but for all nervous and run-down conditions. They recommend it, too, for nervous, underweight children. Thousands of busy people take it during the day to relieve fatigue and restore vitality. Widely different from powdered, sugary, chocolate, malt or cocoa "mixtures" its scientific standing is unquestioned.

A few weeks' use will make an amazing difference in the way you feel. Your whole appearance will show the result of restful sleep and vitality restored this natural way.

Believe or not what people claim for Ovaltine but try it. Try it without delay. Start tonight. Just 'phone your druggist or grocer now ask for a can of Ovaltine.



OVALTINE FOR STOMACH TROUBLE—AND SLEEPLESSNESS

"I'm Eating Most Anything Again and Sleep Like a Log!"

"I took Ovaltine because I lacked sleep and had poor digestion. For months I had not been able to digest my food properly. Though I ate no supper at all, my stomach would bloat all night. I tried milk diet with only slight relief. I used a 3-day trial of Ovaltine and seemed to feel some results. Now I take Ovaltine regularly and am eating most anything again and sleep like a log."

L. H. SHEPARD,
Box 842,
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

TO COMBAT NERVOUSNESS, SLEEPLESSNESS, UNDERWEIGHT IN CHILDREN

"No Longer a Nervous Underweight Child"

"My five-year-old daughter, Mary Joyce, used to tumble and fret in her sleep. She was losing weight and would not drink milk. Her appetite was very poor.

"Then I started giving her Ovaltine four times a day—at mealtimes and before she goes to bed at night. She's no longer a nervous, underweight child. She sleeps well. Her weight has increased, she has gained four pounds and she's the very picture of glowing health."

MRS. ADELINE WEAVER,
1800 N. Luna Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

FOR NERVOUS CONDITIONS THAT SPOIL BUSINESS AND SOCIAL LIFE

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Many people have asked us, "Does Ovaltine contain any drugs?" It is such a wonderful "night-cap" they feel it "simply must" contain something in the nature of a drug. In short, it works so well they sometimes "wonder" about it. So we wish to go on record here in public print, that Ovaltine has never at any time contained any sleep-producing drug of any kind whatsoever. It is made entirely from food and nothing but food. The government would not permit us to make such a statement in public print unless it could be proved beyond a doubt.

"I Had a Nervous Breakdown and Couldn't Sleep, Eat or Sit Still for 5 Minutes"

"After I'd had a nervous breakdown I could not sleep, eat or sit still for five minutes at a time. I am a bookkeeper and work for a living so I had to get back to work. I tried everything except drugs, which I was afraid of. A lady asked me if I ever tried Ovaltine. I said no. She said 'try it, I am sure there are no drugs in it.' So I sent for a sample. The first night after taking it I slept fine. I used the three-day sample and was so pleased I have bought more. Now I eat, sleep and feel fine. Thanks to your Ovaltine."

THE HUMAN PROJECTILE
One day Daniel Baer came dashing into the fort with a half dozen arrows sticking in him. he was afoot..his horse had been shot from under him and he informed us that the Indians were on the warpath and on the way to the fort ....
After locking the gate with a big beam I ordered every man to his post to defend the fort ------
Pretty soon a band of savages with more paint on than a flapper was riding around the fort whooping and shooting bullets and arrows at us...
After hours of fighting our gunner announced that our ammunition was about gone and we had just enough powder to fire the cannon once more
The only thing that could save us was ammunition or re-inforcements so I ordered the cannon loaded while I wound my feet in buckskins....
Crawling into the cannon, I ordered the gunner to fire at a clump of pine trees some hundred yards away...
With a boom I sailed through the air and landed in the trees which broke my fall---
Mounting the horse of one of the dead redskins (the rest seemed too dumb-founded to make a move) I galloped away to the nearest garrison for help
Returning at the head of a troop of cavalry, we soon dispersed the Indians and saved the fort

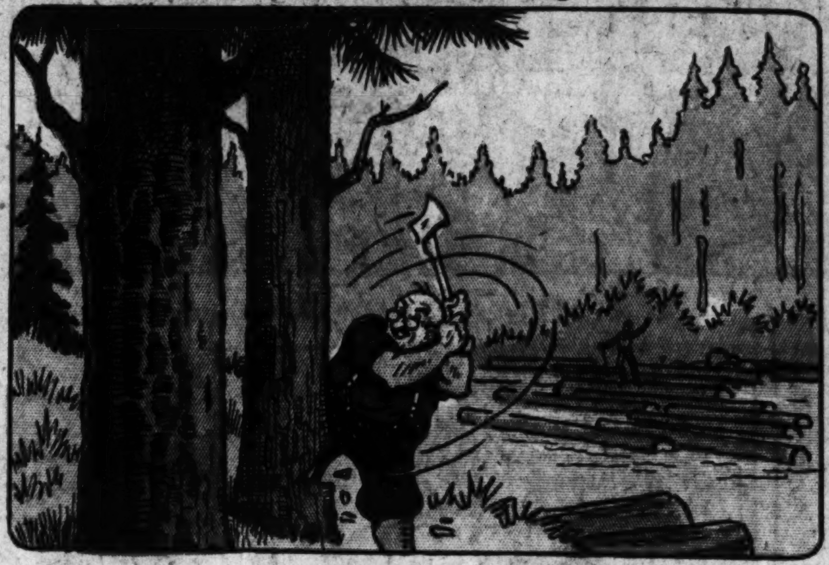
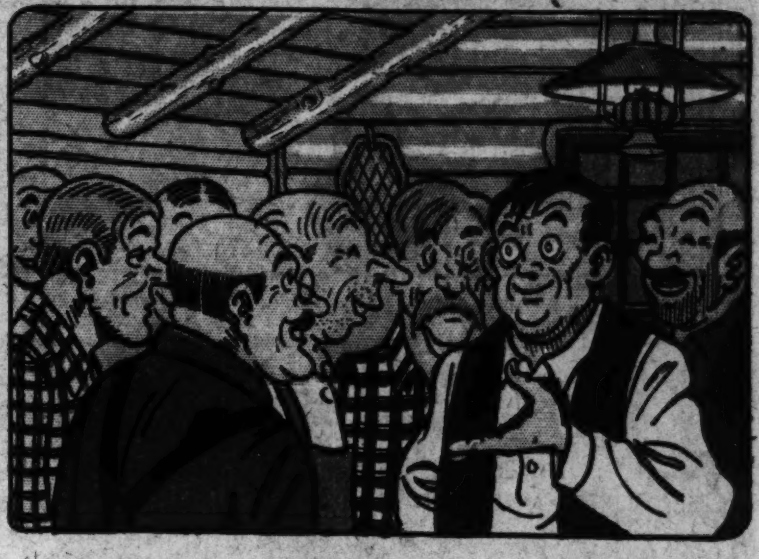
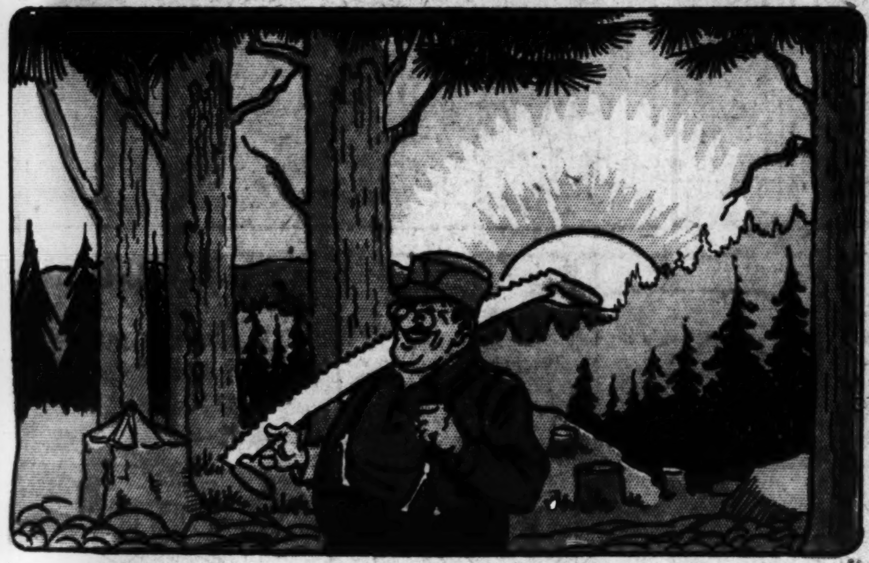
BLACKIE, A LETTER FROM DADDY! LISTEN TO WHAT HE SAYS! "DEAR KIDS: I AM WORKING IN A LUMBER CAMP TRYING TO REDUCE MY WAIST MEASURE TO A MERE FIFTY-THREE —



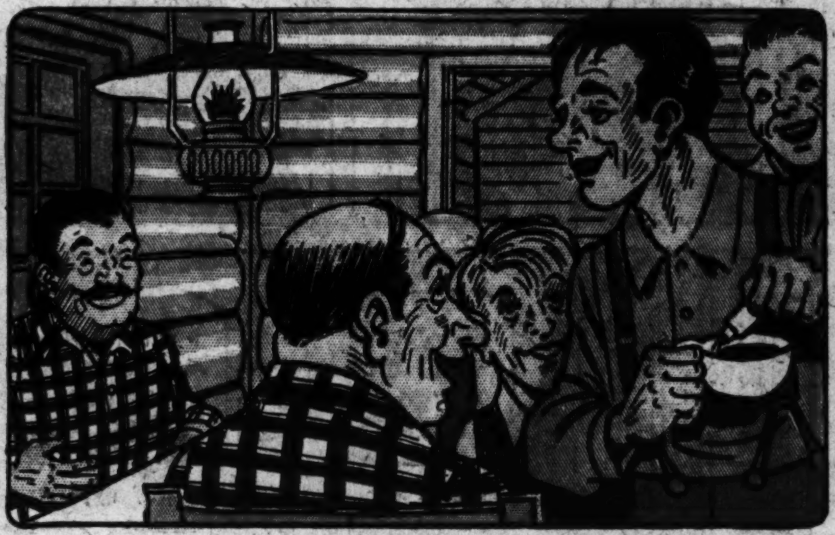
I AM A GREAT FAVORITE WITH THE BOYS HERE. THEY ARE ALWAYS RIBBING ME. THEY HAVE NICKNAMED ME "POP" AND MAKE ME THE BUTT OF ALL THEIR JOKES—



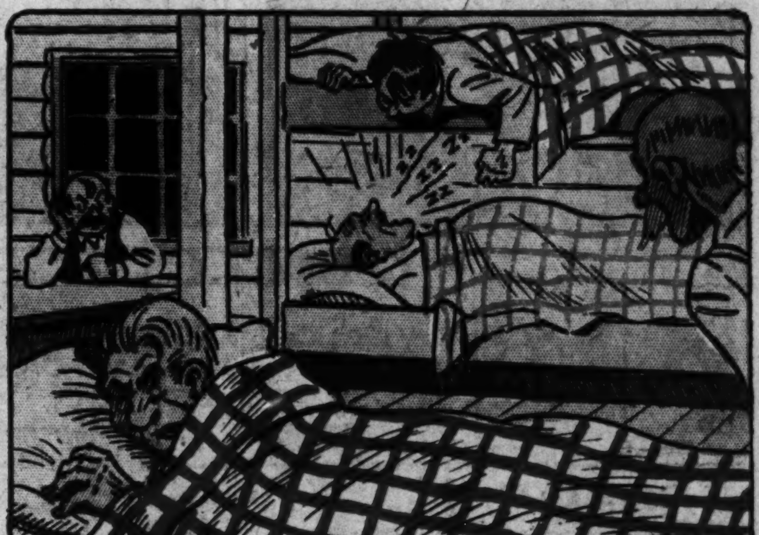
LAST WEEK THE BOSS OF THE CAMP DECIDED TO HAVE A WOOD-SAWING CONTEST WITH A PRIZE OFFERED FOR ENDURANCE. IT WAS A GREAT IDEA AND WE APPROVED HEARTILY—



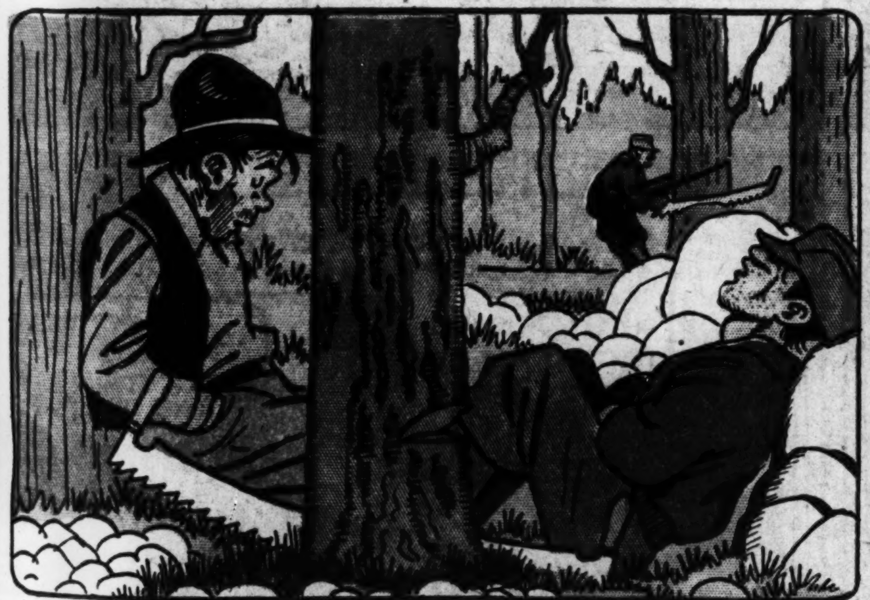
I WAS GOING GREAT. I WORKED ALL THAT DAY WITHOUT A STOP AND WAS GOING STRONG UNTIL SUNDOWN. I HAD CUT TEN MORE TREES THAN MY NEAREST RIVAL —



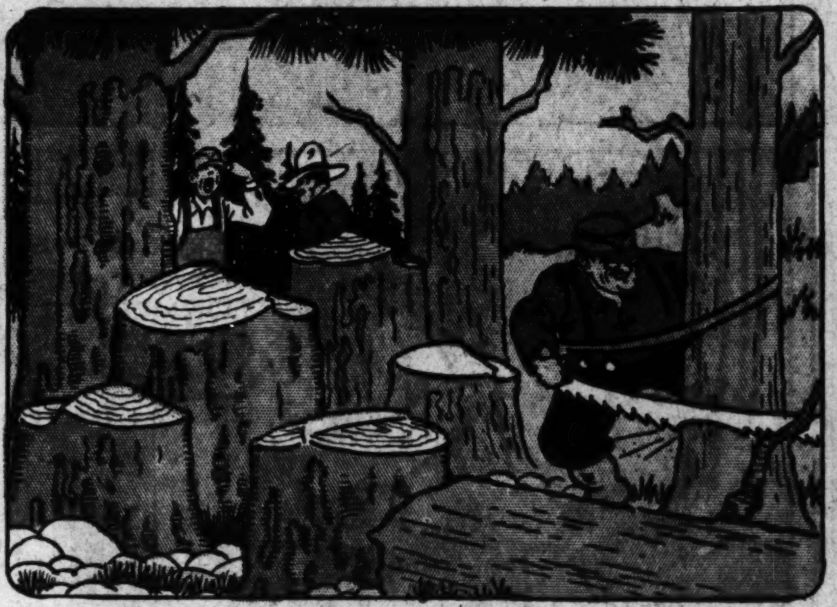
BUT THE CONTEST WAS TO LAST A WEEK. THE BOYS, UP TO THEIR USUAL PRANKS, FIXED MY COFFEE WITH SLEEPING POWDER SO I WOULDN'T BE ABLE TO ANSWER THE CALL NEXT DAY —



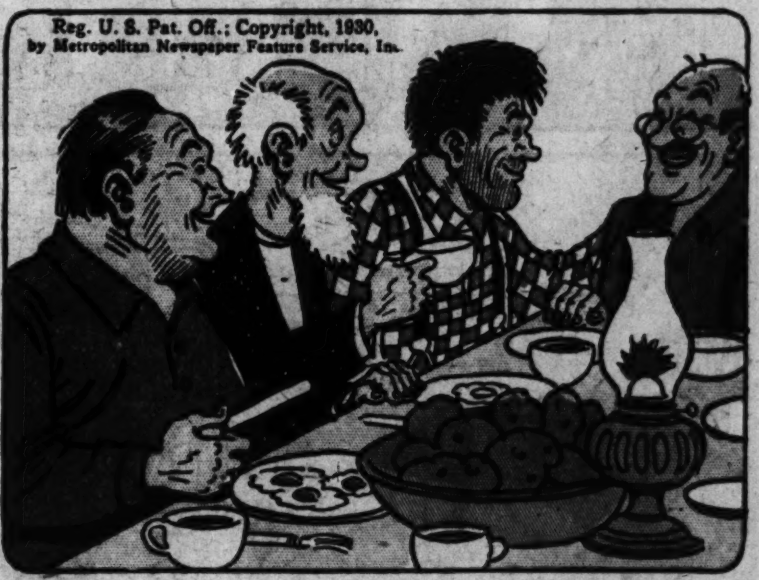
I DIDN'T KNOW ABOUT THE DOPED COFFEE BUT, SAY, DID I SLEEP? WHY I KEPT THE WHOLE CAMP AWAKE WITH MY SNORING —



THE NEXT DAY THERE WASN'T A WIDE AWAKE MAN IN THAT CAMP, AND VERY LITTLE WORK WAS DONE —



MEANWHILE, I AROSE FROM MY SLEEP GREATLY REFRESHED AND WHAT I DID TO THOSE TREES WAS A CAUTION.



Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1930, by Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THAT NIGHT WORD WAS PASSED AROUND THAT I WAS THE UNDISPUTED WINNER OF THE PRIZE FOR LOG-SAWING. EVERYONE IN CAMP HAD TO DONATE TO BUY ME A PRIZE —

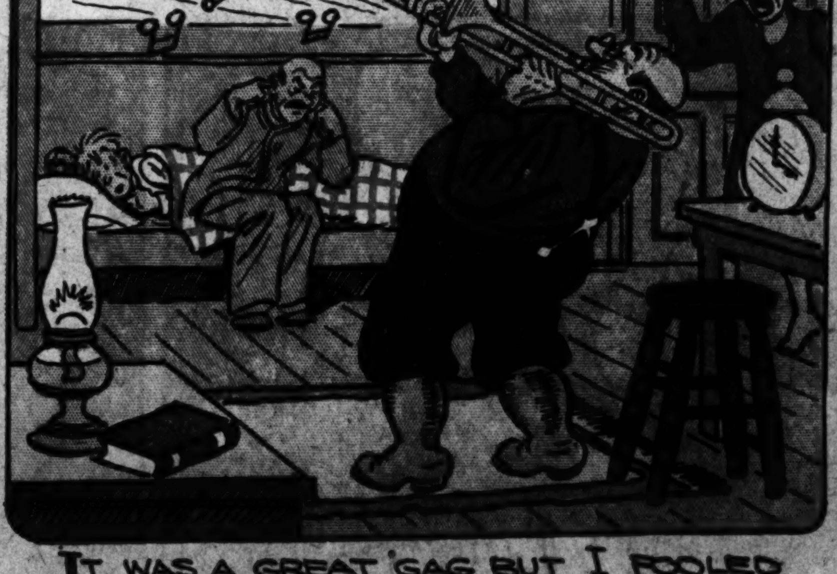
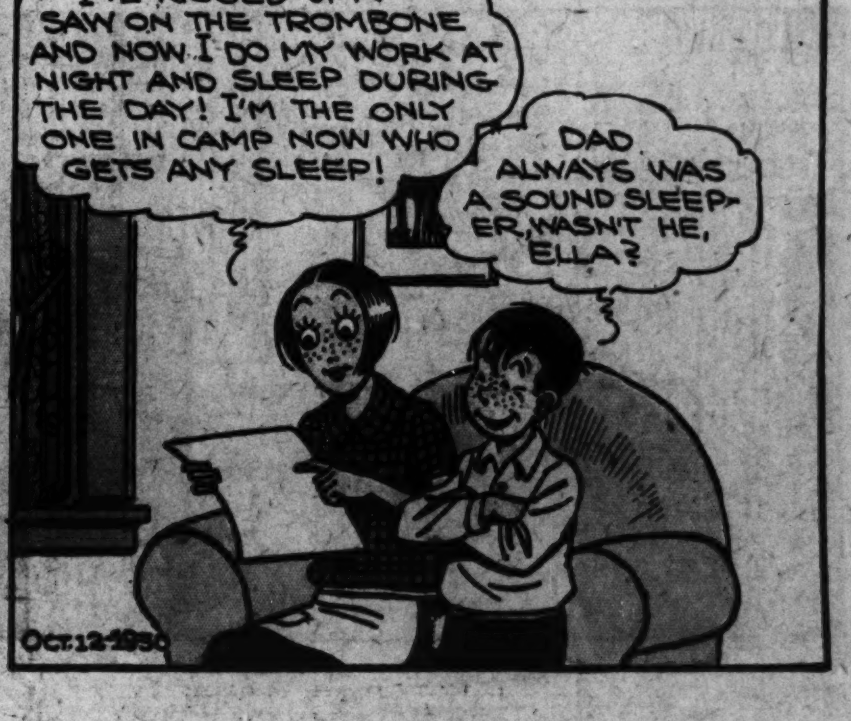
THE BOSS CLAIMED THAT FOR DAYTIME AND NIGHTTIME LOG-SAWING I WAS THE KING OF THEM ALL! THEN HE PRESENTED ME WITH A CLOCK THAT SOUNDS THE QUARTER HOURS SO LOUDLY I CAN'T SLEEP NIGHTS ANYMORE —



IT WAS A GREAT GAG BUT I FOOLED THEM. I BOUGHT MYSELF A SLIDE TROMBONE AND I PLAY IT ALL NIGHT SO'S THE CLOCK WON'T KEEP ME AWAKE —



—I'VE RIGGED UP A SAW ON THE TROMBONE AND NOW I DO MY WORK AT NIGHT AND SLEEP DURING THE DAY! I'M THE ONLY ONE IN CAMP NOW WHO GETS ANY SLEEP!

SWEET AD EL INE-
BEAUTIFUL-DEAR-
DO YOU REALLY THINK I CAN SING-DARLING?
WHY-ARCHIE! IT'S WONDERFUL! YOU SHOULD BE SINGING IN GRAND OPERA-
ROSIE IS RIGHT- I HAVE A GOOD VOICE AND IT'S A SHAME THAT I DON'T TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT—
I'LL JUST ASK PROFESSOR CLEFF HE MUST HAVE HEARD MY SINGING-HE LIVES NEXT DOOR TO ME-WELL- WHAT IS IT YOUNG MAN?
PROFESSOR! I'M THE YOUNG MAN-WHOSE VOICE YOU HAVE UNDOUBTEDLY HEARD FROM THE NEXT APARTMENT AND—I CERTAINLY DID!

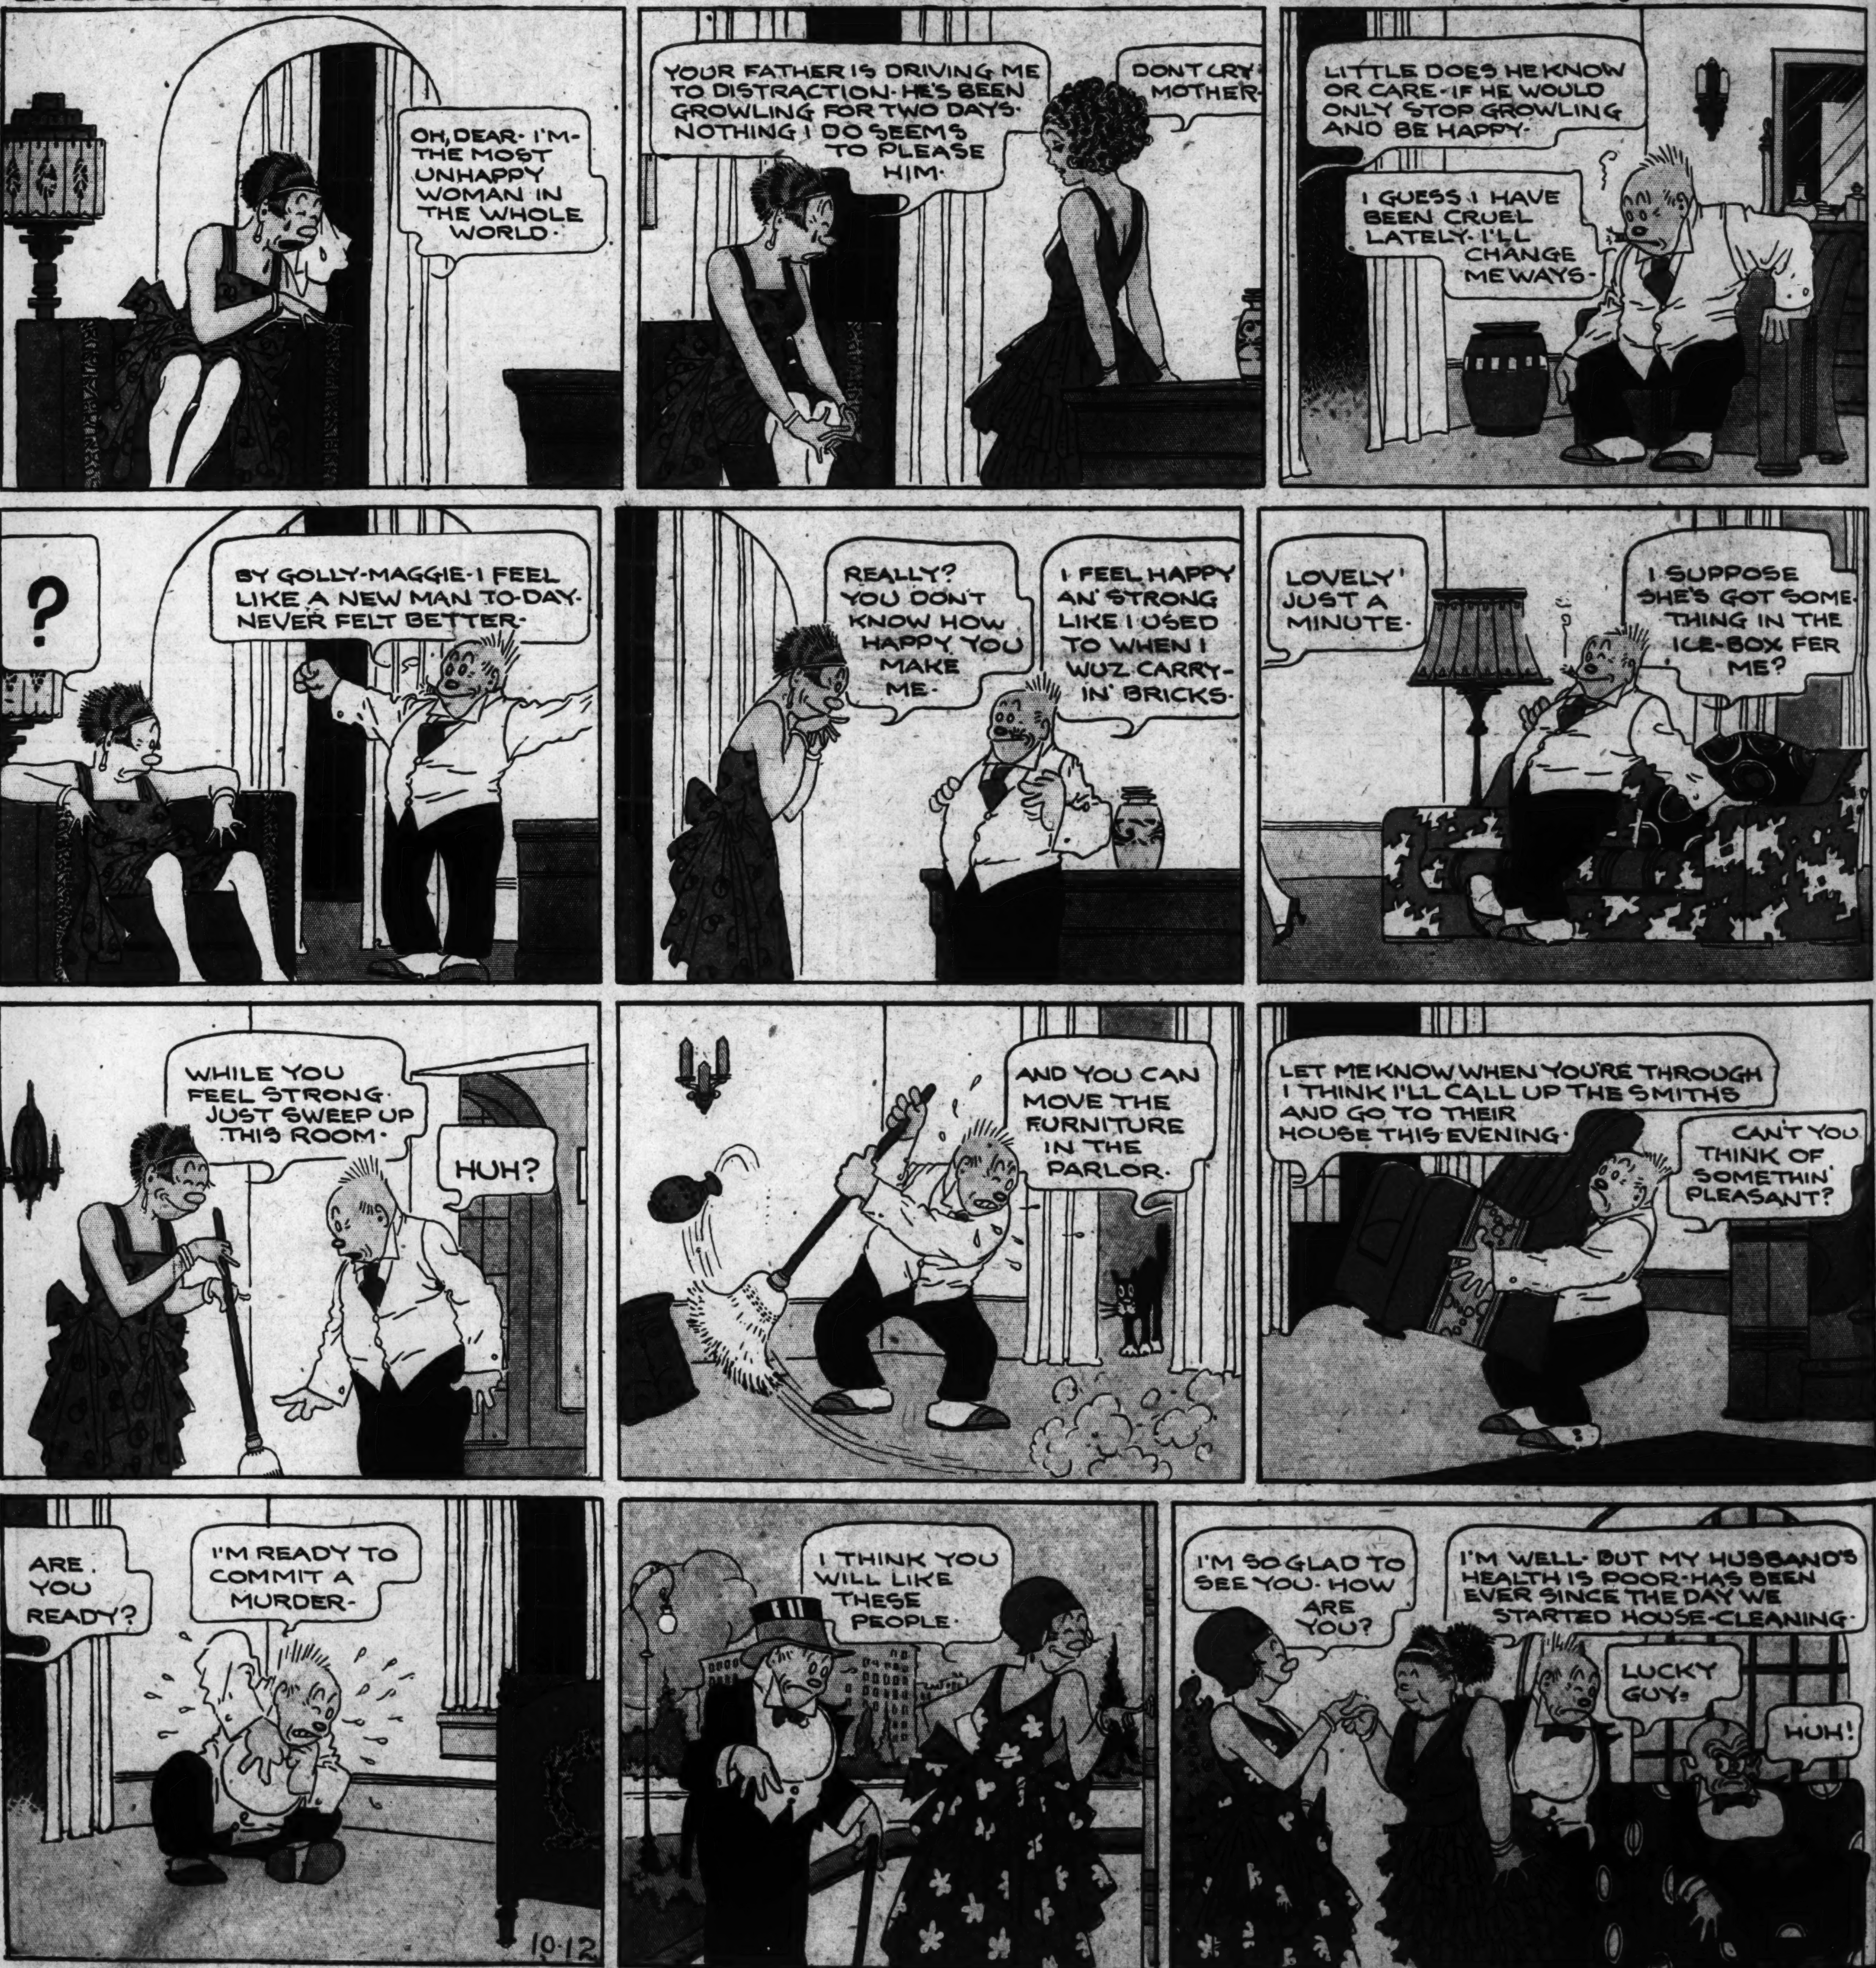
BRINGING UP FATHER

This comic appears every day in the daily Post-Dispatch

By McMANUS



OH, DEAR- I'M-THE MOST UNHAPPY WOMAN IN THE WHOLE WORLD-
YOUR FATHER IS DRIVING ME TO DISTRACTION- HE'S BEEN GROWLING FOR TWO DAYS- NOTHING I DO SEEMS TO PLEASE HIM-
DON'T CRY-MOTHER-
LITTLE DOES HE KNOW OR CARE- IF HE WOULD ONLY STOP GROWLING AND BE HAPPY-I GUESS I HAVE BEEN CRUEL LATELY- I'LL CHANGE ME WAYS-
BY GOLLY-MAGGIE- I FEEL LIKE A NEW MAN TO-DAY- NEVER FELT BETTER-
REALLY? YOU DON'T KNOW HOW HAPPY YOU MAKE ME-I FEEL HAPPY AN' STRONG LIKE I USED TO WHEN I WUZ CARRY-IN' BRICKS-LOVELY JUST A MINUTE-
I SUPPOSE SHE'S GOT SOME-THING IN THE ICE-BOX FER ME?
WHILE YOU FEEL STRONG- JUST SWEEP UP THIS ROOM-HUH?
AND YOU CAN MOVE THE FURNITURE IN THE PARLOR-
LET ME KNOW WHEN YOU'RE THROUGH I THINK I'LL CALL UP THE SMITHS AND GO TO THEIR HOUSE THIS EVENING-CAN'T YOU THINK OF SOMETHIN' PLEASANT?
ARE YOU READY?
I'M READY TO COMMIT A MURDER-
10-12
I THINK YOU WILL LIKE THESE PEOPLE-
I'M SO GLAD TO SEE YOU- HOW ARE YOU?
I'M WELL- BUT MY HUSBAND'S HEALTH IS POOR-HAS BEEN EVER SINCE THE DAY WE STARTED HOUSE-CLEANING-LUCKY GUY-

AND AS A REWARD FOR YOUR TWENTY-TWO YEARS OF FAITHFUL SERVICE TO THE FIRM I'VE DECIDED TO PROMOTE YOU TO TREASURER
THAT'S A VERY RESPONSIBLE POSITION
YOU WILL, OF COURSE, HANDLE ALL OF THE FIRM'S MONEY, BUT I HAVE ABSOLUTE FAITH IN YOU - YOU HAVE ALWAYS PROVED TO BE HONEST, TRUTHFUL AND RELIABLE
YOU CAN SEE NOW HOW IT PAYS TO BE HONEST AND TRUTHFUL -- LET MY LIFE BE A LESSON TO YOU
CONGRATULATIONS DAD
WELL, NOW, LET'S FORGET ALL ABOUT BUSINESS AND CELEBRATE WITH A GOOD ROUND OF GOLF
TEN CENTS A HOLE
DAD'S SUCCESS HAS GONE TO HIS HEAD --HE CAN'T HIT THE BALL TO SAVE HIS LIFE TODAY
IT'S TAKEN HIM EIGHT STROKES TO GET OUT OF THAT ROUGH
HE'S BEATING THE BALL INCH BY INCH -- NOW HE'S IN A SAND TRAP
HOW MANY STROKES DID YOU TAKE ON THIS HOLE, DAD?
FOUR

OH, BLONDIE -- I JUST CAN'T GET UP THE COURAGE TO PROPOSE TO YOUR MOTHER
WELL, GOODNESS -- YOU CAN'T JUST COME IN, TAKE OFF YOUR HAT AND PROPOSE -- IT MUST BE LED UP TO -- YOU MUST BOTH BE IN THE PROPER FRAME OF MIND
COME OUT WITH BUDDY AND ME TONIGHT -- WE'LL ARRANGE AN EVENING THAT WILL GET YOU IN JUST THE MOOD TO PROPOSE AND MOTHER TO ACCEPT YOU
THAT'LL BE AWFULLY SWEET OF YOU -- I'LL PAY ALL OF THE BILLS
COME ON, MOTHER -- BUDDY AND I ARE GOING TO TAKE YOU AND MR. JINKERS OUT TONIGHT -- JUST PRETEND YOU'RE MY AGE AGAIN
OH, WON'T THAT BE NICE? WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO WEAR?
NOT SO FAST - THE WIND IS TERRIFIC BACK HERE
OH THOSE BUMPS!
THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE A RUMBLE SEAT TO REALLY GET ACQUAINTED -- DRIVE TO SOME NICE COUNTRY PLACE WHERE THEY HAVE MUSIC
WHERE'S SOME REAL EXPENSIVE PLACE?
THAT'S AWFULLY NICE MUSIC -- WHY DON'T YOU AND MR. JINKERS HAVE A DANCE?
SHALL I PROPOSE NOW?
NOW? GOODNESS, THE EVENING'S JUST STARTED! YOU MUST BE PATIENT --- I'LL TELL YOU WHEN GREAT LITTLE COUPLE -- I'D LIKE TO SEE THEM MARRIED
LEAVE IT TO ME - I'LL HAVE THEM ENGAGED BEFORE THE NIGHT'S OVER
I'LL HAVE TO APOLOGIZE FOR MY DANCING
I'M SURPRISED THAT I CAN DANCE AT ALL -- I GO OUT SO LITTLE HERE'S A REAL CUTE MUSICAL SHOW AT THE NORTHERN -- FULL OF ROMANCE AND THE DARLINGEST SONGS
NOT SO FAST
THAT'S THE PLACE TO TAKE THEM NEXT -- THERE'S NOTHING LIKE A MUSICAL SHOW TO MAKE YOU FEEL ROMANTIC TO BE IN LOVE WITH YOU IS DIVINE TO BE IN LOVE
WHAT A SWEET SONG!
SHALL I PROPOSE NOW?
OH, NO, MR. JINKERS! THAT WOULD SPOIL EVERYTHING -- AFTER THE SHOW WE'RE GOING TO DRIVE OUT TO TIPP INN FOR SOME MOONLIGHT DANCING
YOU DANCE WITH MOTHER AN' I'LL DANCE WITH HIM -- TALK ABOUT LOVE AN' THINGS LIKE THAT GOOD IDEA, BLONDIE
AH - A GOOD OLD WALTZ --- MY FAVORITE DANCE
MINE, TOO - EVERYTHING IS SO NICE
DID YOU NOTICE HOW SPOONY THEY WERE? - HE'S ALL SET TO PROPOSE -- I KNOW THE SIGNS -- I'LL DRIVE TO YOUR HOUSE NOW
WE'LL LET THEM GO IN AN' SIT ON THE SOFA AND YOU AND I WILL WAIT ON THE PORCH FOR THE GOOD NEWS
HOLY SMOKES -- IT'S 3 A.M. IT DOESN'T TAKE THAT LONG TO ASK A GIRL TO MARRY YOU HEAVENS! MAYBE THEY'VE ELOPED!! SLIPPED OUT THE BACK WAY -- OH, DEAR DEAR --

'RITHMATIC IS A THING THAT YA OUGHTA COULD TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT ALONE
BUT HERE I FIND THE SCHOOL BOARD MAKES IT CONVULSORY
THERE'S THE ANSWER, "697,492" - I'LL JUST CHECK IT IN THE BOOK
"FIFTEEN"!
NO WONDER I WAS A LITTLE' OFF - YA GOT TO HAVE A SHARP PENCIL FOR THIS STUFF
I BET THE BOOK WAS WRONG ON THAT ONE I'LL TEAR OFF ANOTHER ONE AN' COME BACK TO THAT WHEN I'M FRESH.
THE TROUBLE WITH 'RITHMATIC IS THAT YA NEVER HAVE ANY LUCK WITH IT.
"5892" - JUST WHAT'S IN THE BOOK, I'LL BET

OH, DARLING, I DO HOPE YOU'LL BE ALL RIGHT! I HATE TO HAVE YOU TAKE THAT LONG TRIP ALL ALONE
REMEMBER, DEAR, DON'T TALK TO ANY MEN ON THE TRAIN
I..I THINK I'LL BE SAFE, DEAR FATHER AND MOTHER
THERE, THERE MOTHER, DON'T CARRY ON SO = IT'S ONLY A TWO-HOUR TRIP ON THE TRAIN AND AUNT BESSIE WILL MEET HER AT THE STATION
YES, I KNOW... BUT I'M SO WORRIED!
BUT DAUGHTER-OH!
SO I THINK I'LL TAKE THAT ZEP TRIP AROUND THE WORLD
GOOD FOR YOU, DARLING = I ADMIRE YOUR SPUNK!
WELL, I'LL SEE YOU IN A FEW WEEKS, DAUGHTER. I'VE GOT AN ENGAGEMENT AT THE CLUB TONIGHT AND JUST THINK YOU'LL BE ALL ALONE WITH 22 MEN! YOU LUCKY GIRL!
SOME FUN, EH, KID?
